WAITERS' STRIKE TANGLES ICKES' SPEAKING PLANS

Richberg Eats at Astor Anyway.

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—A Roosevelt cabinet member and the general counsel of the NRA ran smack into the turmoil of the hotel waiters' strike tonight.

One of them, Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes, escaped being served by "strikebreakers" only because his hosts shifted the dinner away from the Astor hotel.

The other, Donald Richberg, sat right down and took service, although he explained that he did so because he had accepted the invitation to speak before the waiters went on strike.

When Mr. Ickes got to town he had to do some sleuthing to find out just where he was expected to address the Survey Associates. He learned at the Astor that the affair had been withdrawn from that hotbed of the waiters' strike and was told the banquet might come off at the Hotel Governor Clinton.

Move to Strikeless Club.

There it developed, however, that the largest banquet hall seated only 300, whereas the Survey club had arranged for 400 guests. Then the trail led to the Aldine club, which is not affected by the strike. And there Mr. Ickes finally made his speech.

Mayor Fiorella H. La Guardia was a fellow speaker and, like Mr. Ickes, was saved from an embarrassing situation by the move to the Aldine club.

But with Attorney Richberg the outcome was not smooth and easy. His host, the Economic club, stuck by its guns. The Astor braved a reported plan of strikers to "bust up" the dinner in some manner, and all went off without a hitch. An expected gathering and demonstration by an army of pickets outside the hotel did not eventuate.

Richberg Faces Pleas.

Before the dinner agents of the waiters' union attempted to dissuade Mr. Richberg from speaking at the Astor. They asserted that the hotels have declined NRA arbitration of the strike, and thus are violating the policies of the Roosevelt administration, which Mr. Richberg is endeavoring to uphold.

Mr. Richberg explained that he knew nothing of the details of the argument and felt that, inasmuch as he had agreed to appear at the dinner before the waiters walked out on the Astor, he felt obliged to the Economic club to go through with it.

Another speaker at the dinner, John T. Flynn, a representative of radical thought, explained that he, too, felt obliged to keep his engagement, but in his speech he expressed sympathy with the strikers and urged the waiters who were serving the dinner not to aid the hotels in breaking the strike. But Mr. Flynn got his dinner in peace.

MR. ICKES ON NRA

Secretary Ickes told his audience that "a bloodless revolution has occurred, turning out from the seats of power the representatives of wealth and privilege." It was his first New York speech since becoming a member of the cabinet.

He labeled former President Hoover "the champion of that ruthless exploiting individualism that was in the main responsible for the terrible economic situation in which we found ourselves."

"The real significance of all the government undertakings," he continued, in reviewing the New Deal up to date, "is the social significance. A faint voice was heard in the land last week in opposition to President Roosevelt's policies. It came from Ogden L. Mills, wending his lugubrious way to Topeka, Kas., to tell the free thinking, hard hitting farmers of the middle west that it were far better for them to starve by strict constitutional methods than to live by a liberalized interpretation of that fundamental document.

Mourns Departed Glories.

"With black band on arm and hat at half mast, he mourned the departed glories of the past. Whatever the administration was doing was wrong. Initiative was stricken with a palsy. Liberty was dead. That rugged individualism so dear to the heart of the men who, by ruthless methods, have grown rich at the expense of those not strong enough to protect themselves from exploitation, was no more. The good old days of government of the rich and powerful for the rich and

PARIS IS CALMED BY DOUMERGUE; HAILED AS HERO

Cabinet Expected to Be Named Today.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 8.—Gaston Doumergue's smile has done the trick. For "Gastounet"—former president of France—formally accepted the appointment as head of the French government two hours after his arrival in Paris this morning.

While the 70 year old statesman caused some disappointment by not completing his "cabinet of political truce" today, he was so sure of success that he turned in for the night at 9:30 o'clock and Paris, breathing freely again after 48 hours of nightmare, prepared to do likewise. He let it be known he expects to complete the cabinet by tomorrow afternoon at the latest.

Thousands of troops and police still are under arms in the capital, but not one disturbance worth mentioning occurred here during the day. The mere fact Doumergue is in Paris and that, officially or not, he will give the necessary orders in case trouble breaks out, is sufficient to settle the jumpy nerves.

Petain Minister of War.

And the news which leaked out unofficially concerning the composition of the embryonic cabinet was more good medicine for the excitable Frenchmen. Doumergue apparently improved on the original intentions of forming a government of former premiers and political chiefs. One name in the cabinet which all dopesters agree on tonight is not a politician at all, but Marshal Petain, hero of Verdun. He is scheduled to become minister of war.

A choice considered almost as certain for minister of finance is Prof. Charles Rist, deputy governor of the Bank of France. It was Rist who helped Raymond Poincare save the franc in 1926. He has guarded it with the faithfulness of a bulldog ever since.

The rest of the list is more problematical. Nevertheless it is considered extremely likely that either Gen Victor Vuillemin, hero of the recent African mass airplane cruise, or Gen Victor Denain, chief of the air staff, will become minister of air and an admiral will be named minister of marine.

Laval May Get Key Position.

Perhaps the most sensational choice attributed to Doumergue is that of former Premier Pierre Laval for minister of interior. This is one of the key positions in French politics and which, since the 1932 elections, has been the fief of radical politics. Former Premier Andre Tardieu and Edouard Herriot are reported to have submerged their personal ambitions to accept relatively modest posts, public works and national education respectively. The two held the same posts in the Poincare "save the franc" cabinet. Most dopesters pick former Premier Louis Barthou as minister of foreign affairs.

It is considered most likely Doumergue will take no portfolio himself. He probably will appoint honest, stubborn Henri Cheron as minister of justice to clean up the Stavisky $60,000,000 bond scandal.

The cabinet envisaged completely reverses the course of French politics for the last two years and gives a definitely conservative color to governmental policy in both foreign and internal affairs. It may prove the most stable government the republic ever has had and, as far as France and external security goes, certainly the strongest.

Gesture of Confidence.

All political parties except the Socialists have pledged support and extremist organizations of war veterans and students have called off all demonstrations as a gesture of confidence. It is expected Doumergue will offer a portfolio to Leon Blum, Socialist leader. It also is expected Blum will refuse, but it is possible dissident neo-Socialists will adhere.

Doumergue did very little talking today, but smiled a lot and that smile, which was already famous, did more for the capital's nerves than anything else.

"I don't want anybody to say there has been a revolution in France," he exclaimed to a reporter. "I want them simply to say 'France continued.'"

Predicts France's Recovery.

"The first necessity for the French in this hour is to understand each other," he continued. "Political battle is one form of action, but it should not be a permanent occupation. In certain times it is essential it cease or

SLEUTHS DRESS AS SODA CLERKS, NAB A SUSPECT

With the coöperation of two detectives who disguised themselves as soda clerks in a drug store, Harry Morrison of 6959 Eggleston avenue last evening trapped a woman who is alleged to have extorted money from him by threatening to tell his wife stories of his romantic doings away from the fireside.

The woman, who said she was Mrs. Alice Henderson, 29 years old, 1430 Chase avenue, was taken to the South State street police station and formally charged with extortion.

Morrison, who is the vice president of Martin, Driscoll & Co., printers at 610 Federal street, said he and a friend met Mrs. Henderson and another woman in a downtown barroom and after drinking with them drove the women to their homes. That was the extent of his philandering, he said, but Mrs. Henderson threatened to enlarge the tales unless she were paid.

Yesterday he made an appointment with her in a drug store at Belmont avenue and Broadway. Detectives Thomas McMahon and William Barron saw her accept money from Morrison as they were, somewhat inexpertly, serving drinks. Mrs. Henderson denied any extortion plot and asserted Morrison owed $10 for drinks in the barroom, which she had paid.

Mrs. Willett Tells Want on $918 a Month

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Mrs. Grace Williamson Willett, 2130 Lincoln Park West, yesterday told the hardships of attempting to live on $918 a month, and explained to Judge Rudolph Desort of the Superior court why she needs $25,000 a year from her husband, Howard L. Willett, head of a trucking company. Mrs. Willett was the first witness in her suit for separate maintenance.

The $918 a month, allowed her by her husband since he left her on Jan. 6, 1933, has been insufficient to meet her needs, Mrs. Willett testified. So pinched for funds has she been, in fact, that she was forced to ride in street cars or in buses, not being able to afford an automobile or chauffeur, she declared.

Unable to Entertain.

She has been unable to entertain in the lavish fashion she and Mr. Willett were accustomed to in their penthouse home, in which she now resides, she said. She has been unable to have boxes at the opera, attend more than "two or three plays a year," pay $150 or $200 for a gown as she used to do, or even pay for her "sitting" in the Fourth Presbyterian church.

"For 10 years I have had a sitting in the Fourth Presbyterian church," she testified, turning toward Judge Desort. "And now I cannot even pay for it."

"Do you have to stand?" inquired Judge Desort.

Questioned by Attorney Benjamin Davis, one of her attorneys, she was asked if it was a fact that she was now in debt.

Sells Block of Stock.

"I'm in debt $2,500, despite selling a block of stock for $700," she replied. "The last three months I've run behind in my rent and grocery bills because I had to pay out lawyers' fees——"

"But not to me, Mrs. Willett," Attorney Davis interrupted.

This was the only allusion by inference or otherwise to the $1,000,000 alienation suit on behalf of Mrs. Willett pending against Mrs. Mary Cave Hall, a wealthy widow living at 5490 South Shore drive. It was filed in February, 1933, and charges that Mrs. Hall stole Mr. Willett's love and affections from his wife. Mrs. Willett is represented by other counsel in the alienation suit.

EXPLORERS' SHIP, CHICAGOANS ON BOARD, GROUNDS

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—The 330-ton auxiliary schooner Uvira, with a party of 36 amateur explorers bound for Central American waters aboard, was grounded tonight off Ambrose hannel at the entrance to the harbor.

Although a coast guard cutter was standing by, the yacht wirelessed there was no danger. A coast guard cutter pulled the Uvira free after an hour's effort. The schooner will return to Brooklyn to see if repairs are needed.

The party, headed by Jackson K. Dering of Chicago, sailed from Brooklyn tonight on the first lap of a proposed six month cruise in the Caribbean and Pacific.

Others with the expedition are Howard C. Kresge of Detroit, Mich., son of the chain store owner; William T. Barbour Jr., also of Detroit; Mrs. Dering, Miss Peggy Howse of Chicago, Norman Norse of Evanston, Ill., and Jay Rescher, photographer of undersea scenes.

GEMS AND RINGS VALUED AT $10,000 TAKEN IN HOLDUP

Unset diamonds and rings valued at between $10,000 and $15,000 were stolen last night in a robbery of the Loftis Brothers jewelry store at 840 South Halsted street.

Six men committed the crime. Two of them wore horn-rimmed spectacles and were armed. A third carried a large sack. The others remained in the background. Rushing into the store, the gunmen forced Harry Collier, 601 Home avenue, Oak Park, the manager, and Frank Orzeck, 1070 North Paulina street, and George J. King, 1453 Warner avenue, clerks, to one side.

Then the bandit leader smashed the front of a 10 foot glass display case. The man with the sack then emptied twenty trays of unset stones into the sack and added the contents of three trays of rings. As the gunmen were leaving one of them paused to admire a dainty woman's wrist watch in a front showcase. He smashed the glass with his gun and took the watch.

Mrs. Samuel Insull Jr. Undergoes an Operation

Mrs. Samuel Insull Jr. was reported recovering last night from a major operation for a kidney ailment which was performed earlier in the day at St. Luke's hospital, where she has been under treatment and observation since Jan. 26. The operation was decided upon after a consultation of her family physician, Dr. Arthur Elliott, and Dr. Louis Schmidt, noted specialist. After the operation Dr. Elliott described Mrs. Insull's condition as fair and said that she was getting along as well as might be expected.

Act to Trap Gang as Cash Frees Bremer

[Copyright, 1934: By the Associated Press.]

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Freedom, bought and paid for with a fortune in money was Edward G. Bremer's again today when he returned from 22 days in a kidnapers' lair, wounded and exhausted.

The full $200,000 ransom, $85,000 in $5 bills and the rest in $10 bills, was delivered Tuesday night by Walter Magee, after a hitch in previous plans for payment had thwarted arrangements, arousing fresh anxiety among the family that Bremer might never return.

During his captivity Bremer was kept in a dark room with guards, working in relays of two, constantly sitting behind him night and day, he said. He was cautioned not to look around on pain of death. Judging from the number of voices he heard while he was a prisoner, Bremer believes there were ten or twelve men in the gang.

Intermediary Sworn to Secrecy.

Magee, wealthy contractor friend, who received the first ransom note Jan. 17, when the banker was seized, was sworn to secrecy and would not reveal details of the ransom payment.

It was learned however, that sometime prior to last Saturday Magee, received instructions from the gang. He was to take a bus from St. Paul at a specified hour, go to a certain Des Moines, Ia., hotel and register under as assumed name, having in his possession, the money. The gang supplied the name he was to use.

There he was told to await further word. However, when Magee received the communication, the money was under a time lock in a St. Paul bank and the plan could not be carried out.

Several days passed without further signs from the captors, prompting the father of the kidnaped banker to issue his appeal and offer of last Saturday for three days and three nights in which to negotiate secretly without police interference.

Carries Money with Him.

Final instructions followed almost immediately. These stipulated Magee was to go to a specified corner in St. Paul, where an automobile would be parked. Before entering it, he was to take a note from the pocket of the car, stand with his back to the curb, and read it.

Magee followed instructions, carrying the money with him. The note was replaced in the pocket and the intermediary then drove down state highway No. 1 through Farmington and Northfield, thence to Faribault from there he took a cross road out driving at the rate of 15 miles an hour.

During this ride Magee, contact man for the Bremers, espied four flashes of light from an automobile. This was the signal for him to stop, place the money on the ground, then reënter his automobile and drive on.

Note Signed by Victim's Father.

With the money was a note signed by the kidnap victim's father. These were the arrangements carried out for the release of the banker.

It was reported tonight that Dr. H. T. Nippert, friend of the family, had been ordered to accompany the gang to the hideout to treat Bremer. The orders to Nippert were in the envelope containing three notes slipped under his door the night of Jan. 20 when a milk bottle was hurled through the front door glass. One of the notes was for the doctor, and one each for Magee and Adolph Bremer.

Dr. Nippert himself refused to confirm the report, which came from an unidentified member of his family. Bremer had been severely injured from the blows of pistol butts wielded by the kidnapers when they invaded his automobile and seized him.

What Nippert's instructions were

SANKEY MAKES NECKTIE NOOSE, LEAPS OFF BED

The confessed abductor of Charles Boettcher II. of Denver and Haskell Bohn of St. Paul, hanged himself with two of his own necktie after fooling his guards, who had watched him day and night since he had been lodged in the South Dakota prison by federal authorities for safekeeping until his trial.

With him died the government's possible hope of solution of the Lindbergh baby kidnaping, a crime of which Sankey had been accused, but which he denied.

Jumps Off Cell Cot.

Standing on his cell cot, the notorious kidnaper, gambler, and bootlegger tied the neckties to a crossbar which supported the vertical bars of the cell and stepped off.

Sankey was confined in a special section of the penitentiary, just behind the deputy warden's office. He was in custody of the United States marshal and was guarded by two deputy marshals.

The two guards, A. B. Neely and Frank Gilmore, talked to Sankey at 6:02 p. m., according to Ed Barron, United States district attorney, and then Gordon Alcorn, Sankey's right hand man in the Boettcher kidnaping, who was in a cell near Sankey, asked Neely to get him some headache tablets.

Gags Self with Handkerchief.

When he returned five minutes later Sankey's body was hanging from the crossbar. The two guards rushed to unlock the cell door and cut down the body, but all efforts to revive the dead desperado failed.

Sankey had sealed his lips with a handkerchief, stuffed into his mouth, to prevent guards from hearing sounds of strangulation. He was dressed in trousers, shirt, vest, and coat. Prisoners facing trial are not required to don regulation prison garb, which does not include neckties. There was nothing in his pockets.

Whether Alcorn's request for the headache tablets was a ruse to permit Sankey's self-destruction is not known. It is not believed, however, that he knew anything about Sankey's plan to end his life.

Singularly, Sankey died less than 24 hours after the return, as the result of ransom payment, of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker. Sankey had denied any participation in Bremer's kidnaping when questioned by federal agents.

Separated by Only One Cell.

While Neely stepped to the front door of the cell house to ask for aspirin Gilmore stood in the corridor about eight feet away from Sankey's cell. Only one cell separated Sankey from the cell occupied by Alcorn.

This is Gilmore's story:

"When Neely and the night captain returned from the deputy warden's office with the aspirin we all stood talking for a while in the corridor. Finally Neely started to take the aspirin to Alcorn. When he passed Sankey's cell he shouted: 'Hurry up! Come here!'

"We did and found Sankey hanging by two silk neckties. We quickly unlocked the door, but had no idea he was dead. He groaned when I cut him down. While Neely and I worked over him the night captain ran to call the prison physician. When the night captain came back, about ten minutes later, he pronounced him dead. The doctor came in about half an hour."

Alcorn Frightened by Suicide.

Gilmore said it wasn't more than five minutes after Neely left when he returned with the aspirin. Gilmore said Alcorn couldn't tell from his cell what was happening in Sankey's, and after he was told "he acted scared to death. He was too much frightened to say anything."

Gilmore said Sankey appeared more cheerful Thursday than ever before and asked if he could see his wife before he went to Leavenworth. Mrs. Sankey was acquitted at St. Paul on charges of kidnaping Bohn.

After this acquittal she was rearrested on an indictment for conspiracy in the Boettcher case and released on bond. Arrested again after Sankey's capture, she is in the county jail here.

Arrested Jan. 31 in a north side

barber shop in Chicago, Sankey confessed collection of $60,000 ransom for Boettcher and $12,000 for Bohn. When he was arrested he told Sergt. Tom Curtin, a Chicago policeman, who placed a pistol at his head as he was being shaved, that he wished he had made a break for freedom and been killed. Poison tablets were found in his possession.

Sankey waived removal and was brought here to face charges of kidnaping for ransom and conspiracy to kidnap for ransom under the so-called Lindbergh law. Boettcher had told of being held on Sankey's Gann Valley ranch.

Although the exact date of Sankey's trial had not been set on the Boettcher charge, he was expected to plead guilty. Attorneys said Sankey's suicide probably will delay Alcorn's arraignment. Alcorn, told of his chief's death, said he can "take it" and prefers his chances in court to suicide.

Long Lindbergh Suspect.

Federal officials long had suspected Sankey of engineering the Lindbergh baby kidnaping, but, despite lengthy grilling in Chicago after his seizure, they announced they had been unable to connect him with the case.

However, Michael Kinkead, county attorney of Ramsay county, Minn., who had charge of the Bohn investigation, declared that, in a search of the Sankey ranch, he discovered a complete account of the Lindbergh kidnaping. An alleged plot to kidnap Jack Dempsey and Babe Ruth also was credited to Sankey by Kinkead.

It was said inside the prison that Sankey, who had long disported himself at gambling resorts and honky-tonks on the gains of his many crimes, found it extremely difficult to resign himself to prison solitude. He had only served one day in prison up to the time of his arrest in Chicago.

Morose for Days.

It was said he had appeared morose and gloomy as early as last Saturday. Many could not understand prison officials' surprise at his suicide. Marshall Henry C. W. Laubenheimer at Chicago declared he had confidently predicted such an attempt and had refused to allow handcuffs to be used when Sankey was transported here for "fear he would beat his brains out with them."

Fern Sankey, the kidnaper's wife, when informed by her attorney tonight of his scuicide, screamed hysterically for an hour in her cell. Finally she was placed under the care of a physician and nurse.

Bring Children Today.

The Sankeys' two children, Ethel, 15 years old, and Orville, 6, were expected here tomorrow morning. A neighbor near the Sankey turkey ranch at Gann Valley is bringing the children. It was expected that they would be permitted to see their mother immediately after they arrive.

Since Sankey's arrival here Friday his wife has been looking forward to seeing him.

RADIO EMPLOYE WHO READ NEWS OF LONG STABBED

Monroe, La., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Jack Keasler, 26 year old announcer for radio station KMLB of Monroe, was stabbed in the chest tonight by an unidentified man. Three anonymous telephone calls received at the station recently threatened Keasler for broadcasting news items concerning Senator Huey P. Long.

Keasler said two men, one sitting in a car and the other standing on the sidewalk, accosted him as he was leaving the building and one stabbed him.

A man first telephoned the radio station several days ago shortly after Keasler had read a news story relating how Senator Long had clashed with a Washington newspaper man. The second call came Monday when Keasler read a story about Long's troubles, and the third was received this morning just before the station's regular news broadcast.

MILK DRIVERS' UNION REJECTS PAY CUT OF $5

Members of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union, at a meeting last night in Carmen's hall, Van Buren street and Ashland avenue, voted unanimously to reject a proposal that they accept a cut of $5 in their weekly pay. The present union scale is $40 a week.

The offer of the reduced wage was made to representatives of the drivers several days ago by the Chicago milk distributing companies. At the time the union negotiators, including Robert G. Fitchie, president, and Steve Sumner, treasurer of the organization, asserted they would not recommend its acceptance.

ASSAIL $681,339 FEE CLAIMS FILED IN SECURITY CASE

Bond and Mortgage Co. Hearing Feb. 14.

Thousands of creditors of the American Bond and Mortgage company, bankrupt real estate investment house, have been studying notices received through the mails announcing that fees totaling $681,339 will be claimed at a hearing before Referee Garfield Charles on Feb. 14.

The amazement of these creditors, as expressed in several hundred indignant complaints to the congressional committee now investigating receiverships and bankruptcies, was inspired by the report of the trustee in the American Bond and Mortgage case showing that total collections have been only $1,845,124, with disbursements of $27,851.16, leaving a net cash balance of $1,817,273. Of this sum the lawyers, receivers, and auditors are asking almost 40 per cent.

Ten Cents on Dollar Prospect.

There have been no previous allowances of fees, but neither have there been any dividends to the creditors, whose claims, exclusive of those disallowed by the court, aggregate some $10,000,000. The fees claimed, if allowed, would leave the creditors about 10 cents on the dollar.

The administration of the American Bond and Mortgage company's affairs, in both equity and bankruptcy proceedings, will be one of the subjects of the congressional committee's inquiry when it resumes public hearings here toward the end of this month. The committee's investigator, George F. Cummerow, is said to have made a thorough study of the case, and the congressmen are expected to direct their inquiry with a view to determining whether any collusion was practiced in bringing the equity and bankruptcy suits.

The American Bond and Mortgage company, with headquarters in Chicago and offices in the principal cities of the United States, distributed upward of $250,000,000 in real estate securities. Some of its projects included the fashionable Mayflower hotel in Washington, the Park Central and the Libby hotels in New York, the Whitehall in Palm Beach, and the Albion Shore and Graemere hotels and various apartment buildings in Chicago.

Four officials of the defunct concern, including President William J. Moore, were convicted in a Pittsburgh federal court of using the mails to defraud. Two months later their petition for a new trial was granted, the court ruling that the evidence presented against the four defendants was wholly circumstantial.

By far the largest item in the list of applications for fees is $407,504, submitted by the New York law firm of McLaughlin & Stern, which also asks expenses of $80,000. However, it is understood that this claim will not be the target of the most serious objections, for the services of McLaughlin & Stern have covered a period of five years, including prolonged foreclosure and condemnation litigation against the Libby hotel, done on a contingent contract basis prior to the receivership. Through this litigation more than $1,000,000 was recovered for the estate.

Claim Scaled Down.

McLaughlin & Stern represented the company and Charles Evans Hughes Jr., son of the chief justice of the United States Supreme court, as ancillary receiver in New York. Mr. Hughes' application for compensation, which appears modest in the light of some of the other requests and the general practice in Chicago, calls for only $15,000. Despite the fact that the claim of McLaughlin & Stern was based upon a contingent contract entered into prior to the receivership, Mr. Hughes is said to have scaled down their percentage from 50 to 45 (over and above mortgages and other liens), with a saving to the estate of $40,000.

These mitigating circumstances notwithstanding, Attorney Louis Cohen, counsel for Frank M. McKey, trustee in bankruptcy for the defunct concern, has announced that he will object to the amount of each and every application.

The other applications for fees follow:

Crosby & Murphy, certified public accountants	$ 1,326
George E. Beneman, for legal services rendered at Washington, D. C.	2,500
Lynn, Woodworth & Evarts, attorneys at Boston	250
Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin, for legal services in connection with tax litigation	7,500
Halle, Haber & Berick, Cleveland attorneys	100
Verrill, Hale, Booth & Ives, Portland, Me.	2,400
Expenses	137
Milburn & Semmes, Detroit, Mich. [expenses]	49
Palmer, Dodge, Barstow & Wilkins, Boston	250
Chicago Title and Trust company and Arthur W. Draper, co-receivers of American Bond and Mortgage company [The receivers ask "a reasonable amount to be fixed by the court."]
Kirkland, Fleming Green & Martin, attorneys for Chicago Title and Trust company and Arthur W. Draper	27,500
Defrees, Buckingham, Jones & Hoffman, associate counsel for the receivers	40,000
Barrow, Wade & Guthrie, auditing services	1,326
Townley, Wilde, Campbell & Clark, solicitors for complainant in equity proceedings	1,250
White & Hawxhurst, attorneys for petitioning creditors in involuntary proceedings	35,000
Jackson, Fuller, Nash & Brophy, attorneys for complainant in ancillary equity proceedings	3,500
Charles E. Hughes Jr., ancillary receiver	15,000
Cook, Nathan & Lehman, attorneys for Charles E. Hughes as ancillary receiver	50,000
Expenses	1,668
McLaughlin & Stern, attorneys for American Bond and Mortgage company, and Charles E. Hughes Jr., for services in condemnation litigation	407,504
Expenses	80,184
George J. Schorr, Philadelphia attorney	3,000

No Specified Claim.

No specified amount is requested by the Chicago Title and Trust company and Arthur W. Draper as co-receivers of the company, but it was recalled yesterday that in the equity proceeding before Federal Judge Wilkerson Draper filed a claim for $60,000. Presumably the Title and Trust company would have expected a like amount, but it merely applied for "a reasonable fee, to be fixed by the court." These applications were later withdrawn, and both receivers are now submitting the matter to Referee Charles, before whom all claims, both in equity and bankruptcy, are pending. If they still expected $60,000 each the total claims for fees and expenses would be boosted $120,000, to an aggregate of $801,339.

It will also be noted from the tabulation that two law firms representing the Chicago Title and Trust company are claiming fees totaling $67,500, in addition to a claim of $7,500 for services in tax litigation, as the representatives of the Chicago receivers.

Only One Firm in New York Case.

Aside from the condemnation litigation, only one law firm, with a claim of $50,000, represented the ancillary receiver in New York, where a total of $1,340,000 of the $1,845,124 in collections was raised.

The claim of White & Hawxhurst for a $35,000 fee is for services rendered in representing the petitioning creditors in involuntary bankruptcy proceedings filed on May 21, 1931, the day on which the petition in equity was filed. The records show that no action was taken on this petition and that the company was finally thrown into bankruptcy on a voluntary petition filed Sept. 5, 1931.

PANAMANIANS HECKLE U. OF C. PROFESSOR ON U. S. OWNED RAILROAD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PANAMA CITY, Feb. 8.—Panama Rotarians heckled Prof. Marshall E. Dimock of the University of Chicago today in protest against the United States owned Panama railroad's treatment of local business. Prof. Dimock, who is here investigating the railroad's activities for Secretary of War Dern, was a Rotary club guest.

While it was claimed the railroad is preventing Panama's long cherished trans-isthmian highway and that its Canal Zone commissaries are competing unfairly with Panama stores, the main onslaught was against freight and passenger rates. It was charged that rates are cut in favor of Canal Zone employés and service men.

Ramon Benedetti, vice president of the Panama Chamber of Commerce, claimed the railroad gives the canal commissaries an 80 per cent freight reduction, giving them an unfair advantage over Panamanian business men.

ACT TO ROUND UP GANG AS RANSOM FREES BREMER

U. S. Agents Direct Hunt for Kidnapers.

was not revealed. He was blindfolded after meeting the kidnapers by prearrangement, and taken on a night automobile ride of about five hours before the hideout was reached.

The note accompanying the money read:

"To the parties holding Edward:

"I have done my part and kept my word 100 per cent as I said I would. This money is not marked and you have the full amount asked for. Now, boys, I am counting on your honor. Be sports and do the square thing and turn Ed loose immediately and tell him to come first to my home.

"[Signed] Adolph Bremer."

U. S. Agents Go Into Action.

Law enforcement agencies, headed by the federal department of justice, already had launched an intensive manhunt, sifting possible leads supplied by M. F. Kinkead, Ramsey county attorney, and George F. Sullivan, United States attorney here.

A belief that the 37 year old owner and president of the Commercial State bank might have been held either in Sioux City, Iowa, or Kansas City, was advanced by Kinkead and Sullivan.

The banker appeared at his father's home last night after being pushed from a small sedan bearing three of the gang at or near Rochester, Minn., 85 miles south of here, about 1 p. m., yesterday. Upon entering a bus depot in Rochester, he learned he had missed the last bus for the Twin Cities but took a train to Owatonna, where he caught it, arriving here about mid-night and going directly to his father's home.

Ordered to Bed by Doctor.

Unshaven, very nervous, and with healed wounds about his head where two of the kidnapers slugged him with pistols when they seized him, Bremer was ordered to bed by Dr. Joseph Sprafka, a friend, summoned while authorities questioned the victim.

Dr. Sprafka said Bremer was "very, very nervous" but wounds on his head virtually were healed. They were suffered, Bremer related, when two of the kidnapers invaded his automobile after he had stopped at a street intersection en route to his office Jan. 17.

Ten or more men were in the gang which seized him shortly after he had left his eight year old daughter, Betty, at the exclusive Summit Girls school, Bremer believes. He told this to police and federal investigators who questioned him at the home of his father, Adolph, personal friend of President Roosevelt.

When one man sought to enter the car, the banker tried to get out of the other door, but he was met with another of the gang wielding a pistol. Both got in beside him and slugged him on the head simultaneously.

His car, profusely blodd splotched, was found abandoned in an outlying residential district shortly after Magee, a contractor, had received the anonymous telephone call instructing him to pick up a ransom note on the rear steps of his office.

Douglas Street, 33, at Rochester, told police he saw two well dressed men at Lewiston, Minn., about 2 a. m., today riding in an automobile with New York license plates. Lewiston is 37 miles from Rochester where Bremer was freed.

Gov. Floyd Olson announced a conference tomorrow of all law enforcement officials in the state at his office to lay plans for "crushing the menace of kidnaping."

As bits of Bremer's experience leaked out, reporters sought unsuccessfully to gain entrance to the Bremer home.

Elder Bremer Thanks Roosevelt.

Adolph Bremer issued a statement thanking President Roosevelt and Gov. Floyd B. Olson and others for the interest they had shown. He prayed "that other fathers and mothers will be spared the agony of a similar ordeal," and said "the hideous hours of suspense have been almost unbearable for all of us."

After receiving the notes through Dr. Nippert, the family insisted repeatedly no communication had been received from the gang. The captors' silence finally prompted Adolph Bremer to issue a statement last Saturday begging for return of his son, and pledging his word of honor that any contact would be kept secret from police. He gave the gang three days and three nights in which to opan negotiations without outside interference. In denying yesterday noon that contact had been established, Bremer's father announced he was extending the time of grace until midnight today.

DILLINGER TO BE ARRAIGNED AS SLAYER TODAY

Officials of Lake county, Indiana, prepared yesterday for arraignment of the desperado, John Dillinger, this morning on the charge of murdering Policeman William P. O'Malley of East Chicago in a bank robbery.

Dillinger, in the face of positive identification by ten witnesses, has maintained that he was in Florida on Jan. 15 when robbers, leaving the First National bank of East Chicago after a $20,000 holdup, shot and killed the policeman.

While Prosecutor Robert G. Estill refused to confirm the report, officials were said to have information that Dillinger lived in an East Chicago apartment for several weeks before the bank robbery.

Dillinger, accompanied by guards armed with machine and riot guns, will be taken into the Criminal court of Judge William J. Murray in Crown Point for arraignment on the murder charge at 9 o'clock this morning. The guards have been instructed to shoot to kill if any attempt is made by friends of the gangster to rescue him.

After the criminal arraignment the hoodlum will be taken to the Circuit court of Judge T. Joseph Sullivan for hearing on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed in his behalf. Dillinger's attorney, Joseph Ryan, will attack the validity of the indictment on which Dillinger is to be tried.

BANDITS FORCE 7 VICTIMS INTO VAULT; GET $1,425

Four well dressed bandits, three armed with shotguns, took $1,425 in cash, checks, and merchandise yesterday in a daring robbery of the Wholesale Cigar company, 2020 Milwaukee avenue.

Miss Miriam Shapiro, 2055 Pierce avenue, stenographer; Ralph Grossman, owner, and Ray Kerr, 2018 Milwaukee avenue, clerk, and four unidentified customers were threatened by the robbers and forced into a large vault.

Then the bandits leisurely searched the premises. They carried $325 worth of cigars and cigarets outside to their car and pocketed $400 in cash and $200 in checks.

OWNER PROMISES COURT HE WILL MOVE SHOWBOAT

Owners of the showboat Dixiana, which has been tied up at a dock on the south side of the river between Dearborn and Clark streets, promised Municipal Judge William E. Helander yesterday that it would be towed to another wharf within 48 hours. Erwin A. Myers, one of the owners of the boat, appeared in court on a charge of having failed to obtain a city license to anchor the boat in the river.

City authorities asked for the removal of the boat charging that her presence was interfering with the dumping of snow. When Meyers promised to have the ship moved the case against him was continued to Feb. 15.

Explains Why She Needs $25,000 a Year.

Husband Makes Offer.

Mrs. Willett testified that in September, 1932, Willett offered to put all his securities, his stock in the trucking company bearing his name, and one-third of his salary as president of the company, in trust for her, which he explained would net her $23,000 a year.

On cross-examination by Attorney Reeve, however, she was asked if Willett made that offer in the event of her bringing suit for separate maintenance, or if it were in the event of suit for divorce.

"Divorce, Mr. Reeve," she answered slowly, with a fixed smile. "But what's the difference? I don't see the difference."

Mrs. Willett on direct testimony said that she married Willett Jan. 23, 1909, in Chicago, and that they lived together until he deserted her. The younger of their two children is Howard Jr. A daughter, she said, "is now Mrs. Samuel G. Taylor III."

"Throughout our marriage we always lived in a beautiful apartment," she testified. "In 1927 we built a penthouse. Mr. Willett estimated it cost $100,000. We always had two servants, a cleaning woman, a laundress twice a week, and every time we entertained we had a cateress—that was $12 an evening—and five or six extra maids. Extra maid service amounted to $100 or $125 a month. Our grocery bills were from $300 to $500 a month."

Now It's Another S. y.

But now, on $918, it is another story, according to Mrs. Willett. Questions put by her attorney and her answers included:

ATTORNEY DAVIS.—What about traveling? A.—We were very fond of traveling. We always took one beautiful trip a year. We took the children and our car and motored through Europe in 1930. Mr. Willett spent $28,000 on that trip. In 1932 we went to Mexico. He spent only about $1,000 on that trip.

Q.—Tell the court if you are economizing now. Do you have any servants? A.—I employ only two, a husband and his wife. It's more economical than having one servant and always having extra ones in. The man cleans shoes, works in the garden, and so on.

Q.—Do you have a very fine garden? A.—In 1933 we made a roof garden, which made our penthouse really a summer home.

Q.—How much do you need to maintain your garden? A.—From $500 to $700 a year for the garden. It's open for four months. I need painting and new flowers each year.

JUDGE DESORT.—You paint your garden? A.—O, yes, your honor, it's a cement, fireproof garden.

When Attorney Davis asked Mrs. Willett about what she would need for clothing, she settled back with an expression of reflective contentment.

"Mr. Willett always liked to see me well dressed," she said, with her frequent smile. "From the earliest days of our marriage I spent from $200 to $250 for a gown. I always spent $3,000 a year on my wardrobe, which included a fur coat once in four years."

Wears Blue Tailored Suit.

She was dressed for her court appearance in a blue tailored suit with silver buttons, a pique blouse of wide green and white stripes and a dark blue tailored hat which revealed her mannish hair cut. She wore high heeled suede slippers and thin chiffon hose with this outfit, and carried white gloves.

Since she has been receiving only $918 a month, she has spent only $200 of that on herself and her clothes and $50 of it on philanthropy, she said. Moreover, she has had to do without the parties she used to give.

Cross-examined by Attorney Reeve, Mrs. Willett lost none of her calm. When he asked her if she expected to be given $25,000 a year, while Willett himself had $6,000 for himself, she said: "Well, I think it very foolish of him not to come home."

ATTORNEY REEVE: Referring to your testimony on direct examination, you say you need $3,000 for a wardrobe. Is that necessary? A.—O, it's what he always gave me.

Q.—And is $2,000 necessary for transportation? A.—I don't think its consistent for Mr. Willett's wife to ride on street cars.

Q.—And you say you need $2,500 for traveling expenses. Why do you need that much? A.—That's what he offered me for a Caribbean cruise in the spring of 1932.

Q.—And is $1,000 necessary for recreation? A.—O, yes. I have to have that much for theater tickets, parties for my children, books and opera.

JUDGE DESORT: Is the opera still here? I thought Insull had departed.

Supports Her Brother.

Q.—You have $2,000 listed for church and philanthropy. A.—Yes. I think every one ought to give one-tenth of his income to philanthropy. At present I'm supporting my brother, his wife and children.

Q.—For what do you want $2,500 as an emergency fund? A.—Any emergency—lawyers' fees, for instance. Also for security. This hearing aid cost $143. [She referred to a device she held behind her right ear, necessitated, she said, by a recent accident.]

She declared that she usually had a house guest, and that last winter she had had her sister live with her "to protect me from detectives who were always watching me."

ATTORNEY REEVE: Couldn't you economize if you went to live in a first class hotel? MRS. WILLETT: I wouldn't think of it. I intend to stay right in my home.

At one point in the cros-examination Attorney Reeve wearily asked his apparently tireless witness: "By the way, did you know there was a depression on in 1932?"

To which she replied cheerily: "O, yes, I did."

ATTORNEY REEVE: And when you wanted to build this roof garden, didn't your husband tell you they were about to sell him out in the market? A.—No, Mr. Reeve, he did not. You must realize that Mr. Willett never discussed his business matters with me. He never complained when he lost money. He was wonderful that way. He did suggest we economize on the table, and we did. You'd be surprised. We cut out olives and celery and desserts, except for ice cream for him.

Q.—Do you remember that that roof garden cost $7,500? A.—O, no, it cost $3,500. It looks like $25,000, though.

Q.—You gave very large parties there, didn't you? A.—Yes. The first we had was for Mr. Willett's employés, who'd helped build the garden. Then I gave parties for my children there. And benefits.

Q.—What do you mean, benefits? A.—Such as the Infants' Welfare group [of the Chicago Woman's club] gave there last May. You see, I can't give philanthropy, but I can open my beautiful garden so that organizations like that can make a few hundred dollars.

Q.—Didn't you serve anything? A.—The Infant Welfare paid for the food. They fed 250 persons for $23, which was pretty good.

Attorney Reeve Perspires.

Attorney Reeve, perspiring and rattling papers with trembling hands as the inquiry progressed, while the witness remained sweetly cool, now said in a choked voice: Do you know that Mr. Willett lives in one room? A.—He had the bridal suite on the steamship France once when he sailed.

Q.—Well, he hasn't any bridal suites now, has he? A.—I don't know. I know he did live at the University club, and that he now lives at 333 North Michigan, and has a very magnificent room for which he pays $250 a month, I've heard. I don't know, as I've not been invited to visit him.

Q.—Do you know that as a matter of fact he pays $125 a month? A.—Mr. Willett is a good bargainer. I can well believe it of him.

Q.—Do you know that he gets along on $500 a month? A.—Mr. Reeve, I want Mr. Willett to live beautifully—and he always has—

ATTORNEY REEVE: He does live beautifully, on that.

MRS. WILLETT [questioning her attorney]: Does that include his parties?

ATTORNEY REEVE: It includes such parties as he has. Don't you know as a matter of fact that your husband lost between $400,000 and $500,000 in the last five years? A.—I suppose he has, but Mr. Willett is very clever at making and saving money.

Q.—Do you know what business he's in? A.—Yes. Transportation.

Q.—The trucking business? A.—[sweetly] Yes, exactly, trucking. And he's a very good business man.

At the conclusion of Attorney Reeve's cross-examination, Judge Desort adjourned the hearing to next Thursday. Willett is expected to testify during the hearing.

TREASURY HEAD MOVES TO OUST LAWYER CROOKS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. today started a housecleaning among crooked income tax lawyers practicing before the treasury department and its tax units.

Beside laying plans for new and higher standards which income tax lawyers must meet to appear before the treasury, Secretary Morgenthau shook up the departmental committee which disbars lawyers from treasury practice so that he may fill it with his own appointees.

Planning to start a special investigation next week of legal practices before the treasury, Secretary Morgenthau said he would like especially to inquire into the matter of lawyers bringing income tax rebate claims on behalf of clients with the agreement that the lawyer shall get as fee a certain percentage of the amount he wrings from the government.

May License Attorneys.

Secretary Morgenthau said that he was considering a plan of licenses which lawyers would have to renew each year in order to practice before the treasury. This system, he said, would give him the power to purge the list of cases where it was deemed desirable.

To help him in his new task Secretary Morgenthau is calling Charles C. Burlingham, former president of the New York City bar, to the treasury for consultation. At a conference beginning next week the secretary, Mr. Burlingham, Herman Oliphant, general counsel for the treasury, and Robert H. Jackson, new general counsel for the bureau of internal revenue, will endeavor to set up the new standards lawyers will be required to meet. Mr. Burlingham is volunteering his services.

System Is Revamped.

Preparing the way for stricter control over the list of lawyers allowed to appear before the treasury, Secretary Morgenthau issued an order revamping the system for naming the departmental committee which disbars lawyers.

Formerly certain bureaus in the department had to be given certain representation. Under the new order these restrictions are removed largely and the secretary is given the right to appoint at least two committee members from his own staff.

In the past lawyers were seldom disbarred from treasury practice unless convicted of some criminal act. About 34,000 lawyers have been granted treasury licenses. Lawyers appear before the bureau of internal revenue, the customs bureau, and the board of tax appeals.

Her Fourth Divorce Ends a World's Fair Romance

Mrs. Violet M. Entress, 32 years old, 8136 South Peoria street, got her fourth divorce yesterday. She appeared before Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort and charged Harvey Entrees, sales manager for a packing company, with cruelty. The suit was uncontested. Outside court Mrs. Entress said that she had been divorced for the first time ten years ago, and then remarried the co-respondent in the suit. Two years later she obtained her second divorce and remarried. Her third divorce came two years ago in Boston. She said that she met Entress, an old school mate, at the World's Fair last summer.

PLAN TO PUT VETS BACK ON PENSIONS PENDING APPEALS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—With the evident approval of President Roosevelt, administration leaders in the senate moved tonight to avoid a pro-veterans' revolt in congress that might strain the easy relations between the White House and capitol.

After a conference between the President and Senator Robinson, Senator Byrnes, Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, and Budget Director Douglas, Senator Robinson announced that legislation will be proposed by which presumptive cases cut from compensation by local reviewing boards will continue to receive pay, pending appeals before the board in Washington.

Senator Robinson announced further that an offer also would be made to write the President's regulation on hospitalization into law, thereby answering another demand of the veterans' group in the senate.

Administration officials, while admitting the concession, were inclined to minimize the importance of the proposed legislation from the standpoint of economy. It was pointed out that there would be no general or permanent restoration of presumptives to the compensation list, but merely the continuance of those who appeal, until their cases are finally adjudicated. It was estimated that the total cost of the compromise would be less than 10 millions.

CHICAGO RAISES ROOSEVELT FETE FUND OF $17,000

Approximately $17,000 was raised among Chicagoans on President Roosevelt's birthday, Jan. 30, for the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation for Sufferers of Infantile Paralysis. This was announced yesterday by Andrew Rebori, general director of the Chicago committee that sponsored the celebration.

The Auditorium theater party, the largest gathering in the city, brought in about $8,000, Mr. Rebori said. Next came approximately $3,100 from Goldblatt Bros., Inc., representing 5 per cent of the sales for that day in the company's stores. The Walgreen stores sent $2,100, the receipts of a percentage of the sales of ice cream, and insurance men raised in about $1,500, Mr. Rebori said.

LINDLEY SHEDS NEW LIGHT ON INSULL'S CRASH

Story of Abdication Told at Federal Hearing.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.

Samuel Insull's abdication from a utilities rule of 35 years and his adieu to the scene of his triumphs and his ruin were sketched in a few hundred words of casual testimony yesterday at the Insull "town meeting" in progress before Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley.

The story came from the lips of a banker, Abner J. Stilwell, with the judge himself adding a few details hitherto undisclosed to the somber picture of Insull's disgrace and exile.

A fortnight before the discredited utility magnate sloughed off the last of his 200 directorships and packed to go abroad attorneys informed the court of irregularities they had discovered involving Insull, Judge Lindley revealed.

Tells Insull He Must Resign.

He privately informed Insull he must immediately resign his court appointment, the judge added, but at Insull's plea allowed him a few days to unsnarl his vast affairs before letting out the news of his resignation and dishonor.

Mr. Stilwell, a vice president of the Continental Illinois National bank, said he was aware of irregular practices dictated by Insull ten months before that, adding that he distinguished between "Insull as financier and as utility operator."

The banker was questioned by Attorney Samuel A. Ettelson, whose charges of collusion between Insull and his bankers in the receivership of the Middle West Utilities company provoked Receiver Charles A. McCulloch to ask a general investigation.

Suggestion of Resignation.

"Who suggested Mr. Insull's resignation?" Ettelson asked, having previously established that Insull became co-receiver at the insistence of the banks after they denied him the post of general manager.

"It was on a Friday in June between 10:30 and 11 a. m.," the banker began the story of Insull's downfall.

"Bruce Johnstone," identifying one of the lawyers in the Middle West receivership, "came to my office in the bank. He stated that certain matters had been brought to his attention which showed an abuse of corporate authority by Mr. Insull in the Mississippi Valley Utilities Investment company, subsidiary of Middle West, prior to the receivership."

Abuse of Authority.

"Mr. Johnstone said the abuse of authority would probably require the filing of claims against Mr. Insull's bonds as former chairman of the board of Middle West. He said Mr. Insull's tenure as receiver of the company would probably have to be terminated and he be required to submit his resignation to Judge Lindley."

"Yes, what happened?"

"The co-receiver, Charles A. McCulloch, went to the Middle West office to acquaint him with the situation. On that same day Mr. Insull resigned as chairman of Commonwealth Edison, Peoples Gas Light and Coke, Public Service of Northern Illinois, and the other companies he was connected with. That was all."

But Ettelson was not finished.

"Was there not a subsequent meeting with Insull and the other receivers at which it was suggested that he not only resign but must leave the country?"

"There was no such meeting," the banker declared, adding, "I might say, however, that I knew months before the receivership that Mr. Insull had forced some of his companies to subscribe to syndicate agreements which seemed against the best interests of the companies."

"Yes," Mr. Ettelson leaped at the chance to emphasize Insull's subsequent nomination as receiver, "and notwithstanding that you——"

"I always distinguished between Mr. Insull's abilities as a utility operator and a utility financier," the banker finished his answer.

A quibble ensued over the propriety of Insull and the banks striving to control the Middle West receiverships, as against the interest of some hypothetical workingman who might have lost his life savings in Middle West notes purchased from the banks. Mr. Ettelson wanted to know if the banker thought such an investor might not have a right to institute a receivership of his own.

"My answer there would be that if I were in such a position it would be to my best interest to intrust my claim to the same parties who ultimately started the receivership," said Mr. Stilwell.

He was descending from the witness stand when Judge Lindley recalled him for questioning by the court. The judge's apparent purpose was to reveal in the record his own part in the last days of Samuel Insull's association with this utility empire, furthering the full airing of the Insull case which he had ordered.

Recalls Brokerage Deal.

"When Mr. Johnstone called on you did he tell you he had advised the court of the brokerage debt of Martin Insull some days before?" (The judge's allusion was to an abstraction of $300,000 cash from Mississippi Valley's treasury to protect Martin Insull's brokerage accounts, which abstraction resulted in their joint indictment by the state.)

"Why, no," the banker answered.

Q.—Did you know the court sent for Mr. Insull and discussed the matter with him in chambers and informed him he must retire—all this being ten days before publication of his resignation?"

Again the banker affirmed his lack of knowledge.

"Did you know the court then advised Insull of a willingness to give him a few days to get his affairs in order?"

The banker shook his head.

Co-Counsel For Middle West.

He directed the banker's attention to the firm of Schuyler, Weinfeld and Hennessey, co-counsel for Middle West, former attorneys for Insull and, according to Ettelson's contention, a party to the receivership collusion.

"Was there a time when you knew this firm as Schuyler, Ettelson, and Weinfeld?" Condon asked, bringing out Ettelson's partnership in the firm before he became corporation counsel.

"There was," the banker responded cheerfully.

"May I explain," Ettelson interposed suavely, "I was a partner in that firm—I admit it—but I'm trying my best to live it down."

"So are we," retorted his ex-partner, Charles Weinfeld, who is still with the firm. The dispute closed amidst general laughter.

The next witness was Mr. Stillwell's chief, James R. Leavell, president of the Continental. His recollections were of Samuel Insull as a master showman.

He was not a party to the "Black Friday" conference in New York where Owen Young, on behalf of all the bankers, told Insull a receivership was inevitable and Insull expressed a desire to die, Mr. Leavell said. He did meet Insull at a conference the following Sunday, however, he added.

"I was impressed at the magnificent way in which he tried to convey that he was still the master," said Mr. Leavell. "His version of the New York meeting to me was: 'I've decided we must go into receivership.'"

Attorney Henry I. Green of Urbana, whom Judge Lindley named as friend of the court to conduct the hearing, questioned Mr. Leavell further.

Q.—Did it ever occur to you that a receiver could be found in the Middle West organization who knew as much about the situation as Insull? A.—It didn't. There was Martin Insull, for instance, but he was never even considered.

Q.—Did it enter your mind that it might only be serving Insull's own interests to recommend the receivers you did? A.—Mr. Insull was the largest stockholder in Middle West. He could serve his own interests best by serving the interests of all. He could benefit selfishly only by outright fraud, and the co-receivers were there to guard against that.

So ended another chapter in the career of Samuel Insull. Mr. Leavell will be recalled for further examination today.

BANDIT GANG ROBS 115 MEN AND WOMEN IN HANDBOOK HOLDUP

There was much sorrow among some 115 men and women in the basement handbook at 1946 East 71st street last evening when six men entered the place, waving guns. The saddest of them, perhaps, was the unidentified player who had just collected a $1,000 bet. The bandits got it.

The robbers' leader knocked down a doorman and then emptied the cash drawer and got a sum estimated anywhere from $300 to $2,000. Next the pockets and purses of players were emptied. Many of the women lost rings, watches, and pins.

Among the victims, the police said, were Mrs. Rose Smith, 7000 Clyde avenue; George Graber, 6320 Ellis avenue; Winder B. Doddridge, his wife Nellie and their son Lee, all of 7121 Clyde avenue, and Mrs. N. O. Bourque, 6720 Paxton avenue. Mrs. Smith, wife of Dr. Louis D. Smith, 185 North Wabash avenue, lost $18 and a mink coat, valued at $1,500. Mrs. Bourque, wife of a doctor at 5 South Wabash avenue, lost a $1,900 ring. Others were robbed of smaller amounts. It was estimated that the loot might total $10,000.

ITALY REMODELS 4 OLD WARSHIPS IN NAVAL RACE

ROME, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Italy has started modernizing her heavy battle fleet, it was learned today, to bring the navy into what Italian experts consider a position of "not excessive inferiority," compared with other navies.

Work has already started on the old battleships Giulio Cesare and Conte di Cavour, each of 21,500 tons, and will be started soon on the Andre Doria and the Duilio, of 22,700 tons each. The four have been in reserve since retirement from active service in August, 1932.

"The return of these ships to service will so increase our defensive power as to place us in a position of not excessive inferiority," said a member of the budget committee.

U. S. REQUEST FOR MARTIN INSULL'S ARREST REFUSED

Canada Judge Balks New Move to Get Fugitive.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 8.—A new move to get Martin Insull, fugitive Chicago utilities financier, back to the United States was made here today by Damon C. Woods, an attaché of the United States consulate. He asked Justice H. T. Kelly for a warrant for Insull's arrest for alleged offenses under the federal bankruptcy law of the United States.

Justice Kelly refused to consider the application. He held that in such a case the United States authorities should be represented by Ontario counsel.

As the matter now stands, the Ontario Court of Appeal is deliberating on what judgment shall be rendered on the appeal made by Insull against the finding of Justice Charles Garrow, who upheld Justice Kingstone's finding that Insull should be extradited to Cook county, Illinois, to face state charges of larceny.

During the long legal battle which Insull has been waging to keep out of the United States, Illinois authorities had previously been represented by Edward Bayly, deputy attorney general of Ontario. Bayly died of a heart attack ten days ago.

Insull Stays On 'n Greece.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Feb. 8.—Samuel Insull may stay in Greece a long time. Unless the Greek government acts by Sunday, when the fugitive Chicago financier's American passport expires, the Greek government may be forced to tolerate him whether or no.

Insull, who is wanted in Chicago on fraud charges, has indicated he will not apply for a new passport. In this situation the Greek government could issue him a permit to travel out of the country, but if no country near Greece will allow him to enter, as seems to be the case, the status quo seems to be the only alternative. Premier Tsaldaris was still mulling the report made by government specialists on Insull's ability to travel. He gave no indication that his decision as to what to do with the fugitive would be forthcoming soon.

TAKE RONGETTI FROM JAIL CELL TO JOLIET TODAY

Dr. Amanie Rongetti, who has just completed a three year term in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, will probably be taken to Joliet prison today to start serving a term of one to fourteen years for manslaughter.

The convicted physician is in the county jail. He was to have been transferred to Joliet yesterday, but was held over because of delay in the preparation of the commitment papers.

Dr. Rongetti's manslaughter sentence grows out of the death of Miss Loretta Enders, on whom he performed an abortion several years ago. He was originally sentenced to the electric chair in the case, but was granted a new trial, which resulted in the lesser penalty.

REVEALS VISITS OF POLITICIANS TO CAPONE HOTEL

Witness Tells His Story in Racket Trial.

Two witnesses who testified last night in the racket conspiracy trial before Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan of the Criminal court connected defendants in the trial with Al Capone and members of his gang.

One of the witnesses also named as visitors to the Lexington hotel at 22d street and Michigan avenue during the period when Capone lived there a number of prominent politicians and "more than 100 policemen." This witness was Harold Johnson, manager of the hotel from 1929 to 1932.

Johnson, questioned by Assistant Prosecutor William B. Crawford, testified that he had seen James P. Gorman, labor commissioner of the Cleaning and Dyeing institute, which was set up with Dr. Benjamin M. Squires as dictator of the industry, in the lobby of the Lexington as many as ten times during Capone's period of residence there from February to October, 1931. Both Gorman and Dr. Squires are among the defendants in the racket conspiracy case.

Mentions Political Leaders.

With the announced purpose of testing his memory, Joseph B. Harrington, attorney for Gorman, asked Johnson whom else he had seen passing through the Lexington lobby during that period. Among those whom Johnson named were former Mayor Cermak, Cermak's predecessor in the mayor's office, and former State's Attorney John A. Swanson. In no case did he say that he had seen any of those mentioned go to Capone's quarters. The defense lawyer's examination of Johnson was as follows:

Q.—Did you ever see any public officials there? A.—Yes.

Q.—Ever see Isham Randolph there? A.—I don't know him.

Q.—Ever see Alexander Jamie? A.—I don't know him.

Q.—What other people did you see? A.—Lots of police officers.

Q.—How many, between February and October, 1931? A.—A hundred or more.

Sees Police Officials.

Q.—See any more than once? A.—Some of them. I saw the captain of the district three or four times.

Q.—Who was that? A.—Capt. Prendergast.

Q.—You mean Lieut. Tom Kelly, secretary to Capt. Gilbert? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who else? A.—Coleman and Bernacchi and Lieut. Bermingham.

Q.—What public officials of Chicago? A.—Dan Serrittella—he was city sealer—and his deputy, Harry Hochstein, and Phil D'Andrea [Capone's bodyguard].

Q.—Any others? A.—Former Mayor Cermak, his predecessor in the mayor's office, and former State's Attorney John A. Swanson.

Says Judge Visited Hotel.

Q.—Any judges? A.—One, to my knowledge.

Johnson did not name the judge, to the obvious disappointment of the courtroom spectators, who had leaned forward eagerly during his recital. The "Coleman and Bernacchi" he mentioned supposedly were Sergts. James W. Coleman and Peter M. Bernacchi, detailed to vice investigations in that district for years. Lieut. Edward Bermingham is assigned to the prosecuting staff in the trial.

Cross-examination of Johnson also brought out that at the direction of "one of Capone's men" he once went to one of the cleaning shops of Morris Becker in the neighborhood and collected $2,500 to pay Capone's rent. Becker, who testified for the prosecution, had denied that he ever gave Capone any money in return for the gang chief's protection of his cleaning and dyeing business from racketeers.

Identifies Gangster as Slugger.

A second link between defendants in the trial and the Capone gang was built around Louis Clementi, Capone gangster now in Joliet penitentiary. Jerry Weil, a driver for the International Cleaners and Dyers, 2810 South State street, whose troubles with the cleaning and dyeing institute and the labor unions in that industry have been described at length during the trial, identified Clementi as one of the men who slugged him in July, 1931.

Clementi later was sent to prison with his pal, Philip Mangano, for destroying some of the trucks of Weil's employer, Harry Alpert. A subsequent witness, Howard Valk, 2404 Lunt avenue, then testified that he had seen Clementi in the headquarters of local 712 of the Laundry and Dye House Drivers' union, and later in the company of Robert Rado, one of several officials of that union who are defendants.

Explains Trouble with Union.

That was in 1929, Valk said. On cross-examination he admitted that he had had trouble with the union, but asserted that he lost his union card for starting a retail cleaning shop and not for failure to pay dues, as Attorney William B. Rodriguez, counsel for the union officials, had intimated.

Valk testified that the window of his shop was broken in August, 1931, and that a week later, while he stood guard all night in the shop, he saw Charles Goldstein, defendant and business agent for the Retail Cleaners and Dyers' union, drive past several times in an automobile. He then described a meeting which he held with Dr. Squires a week before the window smashing.

"I asked him why the union had me on the pan," said Valk, "and he told me: 'You're an outlaw. I can't do anything for you.'"

Links Humphreys to Union.

Earlier in the day Special Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber moved a step nearer in his efforts to connect the racketeering activities of Murray Humphreys, now Public Enemy No. 1, with some of the defendants on trial. Humphreys is under indictment in the racket case, but is a fugitive. Humphreys' name also is frequently spelled "Humphries," but it is spelled "Humphreys" in the indictment.

Renewing arguments which were started on Tuesday, Prosecutor Raber won the right, over strenuous objections by the defense counsel, to read to the jury a single line from a ledger. The ledger was that of the Gibson company, motor car dealers of Oshkosh, Wis., and recorded the delivery on Oct. 2, 1931, of a $3,900 automobile to one M. L. Humphreys, designating the purchaser as the "Laundry Drivers' union."

Later Emil Denemark, automobile dealer at 3860 Ogden avenue, testified that Humphreys had traded in that car and another one six months later for a 16 cylinder car costing more than $6,000.

Prosecutor Raber still has to complete his picture of the transaction. It is his intention to trace the two checks which were given in payment for the car in Oshkosh through several banks and finally to the account of the Laundry and Dye House Drivers' union.

Fight Introduction of Evidence.

That the significance of the transaction did not escape defense counsel was shown by the bitter fight which they put up against the admission of the documentary evidence concerning it. In cross-examination of prosecution witnesses counsel for the union officials have sought to show that it was Humphreys and the Capone gang who were responsible for extortion and terrorism in the cleaning and dyeing industry. The automobile transaction, the prosecution will now contend, was proof that Humphreys and the union heads worked together and shared the profits of their efforts.

TO WED ACTOR

CARMELA PONSELLE.

Carmela Ponselle, opera singer, will arrive here this morning from Boston and will be met at the station by Francis X. Bushman, veteran actor, who is to marry Miss Ponselle soon. Before leaving Boston, Miss Ponselle confirmed reports that she would marry Bushman and said the date of the wedding would be announced after her meeting with Mr. Bushman here. On Wednesday Mr. Bushman obtained a license to wed Miss Ponselle.

ENGLAND GRANTS U. S. EXTRADITION DELAY ON FACTOR

Dispatches from Washington yesterday stated that the British government is willing to delay the extradition of John Factor, Chicago speculator, until the state's attorney's office has prosecuted the second trial of Roger Touhy and two associates charged with kidnaping Factor and exacting $70,000 ransom from him. Opening of the trial, necessitated by the failure of a jury in the first trial to agree, is set for next Tuesday.

Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador, conveyed to the state department his government's willingness to defer to the Illinois authorities.

Any cheer which Factor may have experienced from the extradition delay was countered by a message from Los Angeles late last night that his son, Melvin, 8 years old, is seriously ill there. The boy has been with relatives on the west coast since Factor's older son was kidnaped last year. On receipt of the news Factor arranged for his wife, Rella, to hurry to the stricken boy's side, and she left by United Air Lines plane from the Chicago airport shortly before 3 o'clock this morning. Factor saw her off. A squad of policemen guarded him. Factor said he wanted to go, too, but remained back because of the extradition difficulty.

ENDS LIFE WITH GAS.

George Havel, 24 years old, 3142 South Harding avenue, was found dead in his bedroom last night, a victim of gas poisoning. Police said he had attached a rubber hose to a gas jet, and inserted the other end of the hose in his mouth.

STICKNEY RULED BY CAPONE GANG, CHARGE IN COURT

Assertions that the Capone gang continues to control at least one wing of the village government in Stickney, a suburb southwest of Chicago, and operates roadhouses in the village as it did in 1925 when the gang actually chose the village officials, were made yesterday in the court of Circuit Judge William V. Brothers.

The charges were made by Attorney Willis Melville, counsel for Louis Golik, a resident of the village and a supporter of four village trustees who have been waging a "police war" with William Loeffler, president of the village board, and his police chief, Louis Marek. According to Attorney Melville's allegations, Loeffler is leagued with the gangsters.

Seen with Gang Manager.

The lawyer asserted that Loeffler has often been seen in the roadhouses in company with Louis Lipschultz, who, the lawyer said, is the Capone syndicate business manager for the village. He also alleged that Al Capone's brother, Ralph, who is in federal prison for income tax fraud, has made arrangements to live in Stickney when he is released the latter part of this month.

Attorney Melville presented a petition for an injunction to restrain Loeffler from interfering with James Kassel, who was appointed chief of police in May, 1933, by the four trustees.

Melville said that Loeffler had discharged Kassel and appointed Marek as chief, whereupon Kassel instituted quo warranto proceedings. Judge John F. Prystalski issued a writ of mandamus upholding the right of the board to appoint its own officials. The Appellate court upheld him last week.

Two Police Departments.

Since then Kassel has attempted to resume his post as chief of police, but Marek has refused to get out. Among the lawyers representing Loeffler was Joseph Lustfield, who became angered as Attorney Melville spoke to Judge Brothers. His face red, Lustfield elbowed his way to Melville's side and shouted: "If you weren't an old man and didn't wear glasses I'd bust you right on the nose. You are a liar."

Judge Brothers quelled the disturbance and then found Attorney Lustfield guilty of direct contempt of court. The judge then issued the injunction and fined Attorney Lustfield $25. When Lustfield apologized to Melville the judge remitted the fine.

CLEAR UP POINT OF DIFFERENCE IN LIQUOR RULES

State Commission Calls on Mayor Kelly.

A conference yesterday between Mayor Kelly and the members of the Illinois liquor commission disclosed that the commission and the city corporation counsel's office have been at variance on interpretation of one section of the new state liquor law. The corporation counsel's interpretation has already been adopted by the city council, which passed a Chicago liquor ordinance on Wednesday, but in view of the commission's opinion Mayor Kelly said he would recommend a change in the ordinance.

The commission's members, Chairman Arthur S. Smith of Bloomington and Col. A. A. Sprague and Milton J. Foreman of Chicago, visited the mayor's office for what they described as "purely a social call." The mayor called in Police Commissioner Allman, and the discussion that followed brought out the difference in interpretations.

Opinion of the Commission.

The commission holds, according to Chairman Smith, that liquor can be served without a meal in a restaurant only if the patron is seated at a table. If he drinks at a counter the customer must order a meal.

Corporation Counsel Sexton and his assistant, Joseph F. Grossman, interpreted the state law differently. They held that liquor could not be served in a restaurant, licensed as such, without a meal, but could be served in saloons without meals.

To put both types of establishments on the same footing so far as the sale of liquor is concerned the new city ordinance provides that restaurants selling liquor may operate under a liquor license alone, thus exempting them from the necessity of keeping a food dispenser's license.

Mayor to Ask Change.

When Mayor Kelly learned the commission's view yesterday, however, he said he would recommend to the aldermen that they abolish the present provision and require any establishment that sells both liquor and food to take out both liquor and food dispenser's licenses.

Regarding the entire problem of liquor control Mayor Kelly had this to say:

"When the hysteria is over liquor will be handled in a common sense way. I don't think people voted to buy drinks by the bottle or only with meals. Some think it's better to stand at a bar and drink than to sit down all day. I don't know whether a bar makes a saloon and I'm not set on any idea: I'm trying to learn.

"I'm interested only in seeing that we have good regulations, and we're going to have them. It is something which must be worked out with experience. I imagine that the decent liquor dealers will organize to protect themselves from those who try to make the business disreputable."

FREED OF PICKETING CHARGE.

THERMOMETERS REACH NEW LOWS ALL OVER N. Y.; BOTTOM AT —58

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Low temperature records were broken all over New York state today as the weather bureau confidently predicted a drop to zero or below for New York City by morning.

From what is well named Frost Point, the state forest rangers' school on the western slope of the Adirondacks, came the chilling word that five thermometers registered 58 below zero today. Albany reported great suffering from the cold, some upstate communities experiencing their eleventh day of a subzero wave.

Syracuse set an all-February mark of 21 below and Rochester's 20 below was the coldest in thirty years.

The most continuous cold snap reported was at St. Albans, Vt. Today was the forty-eighth on which the St. Albans temperature has been below the zero mark. It was 21 below today.

The Hudson opposite Manhattan is solidly frozen along its shores and huge cakes of ice jam the main stream. Guards at Sing Sing patrolled the river front picket fence with machine guns to prevent any prisoners trying to escape across the ice.

TREASURY PLANS REVENUE FORCE OF 1,600 AGENTS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—A new force of about 1,600 federal revenue agents to blot out moonshine booze and round up all the taxes due the government from legal liquor, will be set up soon in the treasury department, it was learned today.

Between 700 and 800 revenue sleuths are already harrassing moonshiners, having been put to that task when repeal lessened the duties of the treasury's industrial alcohol bureau.

Another 800 men probably will be taken over by the treasury to increase its army of "revenoors" as soon as the department appropriation bill is passed by congress, giving the treasury more money for salaries. Most of the new agents will be hired away from the bureau of prohibition in the department of justice.

As before prohibition, the treasury's force will be charged solely with ferreting out tax-dodging stills and peddlers of liquor. It will have nothing to do with protecting dry states from liquor shipments. This duty will remain in the hands of what is left of the old prohibition bureau.

At present the treasury's means of watching moonshiners is a makeshift. The department has at its disposal only the seven or eight hundred agents freed from the industrial alcohol bureau. On the other hand, the prohibition bureau had 1,200 agents with little to do since repeal.

To bridge over the period prior to the appropriation of money to the treasury for its own force, the prohibition agents have been deputized as revenue agents also.

Many of the men whom the treasury plans to hire probably will come from the existing prohibition force or from the list of prohibition agents who were laid off under the economy and repeal programs. The dry bureau was cut from 3,200 to 1,200 since the coming of the Roosevelt administration.

In the future, the treasury and the department of justice expect to keep a combined force of about 2,000 or slightly more men, most of them in the treasury.

Refuse to Indict Kin of Walker on Girl's Charge

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—The grand jury today refused to return an indictment on an assault charge made by a young woman last summer against William H. Walker Jr., nephew of the former mayor and son of Dr. William H. Walker. Miss Rose Rosenberg of Jersey City, night club hostess, accused Walker last August, when she was found semi-conscious in a hotel room.

FIX PENALTIES FOR VIOLATION OF NEW MILK PRICE

Federal injunctions, fines, and revoked licenses will be the penalties assessed upon any milk dealers found violating the new federal Agricultural Adjustment administration's agreement binding dealers to pay producers a minimum price for milk and cream, it was announced last night by Frank C. Baker, Chicago milk administrator, following a day's conference with George R. Wicker, chief of the licensing and enforcement section of the AAA in Washington.

Several milk dealers who violated the previous federal agreement have promised to observe the new price plan, Mr. Baker reported. The price to the milk producers under the AAA license must be 3.76 cents a quart for fluid milk and 2.7 cents per quart for milk from which cream is extracted.

Meantime additional cut rate milk depot windows were smashed early yesterday morning. Bricks were hurled at the depots operated by the West End dairy at 116 North Cicero avenue and W. S. Dates, at 4052 Kamerling avenue. Railroad spikes shot from rubber slings broke windows in the milk depots operated by Miss Marion Walker at 5112 West North avenue and Thomas Wright at 5509 Division street.

SMASH WINDOW; STEAL PANTS.

Thieves smashed a window of a building at 206 East Van Buren street early yesterday and carried out 2,000 pairs of pants valued at $4,000.

Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank, continued to improve and was "much stronger" yesterday, according to a report issued by Dr. William Cubbins, one of the attending physicians. The report was given out by the doctor after he examined Mr. Traylor in his home at 426 Barry avenue, where he has been suffering from pneumonia for nearly a month. "Mr. Traylor spent a restful night Wednesday and his long sleep left him much stronger today," Dr. Cubbins said.

In making Lucky Strike, we actually discard most of the tobacco plant—because we select only the center leaves—and for these center leaves farmers are paid a higher price. We do not use the top leaves—because those are under-developed. Nor the bottom leaves—because those are inferior in quality—tough, coarse and always sandy. But these center leaves are the mildest leaves, silky, smooth, tender. And so only these center leaves are used in making Luckies the fully packed cigarette—so round, so firm—free from loose ends. AUSTRIA RAIDS SOCIALISTS; NIPS TERRORISM PLOT

Soldiers and Police Find Guns and Bombs.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Feb. 8.—Carrying out Vice Chancellor Emil Fey's drastic fascistizing program, Vienna police, aided by soldiers, today raided Socialist party headquarters and announced the confiscation of 800 rifles, several machine guns, bombs, and enough high explosives to blow up the whole capital. Many Socialist leaders were arrested in the raids.

Late tonight it was reported that the Vienna city hall, long a Socialist stronghold, would be seized next by the police. Government of the city by a Fascist commissioner appointed by federal authorities loomed as a possibility.

See End of Party System.

The raids presaged the early dissolution of the Socialist party in Austria as the next move by the Fascist heimwehr [home guards] in exterminating the party system. Dissolution of other parties, including Chancelor Dollfuss' own Christian Socialists, would then follow as the final step designed for the establishment of a corporative "Little Italy" state.

The influence and counsel of Premier Mussolini of Italy on the Dollfuss government are seen in the measures taken today as well as in the recent Fascist "reforms" inaugurated in Austrian provinces.

The official Socialist newspaper, the Arbeiter Zeitung, and various printing plants were occupied by police during the raids but no Socialist publication had been officially suppressed up until a late hour tonight.

The official government news agency tonight asserted the raids had uncovered a real "bolshevik-Marxist criminal" plot against the Austrian government. It added that several of the arrested leaders had made confessions. However, the details of these confessions were not made public.

Finds Secret Activity.

A government communique explained the raids were decided upon after police had discovered signs of intense secret activity among the Socialists. It was found, the document continued, the Socialists and bolsheviks were "systematically collecting weapons and munitions for violent action on a big scale."

The statement assured workers, however, that the drastic police moves were not intended to molest them, but were only aimed at their irresponsible leaders.

The workers though were warned not to be enticed by their leaders into demonstrating against the government. They again were reminded that a recent governmental decree made strikes illegal.

The day's action was personally directed by Fey, one of the more important chiefs of the Heimwehr in the absence of Chancellor Dollfuss. He is in Budapest discussing the central European situation with Premier Goemboes.

Dollfuss apparently is not worried over the situation, he declared, according to Budapest dispatches, that no change is to be expected in the Austrian government and that "the government's position has never been so strong as today."

Raid Industrial Centers.

In some circles it was considered probable that the decision to launch the raids followed the failure of the Socialist party to accept the olive branch which was extended about two weeks ago by the Dollfuss government. The Heimwehr has been demanding the suppression of the Socialist party for some time.

It was also the Fascists wished to demonstrate to the country that the Socialists could be put in their place without the help of the Austrian Nazis, whom both the Dollfuss and Fascist elements in the government have been fighting.

Similar raids were made today by police in lower Austrian industrial centers in a general war on the "Red front."

Meanwhile in Carinthia province Fascists plugged away at their campaign for the setting up of a Fascist government by commission similar to those recently created or in the process of formation in Tyrol, upper Austria, Burgenland and Styria.

CLERGY LOSING FAITH, EPISCOPAL CONVENTION TOLD

Many clergymen are "losing their faith," the Rev. Dr. Herbert Prince of Lake Forest declared yesterday in a report "on the state of the church," given at the 97th annual convention of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago at St. Paul's church, 4945 Dorchester avenue.

Dr. Prince declared that the discouragements clergymen face in these times have "wrought loss of faith, courage and energy." The church itself, he said, has been the butt of skeptics and the disillusioned, and "it is freely claimed that the church had failed at a critical juncture and is hopelessly bemired in its own flounderings."

"But in penitence and humility it is finding its soul," the report went on. "On the question of peace and war the church has made steady progress during the last decade. We must put God before country; the cross before the flag. We must define that position and be ready for the consequences. That is the growing temper of the Christian body called the church."

Fire Ruins South Elgin Volunteer Chief's Shop

Fire of undetermined origin yesterday destroyed the floral establishment of Harry Santee, in South Elgin, with a loss of $15,000. Santee is chief of the village's volunteer fire department. He and his men prevented the spread of the flames to adjoining buildings.

Finds 80% of Gangsters Are American Citizens

Contrary to general belief, 80 per cent of the country's gangsters are American citizens and most of them are native born, according to Fred J. Schlotfeldt, district director of naturalization and immigration, who yesterday addressed the Ohio society of Chicago in the Hotel Sherman. He related that he recently examined a list of 1,000 Chicago hoodlums and found this proportion of citizens.

Woman Killed, 3 Wounded by Spanish Bomb Blast

BARCELONA, Spain, Feb. 8.—(AP)—One woman was killed and three men, one a policeman, were injured when a bomb exploded here today.

WOMAN DOCTOR IS ARRAIGNED IN DEATH CASE

Dr. Lou E. Davis, 57 years old, a woman physician with offices at 3147 Logan boulevard, charged with performing an illegal operation for a young woman who died yesterday, was arraigned during the day in the Felony court. Her case was continued to Feb. 23 by Judge Harold P. O'Connell and she was released in bonds of $2,500.

The woman who died was Mrs. Gertrude Gaesswicz, 28 years old, 4515 Montana street. Her husband, Louis, told investigators that the operation had been performed by Dr. Davis on Jan. 19.

Dr. Davis has been arrested three times previously on similar charges, but has been freed each time.

Another physician, Dr. Clyde Stollar, 37 years old, 5602 West Chicago avenue, was arraigned before Judge O'Connell on a charge of abortion. He is alleged to have operated for Mrs. Phyllis Benson, 23 years old, 5053 North Le Moyne avenue, who died Wednesday. The case was continued to Feb. 23, and Dr. Stollar, in default of bond, was sent to the county jail.

Dr. Harry Heiss, 42 years old, 4753 Broadway, was arrested last night on a complaint alleging that he performed an abortion Feb. 2 for Mrs. Margaret Lemmel, 2344 Wilson avenue, who is now seriously ill in a hospital. The physician denied the charge.

Germany's Idle Decrease by 285,000 During January

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 8.—Unemployment in Germany was reduced during January by 285,000 to 3,774,000, according to the official returns issued today. This is 2,239,000 less than a year ago, the labor office said. The improvement during January was attributed largely to public works.

CURIOUS CROWDS HUNT BULLET MARKS IN PARIS

Inspect Square, Scene of Furious Fighting.

BY MAY BIRKHEAD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 8.—Although rioting has subsided in Paris and things today seemed almost normal, it may be only a lull.

The Parisian crowd is famous not only for its love of excitement but for its extreme curiosity. Early this evening the crowd seemed especially bent on examining minutely those points around the Place de la Concorde where bullets of rifle and machine gun left their marks in the two day riot. The crowd inspected the bark on trees, marks on the obelisk brought from Luxor 100 years ago, and particularly the buildings on the north side of the square.

U. S. Building Escapes Damage.

Those twin structures, the ministry of marine and the Hotel Crillon, between which passes Rue Royale, were put up according to plans of the architect Gabriel. Around them crowds have been surging for several days. The western pendant, finished last fall, is the new chancellery of the American embassy.

This building, standing back some distance from the street with a high iron grill in front, seems to have escaped even the glass-breaking which was so general around Place de la Concorde.

Mrs Jesse Isidor Straus, wife of the American ambassador who recently returned to Paris, today gave a small tea at her official home in Avenue Diena, not far from the Trocadero and over a mile from the main rioting. Among her guests was Mrs. Carleton Holdrege of Chicago. Mrs. Holdrege witnessed a great deal of the rioting. She remarked that precautions should be taken for the general strike threatened for Monday. As the city's lighting may be affected by the strike, it is noted that candles and alcohol lamps are having a brisk sale. Foodstuffs, too, are being stocked up by many housewives.

Another well known American gathering place on the hectic Place de la Concorde is the Guaranty Trust company's offices. The offices are located in the same structure as the Hotel Crillon.

War Order Unscathed.

Posted rather high to the left of Guaranty Trust company's side entrance and opposite a waiting place for busses is a small placard. It is framed and protected with glass and a wire grill. Thousands of Parisians who have often passed there or waited for a bus seemed to be aware today for the first time that the notice is a proclamation of the mayor of that arrondissement directing all of military age to mobilize. The notice is dated Aug. 1, 1914. Some were feeling the frame to see if it was solidly attached, for a nearby lamp post had been pushed over.

One young Frenchman remarked, "What a document!" Another said "Tiens" and "Tout de meme," the French equivalents for "I'll be hanged."

The crowds, bent on finding traces of bullets, spotted some on the bark of trees in the wooded section of lower Champs Elysées. Others were on the marble pedestals and uprights for arc lights in the middle of the Place de la Concorde.

Particular attention was given to the ministry of marine, where all windows were smashed. A fire was started there, too. Boards and awnings fill the window gaps. Bullets carved white cavities in the age blackened walls. East of the ministry, a building corresponding to the American embassy, is the home of Baron Edouard de Rothschild, biggest owner of race horses in France. It once belonged to Talleyrand. Some of its windows were broken by the firing.

Palace Is Untouched.

Today the Hotel Crillon had one side of its great main entrance door open so that visitors were not obliged to go around to the side entrance as they did in the last few days.

The nerve center of the recent agitation, Elysée palace, official home of the president of the republic, remained untouched due to the vigilance of the military. The palace, flanked by the American library, still is heavily guarded by troops and mounted police.

Jerome Gets English Mark and Then Goes Traveling

Jerome Gottlieb, 17 years old, 5700 Ridge avenue, a student at the Senn High school, takes his studies in English seriously. Last week he flunked. Last night, with only $2 in his pockets, he stowed away on a Santa Fé train bound for California. A porter discovered him, however, and he was taken off at 18th street and turned over to the police. At the detective bureau, awaiting his father and mother, Jerome wept as he told how he hated to face the disgrace of being a flunker. It was worse, he added, because he had hits his teacher on the head with a shoe when he learned his English mark was only 65.

PARIS IS CALMED BY DOUMERGUE; GREETED AS HERO

Cabinet Expected to Be Completed Today.

the health of the country will be affected. Just as when the human organism is imperiled by abuses a cure is necessary, so the country needs to take the cure of national union.

"I have kept my confidence in the country intact. It is French habit to astonish the world by its recoveries."

To one reporter who said to him "you were awaited in Paris like a savior," Doumergue replied.

"Don't exaggerate. I have never accomplished miracles. Besides I distrust miracle makers. Moreover, I am no fetish. I was told I must come, that France needs me. Well I have come and I'll do my best.

"It seems to me politics is not a complicated affair. It is not a battle but a question of good sense."

Gets Great Ovation.

Doumergue arrived in Paris as a conquering hero. He was nearly mobbed by an enthusiastic crowd of 3,000 Parisians who had been waiting for hours on the station platform to welcome him. As he stepped from the train he was given one of the most turbulent ovations an incoming French premier has ever received.

Only with the greatest difficulty could the police force a path for the premier-designate's automobile through the cheering mob. Enthusiastic youths leaped on the running board and clambered on the rear of the car.

The feeling of thanksgiving, however, was not shared by the extremist groups. The royalist Action Française today published on its front page a manifesto of the duc de Guise, pretender to the French throne. In it the pretender expressed homage to the dead and called on the French to support a monarchy.

General Strike Looms.

But a far more serious threat comes from the extreme left forces, who are busy organizing new troubles for the next few days. Furious at the resignation of Premier Edouard Daladier and the calling in of Doumergue, the Socialists are spending every effort to make a success of their ominous general strike scheduled for Monday. If this takes place as planned Paris and most of France will be without water, gas, electricity, telephone, and telegraph service for 24 hours.

Some hope that the strike will not be as bad as threatened is seen in the refusal of the communists to join them in a united front. Nevertheless, it seems assured that at least 1,200,000 workers will join in making the strike effective. The communists in snubbing their bitter enemies, the Socialists, have announced their own demonstration for tomorrow night.

Cool Thief Plucks $20,000 Gems from Store Window

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—As unconcernedly as if he were the proprietor, a holdup man tonight cleaned out the window of the Kobrin Bros.' jewelry store at 2291 Broadway of watches, pins and rings valued at $20,000.

STATE AGENCIES HERE TO BE PUT UNDER ONE ROOF

Scattered Chicago divisions of the state government will be gathered under one roof, K. L. Ames Jr., director of finance, announced yesterday as he signed a lease for 14,500 square feet of space on the third floor of the Morton building, 208 West Washington street.

It is the plan to move the following offices to the new location: Motor fuel collection, 33 North La Salle street; oil inspection, 128 North Wells street, and the offices of the finance department, including sales tax collection and the liquor revenue division, all of which are now officed at 30 North La Salle street. Space will also be provided for the Illinois liquor commission.

The new location, Ames said, is close to elevated, street car, and motor coach lines and will provide ample space for the crowds, sometimes numbering 6,000 persons, who come to the offices each month to pay sales tax.

The length of the lease and the amount involved was not disclosed, but Director Ames said that the consolidation will result in a saving to the state.

CONGRESSIONAL MEDAL IS VOTED TO GEN. DUNLAP

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—The house of representatives today paid new honor to the "extraordinary courage" of Brig. Gen. Robert H. Dunlap, heroic marine corps officer who sacrificed his life to save a French peasant woman from death in a landslide.

At the instance of Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.], and with the approval of the house committee on naval affairs, the house passed a special resolution authorizing the placing of a bronze replica of the congressional medal of honor on Gen. Dunlap's grave in Arlington National cemetery.

FINDS ECONOMIC MISERY BACK OF PARIS BLOODSHED

Tribune Writer Analyzes Scene in France.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 8.—Now that the smoke has partly lifted in France, it is possible to analyze the political factors back of the bloody outbreaks and the change of government which they forced.

At first glance it seems that it was a sort of nationalist revolution against the left government—a vast renaissance of all patriotic, conservative and order loving classes of the nation, comparable in scope, though not in intensity, to the Fascist movements in Italy and Germany.

To this observer, however, the insurrection has the appearance not of a revolution, but a counter-revolution. The reason is that while the left wing parties had a majority of approximately two-thirds in the chamber of deputies, the country as a whole did not "go left" in the 1932 elections.

A Leftist Landslide.

Owing to technical eccentricities of French electoral procedure—which will be explained in detail further on—the actual displacement of votes in the 1932 elections was fantastically small. The right claims it was only 300,000, which probably is a little under the true figure. On the basis of deputies returned to parliament, the election was a leftist landslide such as the country never had seen. Yet, actually, the division of sentiment between the right and left remained what it has been ever since the third republic was founded—almost evenly balanced.

This observer is convinced, despite signs to the contrary, that it still is—only the extreme wings of both groups are stronger. What happened is that the floating vote composed of diverse elements of discontent, which augmented the normal effectives of the left, gradually drifted towards the right just as between 1928 and 1932 they had drifted toward the left.

Touched Off by Swindle.

Various factors speeded up the movement at this time—disgust at the inability of the left parties to agree among themselves for any constructive legislation, alarm over the international situation and above all the general economic misery. The Stavisky 60 million dollar bond swindle, in which the left particularly was implicated, was the straw which broke the camel's back.

According to French political tradition, the pressure of public opinion should automatically have forced the politicians to adjust themselves to the new trend by extending the majority towards the center. After Edouard Daladier fell trying to balance the budget, Albert Sarraut tried to form a government based on this formula, but the determination of the second biggest party of the left, the Socialists, to make no concession to the right frustrated him.

Every one said the left was not playing the game according to the rules. They said it still louder when Sarraut fell and Camille Chautemps formed a new government on the old model. They poured into the street and shouted it with growing violence when Chautemps refused to yield to opinion despite the Stavisky scandal.

Daladier then tried to placate opinion by taking men from the center in his cabinet, but his effort was not convincing and the extreme right wing redoubled its agitations.

Then came the removal of Jean Chiappe, powerful and popular prefect of police, bulwark of the right, and in one of the key posts of the state.

This not only forced out three moderate ministers, swinging the orientation of the Daladier cabinet more to the left than ever, but violated one of the unwritten but fundamental articles of the French political code—the balance of power in the key positions of the army and the police as a guaranty against any party illegally consolidating itself in power.

Right Wingers Angered.

It was absolutely legal and constitutional in every way, but, according to French political thought, it was a violation of the unwritten constitution. As a coup d'état it meant that the left was digging itself in and that it was determined to keep the whole power for itself regardless of public opinion, and removed the guaranty against the left remaining in power by force should the next elections go against it.

Then came the announcement that the government was determined to stifle protests with armed force if necessary—a decision smacking of dictatorship—and toleration of provocative mobilization of Socialist workers.

The republican right, fearing that its legal privileges as the opposition were endangered, decided to strike back and chose the Royalist-Fascist condottiere of the anti-republican right as the weapon. Most of the country supported them not because it had been converted to the right, but because it was determined that no one of the left or right was going to rule with bullets instead of ballots.

One thing remaining to be explained is how the Socialists could hold the radicals and other elements of the majority prisoners to the left when the leaders of these groups wanted to unite with the center. The answer to this explains at the same time how the electoral majority of about 52 per cent produced the parliamentary majority of 65 or 70 per cent.

Under French electoral law a candidate is only elected on the first ballot if he has an absolute majority of all votes cast. In hundreds of cases there has to be a runoff election. In numerous districts during the last elections the right candidate was the high man and won the most votes, but did not have an absolute majority. In the runoff elections the right could not unite, while the radicals, Socialists and sometimes the communists retired in favor of the strongest candidate of the left, or at least threw their votes to him.

Behave Like Socialists.

The result was that many precincts where sentiment is predominantly right are represented in parliament by a left deputy. About 20 radical deputies know they were elected by Socialist votes and in public debates they behave as Socialists. Similarly many Socialists have to appeal heavily to the communist electorate. Theoretically the radicals' vote should influence the Socialists and the Socialist's vote tame the ardor of some communists. Nevertheless, due to the fact that party disciplining is more rigid the farther to the left you go prevents the phenomenon from working both ways.

DOG LIES DOWN ON ICE TO REST; FROZEN TO IT WHEN RESCUED

Cleveland, O., Feb. 8.—(AP)—One little airedale, rescued from Lake Erie's ice today, had found out that it's a poor idea to lie down on ice for a rest.

Workmen at the city illuminating plant saw a dog about a mile out on the ice yesterday afternoon. They supposed the dog was having a good time. Today they noticed the dog in the same position and another dog running around in a circle. Agents of the Animal Protective league were called.

Two of the agents this afternoon made a rather perilious trip out to the spot and found a very dejected airedale sitting on his haunches, apparently waiting for the sun to get real warm. The dog was frozen solidly in the ice, but still living.

The two agents used iron bars to dig the dog out of the ice. They said the dog probably sat down while still warm after playing and froze into the ice before he knew what was happening to him.

H. O. STONE FIRM ODD SALES TALLY BARRED IN COURT

Listing prospective investors as animals and terming a selling campaign as a huge game hunt is not admissible evidence in the trial of five former officials of H. O. Stone & Co. for alleged mail fraud, according to a ruling made yesterday by Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan. The judge ruled that testimony regarding the "game hunt" tended to be inflammatory and should not be submitted to the jury.

The exhibit offered by the government listed various prizes to be awarded salesmen who made a large score in the campaign. A salesman getting a $5,000 order had bagged an elephant for 500 points, and on down the line to a $100 sale and that customer was listed as a skunk.

Investigate Charge Acid Put on CWA Job Ropes

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—The administration's 250 million dollar tax revision bill today received finishing touches at the hands of the house ways and means committee and will be launched on its journey through congress tomorrow.

At the direction of the committee Representative Robert L. Doughton [Dem., N. C.] will introduce the measure in the morning. Regular legislative procedure will delay it for several days, but by Wednesday at the latest it is expected to be under consideration on the floor of the house.

As to its income tax provisions, they apply to 1934 and not to 1933 incomes.

The bill represents the result of a six month effort to plug up loopholes in present federal revenue laws, through which the government has been losing taxes; but, while this is its major purpose, it carries also a number of excise and import taxes inserted by the committee at the urging of special interests.

To Ask Special Rule.

The legislative wheels will be greased to carry the tax bill swiftly along. The committee, it was announced, will ask Democratic leaders for a special rule providing generous debate, but stifling all right of amendment. Under the tentative plan, the house membership will be granted sixteen hours, or the approximate equivalent of four days, in which to recite their views on the measure. But only those amendments offered by the ways and means committee will be in order.

As one of its final acts on the bill, the committee today adopted a provision ending the federal tax on bank checks six months earlier than it would have ceased under present law. Under this provision, the check tax will automatically be removed on Jan. 1, 1935, instead of June 30 of that year, as provided in the revenue bill of 1930. An eleventh hour switch, the committee reconsidered and knocked out the proposed one-half cent tariff duty on imports of foreign petroleum.

Keep Oil Excise Tax.

Remaining in the bill, however, is the 1-5th of a cent excise tax on domestic petroleum and the provision providing civic penalties for persons who evade payment of income tax on illegally produced oil.

The committee, likewise, voted today to accept the recommendation of the postoffice department for a continuation of the present postage rates on first class matter for another year or until the President alters them by proclamation. On the motion of Representative Fred Vinson [Dem., Ky.] it also agreed to lower second class postage rates to the level that obtained prior to the enactment of the 1930 tax bill.

Revenue Estimates Vary.

Estimates as to the total revenue to be realized from the revenue law revisions and various taxes carried in the measure varied today from 200 millions upward. The treasury department calculated that the bill, as now drawn, will bring in approximately 235 millions. Experts of the committee estimated the revenue at 245 millions, while Representative Samuel B. Hill [Dem., Wash.], chairman of the special ways and means tax subcommittee, believes it will raise 300 millions.

Mr. Hill, in an official statement explaining the bill declared today that the primary purpose of the tax measure is to "prevent tax avoidance," and that in achieving that purpose, the ways and means committee has been forced to adopt a "hard boiled" attitude.

"Somewhat Hard Boiled."

"In addition to what may be termed the general laxity of the statutes," said Mr. Hill, "it also has developed that there are numerous opporunities for tax avoidance open to those who have skillful tax advisers. It has been necessary in order to cure the many evils presented to be somewhat 'hard boiled' in revising our income tax law. However, it is believed that the bill proposed by the committee is just without being lenient. Something must be done to increase the yield of the income tax which has fallen to the point of returning only a minor portion of our total revenues, instead of the major portion thereof."

"The first major change in the bill is in connection with the rate structure of the income tax," Representative Hill explained. "The changes made in these provisions are primarily to secure a moderately greater return from dividend income and from income from partially tax exempt government securities.

Small Income Relief.

"A small earned income relief is also given in order to produce the proper differential in tax between earned incomes and investment incomes. A married man with earned income of less than $50,000 will pay somewhat less tax than at present, while persons with net incomes of greater amount will pay slightly more tax."

"The second major change in the bill is in respect to the treatment of capital gains and losses. While the change at first sight seems complicated, it is simpler than existing law. The principle adopted is to levy on individuals a tax on capital gains, which is reduced in proportion to the length of time for which the asset has been held. Capital loss deductions also are reduced in proportion to the length of time for which the asset has been held.

Hits Holding Companies.

"The third major change in the bill has to do with personal holding companies, which have been employed by the wealthy in numerous instances in order to avoid high surtaxes. It is believed that the provisions in the bill will effectually prevent persons from avoiding the surtax by merely paying the corporate tax of a personal holding corporation.

"The fourth major change in the bill occurs in connection with corporate reorganizations. Existing law permits such reorganizations to be carried out tax free in many instances when the principal purpose of the reorganization is tax avoidance. The provisions have been restricted in their application in the proposed bill and its is hoped that the opportunities for tax avoidance have been reduced to a minimum."

PLANE PROFITS UNDER FIRE BY HOUSE GROUP

Studies Army Dealings with Contractors.

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—A governmental audit showing that private contractors had made profits as high as 90 per cent on army airplane orders was submitted to members of congress today for their study.

The 90 per cent profit was credited to the Boeing Airplane company for its 1932 contract work. And from 1928 through eight months of 1933 the auditors figured Boeing's total army airplane sales were $4,529,208, and its average profit 32 per cent.

The house military affairs committee will investigate these figures. The house naval committee already is making a similar inquiry. Detailed figures on army contract profits did not become available until today.

The audit showed that the Pratt-Whitney company from 1927 through the first four months of 1933 collected $12,080,222 from the army for airplane engines, making a 23 per cent profit.

73 Per Cent Profit.

In 1927 the army bought $326,786 worth of "Hornet" engines from Pratt-Whitney, on which the contractor was shown to have made 73 per cent; in 1928 the army paid Pratt-Whitney $220,139 for "Wasp" engines, on which the company's profit was placed at 48 per cent.

In 1930 Pratt-Whitney's profit on army engine sales was shown by the audit to have been 25 per cent; in 1931 it was listed at 23 per cent; in 1932, 25 per cent, and for the rst four months of 1933 only 7 per cent.

Some figures from the audit on other companies: Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor company, total army sales, $4,826,987, from 1929 through the first four months of 1933, profit 1.4 per cent; Douglas Aircraft company, total sales $9,740,469 from 1930 through the first eight months of 1933, profit 19 per cent; Bendix Stromberg company, total carburetor sales $80,610 from 1930 through six months of 1933, profit 68 per cent.

Big Orders to Wright.

The Wright Aeronautical company, Pratt-Whitney's biggest competitor in the engine field, was listed as having total army sales of $19,020,710 from 1927 through the first two months of 1933, but as having suffered a .3 per cent loss on them.

Members of the naval and military committees immediately began comparing the profits on army and navy business. The audit showed that where Pratt-Whitney made 23 per cent on army sales, its navy profit on $21,299,867 was 36 per cent; Curtiss' 1.4 per cent profit on army sales contrasted with a .6 loss on navy contracts; Boeing's army profit was 32 per cent, its navy profit 21 per cent; Wright's army loss of .3 per cent compared with a navy profit of 5 per cent, and Bendix made 48 per cent on navy business against 68 per cent on army contracts.

Commercial Profits Higher.

But in many cases, commerical profits were much higher than those made on either of the two services. Pratt-Whitney's commercial business was shown to have netted 72 per cent in 1927, 50 per cent in 1928, 100 per cent in 1929, 33 per cent in 1930, 42 per cent in 1931, 55 per cent in 1932 and 43 per cent in the first four months of 1933.

William Mitchell, courtmartialed once because he criticized army policies, told a congressional committee today that, "compared with Europe, we have no air defense." Army air corps officers, he said, could not tell all the truth because they were afraid of "the army."

Mitchell, a colonel when allowed to resign after his courtmartial trial in 1926, told the house military affairs committee today that "they had a right to courtmartial me."

Extremely Outspoken.

"It was a violation of discipline," he added, "but somebody had to tell the truth about aviation then."

Today, as a civilian, he was more outspoken than ever. Calling former President Hoover a "merchant," he said control of aviation had been placed in the hands of the "merchants" by the Morrow investigating board appointed by President Coolidge.

"Since then," he said, "there has been no development of the air at all. Everything is going backward; our inventive genius hasn't been used at all."

In support of his assertion Mitchell recalled that under the national defense act the army was supposed to have 1,800 airplanes.

"The actual planes that could be used for service purposes now amount to 47 bombers—and they are obsolete—150 pursuit and about 79 observation, and we have been spending $187,000,000 a year," he continued.

Hear Woodring Today.

After Mitchell left the committee announced that Harry H. Woodring, assistant secretary of war, would be heard tomorrow on the purchase of airplanes under his direction.

While Mitchell was testifying a house naval subcommittee continued its study of profits made on navy airplane and engine contracts, covering in more detail ground already gone over.

Meanwhile the senate decided what procedure it would follow in considering contempt charges against William P. MacCracken, former assistant secretary of commerce, and three aviation company officials.

Testimony will be taken, starting tomorrow, in public. Deliberation will be in closed session.

MacCracken and the three others were cited for tampering with files subpoenaed by the senate committee investigating airmail contracts of the Hoover administration.

ROOSEVELT APPROVES MODIFIED FORM OF TUGWELL DRUG BILL

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Senator Royal S. Copeland [Dem., N. Y.], announced today, after a conference with President Roosevelt, that the President had approved the final draft of a pure food and drug bill. The new bill is a modification of the measure sponsored by Rexford G. Tugwell, assistant secretary of agriculture, and fought by many manufacturing interests.

Discussing features of the bill, the New York senator said: "It puts in the hands of the secretary of agriculture increased powers over control of food and drugs and for the first time places cosmetics under the control of the department. The first bill put powers arbitrarily in the secretary. The bill as now arranged provides for two appeal boards, one on public health to deal with drugs, and another on foods, so that if the manufacturer is distressed over the regulations he has an appeal to the boards.

"The bill brings advertising under control, but it places the responsibility on the manufacturer."

DENY REHEARING ON LAKE ZURICH TITLE DISPUTE

The Illinois Supreme court yesterday denied a rehearing to the state in a suit against August Froehlich, George Pearce, and Mrs. Margaret Pearce, who, in a decision rendered on Dec. 23, were declared owners of title to the bed and waters of Lake Zurich in Lake county, west of Waukegan. The rehearing was asked by State's Attorney A. V. Smith, who opposed the decision on the contention that the lake was public property.

The high court's finding brings to a close a five year fight which began when Froelich and the Pearces, with other property owners of Lake Zurich, ordered summer residents to stop swimming and boating on the lake. During the battle, which was waged largely in Lake county courts, both sides in the suit obtained injunctions and court orders. Prosecutor Smith maintained that the lake was navigable water and, therefore, public property.

Ultimately Judge Edward D. Shurtleff upheld the state's attorney, but upon appeal the Supreme court held that this decision should be reversed. The property owners said they have no intention of barring orderly persons from the lake and would invoke their rights only to bar "hoodlums."

TUBING CO. HEAD GIVEN 1 YEAR AS U. S. TAX DODGER

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Samuel Landis Gabel, president of the Summerill Tubing company, a $3,000,000 corporation, was sentenced today to a year and a day in the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, for evasion of $46,860.27 income taxes.

Gabel had pleaded no defense to indictments charging him with evading payments in 1929 and 1930. He explained items of profit were omitted because losses in other ventures counter balanced the earnings.

Federal Judge George A. Welsh, in pronouncing sentence, called income tax dodgers "weasels," and declared the court will not allow "big or little business men to defraud the government."

BENNETT CALLS NRA TOO COSTLY TO TRY IN CANADA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 8.—Canada cannot adopt such expensive efforts to bring back prosperity as the NRA—national recovery act—and the other alphabetically named schemes being attempted in the United States. This is what a large audience was told here today by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett at a meeting held under the auspices of the Canadian club.

"The United States can spend 16 billion dollars in buying its way back to prosperity and still its national debt will not be as great per capita as that of Canada," he said.

Mr. Bennett declared that Canada's borrowing credit has about reached the limit. Hard work in developing the vast natural resources of the dominion, he suggested as Canada's road to recovery.

CONSPIRACY PLOT CHARGED BY U. S. ON CWA BIDDING

Supply Dealer Held; Three Others Named.

Samuel Miller, an official of the Miller Supply company, 2100 South Sawyer avenue, was arrested yesterday by federal agents and charged with engineering a conspiracy to defraud the government of $3,450 by submitting illegal bids on fire hydrants to be used in Civil Works and Public Works administration projects.

The plot, which is said to involve a Chicago alderman as yet unnamed, came to light, government officials said, when one of the men involved in the deal became conscience stricken and revealed the details of the alleged conspiracy.

Released on $1,000 Bond.

Miller, arraigned before United State Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday, was released in bond of $1,000 and the hearing continued for one week.

United States Attorney Dwight H. Green, in a report made public during the day, said that Miller conspired with representatives of three other supply companies to submit complementary bids at prearranged prices on 1,080 fire hydrants. Under the prearranged plan, the government prosecutor said, Miller arranged to buy the hydrants for $41.50 each and to submit a low bid of $47.90 per hydrant.

Three Others Named.

The other men named as co-conspirators with Miller in the government report are Samuel C. Mead, western sales manager for the Michigan Valve and Foundry company, 1 North La Salle street; Frank A. Huntley, Chicago representative of the Mueller company, 205 West Wacker drive, and I. J. Flanagan Chicago manager of the Kennedy Valve Manufacturing company, 1306 South Canal street.

Attorney Green said the alleged plot had its inception shortly before the city officials of the CWA and the PWA called for bids on the hydrants on Dec. 15.

The government prosecutor charged that Miller conferred with an alderman and was assured that the Miller company would have "the inside track" on the hydrant bids. Before the Miller bid had been submitted, however, the three other companies asked for forms in order to bid on the supply contract.

Charges Collusion on Bids.

Miller heard of this, Attorney Green said, and sought out the three representatives of the other concerns. After a conference it was agreed that Miller should dictate the bids submitted by the others and in return should buy one-third of the hydrants from each of their companies, the prosecutor charged. The difference between the price paid for the hydrants and the bid of the Miller company was to be divided among the conspirators, Mr. Green said.

The bids when opened by the city showed the following figures: Michigan Valve and Foundry company, $48.60; Mueller company, $49.75; Kennedy company, $48.90, and the Miller company, $47.90.

These bids were rejected as unsatisfactory.

After the first bids were rejected the CWA decided to ask for another set of bids. These were submitted on Jan. 19 and showed the same figures for each of the companies involved. Action was deferred in the matter and nothing had been done toward the purchase when the government issued the warrant for Miller.

G. O. P. Chiefs Lay Blame for CWA Graft on Roosevelt

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt himself was charged with responsibility for widespread graft on the federal civil works program, in a blast tonight against the administration by the Republican national committee.

The Republican high command declared that, because the President had taken the civil works program out from under the civil service system, he had opened the door for Democratic politicians and pork seekers.

Besides accusing the President of playing into the hands of politicians and grafters, the G. O. P. declared that the whole civil works program was merely a 400 million dollar attempt to bolster up the President's waning popularity before congress convened. The Republicans said also that CWA was hindering the return of normal reemployment.

Graft and CWA scandals have now been reported from 45 states, the Republicans said in their statement, adding that this harvest of trouble had been sown by the President himself.

Besides taking the CWA out from under civil service restrictions, the President also removed the authority of Budget Director Lewis W. Douglas to veto suggested projects, the Republicans pointed out.

"The scandals which envelop and permeate the CWA are inherent in that organization," the Republican charges stated. "The purpose for which it was set up, the manner in which it was set up and the method of its operations made nation-wide scandals inevitable.

Call It Product of Panic.

"1. It was an 'overnight' setup, thrown together by a panicky administration to cover up, and divert public attention from the utter failure of its recovery program to relieve unemployment and increase mass purchasing power. No organization of such dimensions, reaching into every county and municipality in the United States, flung together to serve as a political makeshift, could be expected to function either efficiently or honestly.

"2. It was a political setup, composed of and directed—in the main—by henchmen of the Democratic administration selected because of their instant availability.

"The face of the administration had to be saved. Its waning popularity had to be revived before congress convened. All other matters were subordinated."

Quotes Hopkins Interview.

Quoting at length from press reports of an interview with Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief and CWA head, the G. O. P. declared he had admitted that the investigation of CWA racketeering was costing "tens of thousands of dollars."

But what saddened Mr. Hopkins most, the Republicans continued, "was that Democrats—Roosevelt Democrats, new deal apostles and evangels, were caught red handed in these scandals.

"Mr. Hopkins may have suffered bitter disillusionment, but certainly the same may not be said of his superiors in the Democratic party. Those old stagers knew when local political leaders are placed under a 400 million dollar plum tree and told to shake it—they really shake it. When they are told to put 4 million individuals on the public pay rolls and be quick about it, they really hurry.

"But there was higher authority than the political philosophy of the Democratic national chairman, Mr. Farley, for turning the CWA into an adjunct of the Democratic party organization. It was none other than President Franklin D. Roosevelt himself. His executive order of Nov. 9 creating the federal Civil Works Administration, and appointing Mr. Hopkins federal administrator thereof, threw open the entire official personnel of the CWA set up to Democratic spoilsmen."

"Those old days are gone, let us hope, forever. I believe that we are at the dawn of an era when the average man and woman and child in the United States will have an opportunity for a happier and richer life. And it is just and desirable that this should be so. After all, we are not in this world to work like galley slaves for long hours at toilsome tasks, in order to accumulate in the hands of 2 per cent of the population 80 per cent of the wealth of the country. We are not here merely to endure a purgatorial existence in anticipation of a beatific eternity after the grave closes on us.

"We are here with hopes and aspirations and legitimate desires that we are entitled to have satisfied to at least a reasonable degree. Nor will such a social program as we have been discussing cause a strain on our economic system. The contrary, rather. Satisfaction of legitimate wants, encouragement of greater consumption of goods, means more orders for favorites, increased travel, a stimulation of commercial life."

MR. RICHBERG'S SPEECH

The NRA is based upon individual competition, property rights, and business profits, subject merely to governmental regulation in the interests of the country as a whole, Mr. Richberg said in his speech to the Economic club. He expressed satisfaction that the NRA was at last being subjected to constructive criticism, since for many months, he said, criticism had been "singularly inadequate and ineffective."

Aims of the NRA.

Before replying to recent constructive criticism, he said, he wished to state the assumptions at the bottom of the NRA.

"It is assumed that trade and industry are best promoted by a healthy competition between individually managed enterprises; that under the constitution individual freedom of action and individual rights of property must be preserved and are to be subjected only to those restraints necessary to provide the maximum freedom and security for the maximum number of people; that government under the constitution will leave business men free as individuals to make private gains out of fair competition, but that government must prevent individuals from competing unfairly and must supervise all combinations of competitors so as to prevent them from eliminating competition and exacting monopolistic profits from consumers."

Between Two Extremes.

Because these principles were embodied in the constitution, he continued, they could not be challenged except by "those who propose a new form of government." He said that the recovery act provided a flexible means for organizing industry in accordance with these principles and the experience with the codes had shown that "no single remedy, no formula," could restore industrial health and bring permanent recovery. At the two extremes of ignorance that failed to realize this, he said, were the "bourbons" and the communists, whose criticisms, he implied, had not been constructive.

LOYOLA 'U' DEAN HITS PROPOSED CHILD LABOR ACT

He Cites Dangers of Too Many Laws.

Disapproval of the child labor amendment, in which he observed a trend toward too much governmental control, was voiced yesterday by the Rev. Thomas Egan, S. J., dean of sociology at Loyola university. He spoke before the Big Sisters of Chicago at Biggs house, 50 East Huron street. The organization, composed of Catholic women devoted to the welfare of needy and delinquent girls and women, celebrated its 17th anniversary with a luncheon and review of its accomplishments.

Father Egan asserted that "the nation that is least governed is best governed," adding that "if there are too many laws there is no morale among its people." He cited the prohibition law as an example, saying that temperance and total abstinence built up before prohibition are gone now.

"Uncle Sam Poor Policeman."

"If we can't train people to take care of the children who are near them," Father Egan said in discussing the amendment aimed at the restriction of child labor, "we are never going to train Uncle Sam to take care of them. It won't work. Uncle Sam is a poor policeman."

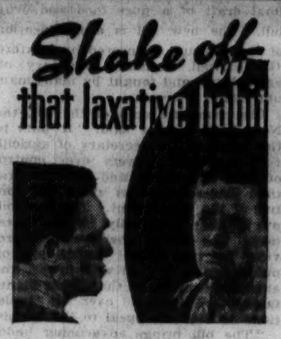
Father Egan asserted that government control sometimes ruins social work, "if politics is allowed to get into it."

Mrs. George V. McIntyre, president of the Big Sisters, reported that the organization's income in its 17 years of existence had been more than $200,000. Most of this money, she said, had been spent on wards of the courts, giving unfortunate women and girls a chance to enter useful lives. Many were given educational advantages.

654 Girls Given Scholarships.

"A total of 654 girls were given scholarships during the 17 years," said the report of Mrs. Charles H. Moody, chairman of the scholarship committee. "This was accomplished at a cost of approximately $89,000. This fund allowed us to carry three girls through nine years of training, four through eight years, three through seven, and the rest through varying degrees of schooling. Some were provided with religious training, others trained to be nurses and artists, while many were given academic work in their particular fields."

Mrs. George J. Aste, head of the court committee, told of the Big Sisters' activity in saving wayward girls. Cases in the Juvenile court, she declared, are proof that either the home, church, school, or state has failed to function in these cases. The Big Sisters find homes for many girls.



Shake off that laxative habit

Physicians Warn Against Irritating Drugs

Medicine-laxatives—no matter how pleasant tasting—can often do untold harm. For most of them work by irritating the delicate membranes of the digestive tract. Soon they lose their force—compel you to take more and more.

That's why more than 50,000 physicians recommend Pluto Water. For Pluto is not a drug or medicine-laxative but a saline mineral water. The same amount each time—no need to increase it—always performs, does not gripe, gives positive results in less than one hour. It cannot give you the laxative habit!

Pluto Water is gentle—but speedy. It promptly opens the pylorus valve — permitting the flush to enter the intestines without anxious hours of waiting.

The proper dilution—one-fifth glass Pluto in four-fifths glass hot water—is practically tasteless. Take it whenever sluggish—gets results within an hour—and end that laxative habit! In two sizes: Splits (8 ounces)—large bottles (3 times the quantity). At all druggists.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

ON HIS FACE

IN YOUR CLOTHES

The average soot fall in the Chicago area is almost 88 tons per square mile per month. The average dust fall is almost 236 tons for the same area and period. And the water you use to wash with has a "soap hardness" rating of 126. With such government facts as these staring you in the face how can you afford to buy cheap soaps? To remove greasy soot and clinging dirt with minimum effort in such water, you must use a soap with great sudsing action. Cheap soaps haven't got it. Their suds are frothy and weak. In contrast, American Family gives rich, creamy, double-suds. And it's the double-suds that makes the difference . . . floating out dirt without hard rubbing, saving your clothes, your energy, your money and your time.

SENATE VOTES 950 MILLIONS MORE FOR RELIEF

Rejects Plea of Radicals for 2½ Billions.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Administration forces, coupled with regular Republicans, tonight killed the fight led by Radical senators to give more money to the civil works fund when, by a vote of 58 to 1, they defeated the amendment of Senator Cutting [Radical, N. M.] which sought to raise the ante from the $950,000,000 asked for by President Roosevelt and Director Harry Hopkins to $2,500,000,000.

In the following vote of 52 to 14 they voted down the compromise amendment of Senator La Follette [Radical, Wis.], who urged that the sum be $1,500,000,000.

Adopt McCarran Amendment.

Then, just before they passed the bill by a viva voce vote, Senator McCarran [Dem., Neb.] introduced an amendment which would make state administrators of civil works presidential appointees who would have to be confirmed by the senate. This was passed by a vote of 42 to 19.

Over the protest of Senator La Follette, who felt that the senate ought to have had more than the moment's consideration it gave to the amendment, the conferees, who are to meet with the house, which last Monday passed the bill with but one dissenting vote, were urged to insist upon the McCarran provision.

It was a strange day, with gentlemen on one side of the aisle urging gentlemen on the other side of the aisle to "take some more money" and the gentlemen replying, "We don't want any more."

450 Million to CWA.

The bill, asking for $950,000,000, allocates $450,000,000 to civil works to be continued until the first of May and the other $500,000,000 goes to direct relief.

This wasn't enough for the CWA. Senators Cutting and La Follette argued. And Senator Wagner [Dem., N. Y.] raised his voice in their behalf when he termed the administration measure "a great deal less than is dictated by the minimum requirements of sound public policy."

All of this was very confusing to Senator Borah [Rad., Idaho] who pointed out that Director of the CWA Harry Hopkins "Must certainly be more familiar with the demands than we are," and added, without a smile, save the one in his eyes:

Claim It Would Be "Cruel."

Senator Wagner declared that to stop the Civil Works program the first of May would be cruel to the men thus thrown out of work and would seriously retard national recovery. Even if three million persons were absorbed into private industry, and he is doubtful of that figure; and if one million were given jobs in the Public Works administration, and he is doubly doubtful of that immediate possibility, there would still be, he figured, six million unemployed.

The direct relief, he declared, has only 50 millions now, while the Civil Works has less than 150 millions. These sums, plus the $950,000,000 asked for in the present bill, would bring the total up to $1,100,000,000, a sum, he maintained, absolutely inadequate to take care of the unemployed for the next ten months, until congress again convenes.

"And how long would the money furnished by your amendment, plus the present monies, carry the unemployed?" Senator Borah wanted to know.

Why November? Borah Wonders.

Senator Wagner said, "Not quite until congress convened, but surely until November."

When he mentioned the word "November" everybody laughed, especially the senators on both sides of the aisle who are running for re-election that month, and Senator Borah, with bland devilment in his voice, remarked "I wonder why November."

Senator Cutting called the Civil Works the most successful of all the administration's recovery ventures; and Senator La Follette dubbed the administration senators who argue that private industry will take up the slack let loose by the government as "round the corner boys, the kind we heard from 1929-'33." For himself, he said he thought their statistics were based on hope, not fact.

TEACHERS MAP FIGHT FOR STATE SCHOOL RELIEF

Leaders Outline Plan; Seek Unison.

The campaign to obtain passage of school relief measures at the forthcoming third special session of the legislature was mapped out yesterday at a meeting of the Chicago division of the Illinois State Teachers' association. More than 4,000 teachers packed the Auditorium theater to hear their leaders exhort them to present a united front and win the support of every legislator in the state.

George E. Anspaugh, legislative chairman of the association, outlined the school board's proposal to transfer approximately 12 per cent of the regular tax levy for the school building fund [now fixed at $1.65 per $100] to the educational fund. The educational, or operating, fund has a deficit estimated at $17,000,000. Anspaugh said that the transfer would increase the resources of the fund between 5 and 8 million dollars.

Urges United Support.

"The first task is to get enough members of both houses in Springfield to pass the legislation," asserted Anspaugh. "Use the telephone, send telegrams, and write letters. You must get busy, for our success depends upon it. If you don't we will fail."

The progress of Mayor Kelly's program to sell the $40,000,000 school bond issue to the federal government was elaborated in a pamphlet distributed among the teachers. Questionnaires had been sent to the senators and congressmen from Illinois by Robert C. Keenan, one of the association leaders.

Congressman A. J. Sabath reported that he had introduced a bill embodying the mayor's plan—that of authorizing the Reconstruction Finance corporation to purchase the bonds of school districts on the security of real estate owned by the board of education. The Chicago school board owns about $30,000,000 worth of property unused for educational purposes. A bill providing for sufficient enabling legislation will be introduced in the Illinois legislature.

Decide on Referendum.

Three plans for obtaining a unified organization representing all the Chicago teachers were presented at the meeting. After considerable discussion it was decided to have a referendum vote among the entire teaching force, the mechanics to be handled by the association. The vote will be taken during the next seven days.

George Mahin, secretary of the High School Teachers' association, told the crowd that the loop bankers had agreed to purchase small denomination 1933 tax warrants, given to the teachers in lieu of cash for salaries, to the extent that they could be used as payment of tax bills. The purchase would be made, Mahin said, under the condition laid down by the bankers that the plan would have the written approval of James B. McCahey, president of the school board. The proposed purchase would amount to approximately $500,000.

'FACING DEATH,' 12 WORKERS SUE CHEMICAL FIRMS

Mobile, Ala., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Damage suits totaling $1,200,000 were filed today at Anniston, Ala., against the Swann Research, Inc., Swann corporation, Southern Manganese Land corporation, Southern Manganese Mining corporation, Southern Manganese corporation, Federal Carbide corporation, Federal Abrasive company, Federal Phosphorus company, and Swann Chemical company, and allied corporations by 12 Anniston chemical plant workers.

The workers declare they are facing almost inevitable death because of their employers negligence. Each worker seeks $100,000 damage, in order "that his remaining days may be as bearable as possible."

All of the men claim they were working on a chemical product which the companies are planning to manufacture and that no effort was made to protect them from poisonous gases in the building where they are working. The workers complain they have experienced symptoms of their chemical disease for several months.

SLAIN GAMBLER'S WIDOW POINTS TO PAL AS MURDERER

Albert Ciha, gunman and gambler, was seized by state's attorney's police yesterday and identified as one of the slayers of Michael Egan, alias Walsh, who was shot and killed by three men who broke into his mother-in-law's home at 9223 Houston avenue, on New Year's day.

Ciha was seized at 95th street and Vincennes avenue by a squad under Sergt. Thomas Donnelley as he was greeting his two children, 4 and 5 years old. He had arrived in Chicago a few hours earlier from St. Paul, Minn.

Ciha was taken to the South Chicago police station, where Mrs. Mary Regan, the widow of the slain man; her sister, Mrs. Elsie Buckhein, and their mother, Mrs. Mary Watley, identified Ciha as the man who fired the first shot at Regan. Mrs. Regan asked: "Al, why did you shoot my husband?" Ciha peered at her stolidly and remarked: "Why, I never shot anyone, much less your husband."

Police announced that he would be charged with murder after the women said that Ciha was well known to the family and had often visited the home.

Police said that Regan was killed by his comrades either because he had double crossed them in the wire tapping operations, or had failed to split the gang's profits equally. Mrs. Regan named Ciha, said by police to be a wire tapper who swindled bookmakers; Matthew Breen, and another man, named Pete, as the slayers, five days after the killing. She has been guarded by police since that time.

RULES 2% SALES TAX MUST BE PAID ON WATER BILLS

Cost to Chicagoans About $248,000 Yearly.

The two per cent retailers' occupation tax must be paid on all municipal water bills as well as on other transactions between a retailer and a purchaser, it was announced in Springfield yesterday by J. M. Braude, associate director of the state department of finance. The ruling means that some 445,000 Chicago property owners will pay the state an annual sales tax amounting approximately to $248,000.

In announcing the ruling of the department of finance which has the duty of collecting the sales tax, Braude asserted that the sales tax legislation includes all municipal as well as private water companies. He added that the tax must be collected whether the water is furnished on meters or on a flat rate basis.

May Go Back Six Months.

Chicago's total water bill in 1933 amounted to approximately $12,400,000. Two per cent of this amount equals $248,000. In interpreting the ruling city officials yesterday said that they presumed that the tax would be collected from the time the sales tax bill as passed by the state legislature became effective. If this interpretation is true property owners must pay the tax on all water bills rendered for the last six months of last year.

H. L. Meites, superintendent of the city water department last evening said that although the sales tax will be collected from property owners and not be absorbed by the city, the addition to each annual bill probably will be well under one dollar.

Complicates Bookkeeping.

Supt. Meites, however, literally threw up his hands in despair when the ruling of the finance department was announced to him. He said:

"The bureau of water now is in the process of changing bookkeeping systems from hand ledgers to machine ledgers. There is no possibility of arranging at this time for a change which will include the tax in the machine computations."

Mayor Kelly last night said that if the sales tax must be collected the city would not be able to absorb it. He said that the tax would have to be added to the individual tax bills. Corporation Counsel Sexton said that there was apparently no appeal from the ruling since the city operates its water system in its private, not its governmental capacity, and the water bills cannot be considered as tax bills. If the water bill were a tax, he said, the city might plead that the sales tax amounted to double taxation.

76 County Water Systems.

A study of the water systems in the metropolitan area of Chicago by Max R. White, graduate University of Chicago student, disclosed yesterday that there are 168 water systems within a 51 mile radius of State and Madison streets of which 76 are in Cook county.

It also was disclosed that Chicago supplies water to 33 suburbs of which 24 in turn supply additional suburban areas. The study revealed that most of the 24 suburbs buy Chicago's water at low rates and sell it at substantial profits.

Recommends Changes.

Because of the disorganization of the water systems, two disease epidemics have broken out within the last ten years, according to White, who charged that efficient handling of the water supply would have prevented them.

A delegation of citizens led by Ald. Thomas J. Daley [10th] visited Mayor Kelly yesterday to protest against the location of a new filtration plant in the lake off 67th street. The delegates charged that the station would spoil the neighborhood beaches and hurt property values. The mayor said the site was only one of seven being considered for the new station.

[AROUND-]WORLD [SER]VICE IN [PLAN]NED

[redacted].—(AP)—Elated by announcement that the navy department favors trans-oceanic airship service, Commander Jerome Hunsacker, vice president of the Goodyear-Zeppelin corporation already has an around-the-world in 17 days flying schedule worked out.

It was announced by Hunsacker today following declaration by President P. W. Litchfield that Goodyear-Zeppelin is prepared to construct the ships and operate them, provided the United States department of commerce sponsors their construction as government-owned air liners.

Hunsacker's schedule shows a Washington to Paris line operating on a 64 hour schedule in the winter and a 58 hour schedule in the summer. His other schedule estimates include:

Paris to Barcelona by Zeppelin, 456 miles in 4 hours.

Barcelona to Karachi, India, by Dutch Zeppelin, now under contract with the German Zeppelin corporation, 3,826 miles in 64 hours.

Karachi to Batavia, Java, by Dutch Zeppelin, 2,976 miles in 57 hours.

Batavia to Manila by airplane, 1,493 miles in 17 hours.

Honolulu to Los Angeles by Zeppelin, 2,228 miles in 44 hours.

Is This Too Good for Your Cough?

Creomulsion may be a better help than you need. It combines seven major helps in one—the best help known to science. It is made for quick relief, for safety.

Mild coughs often yield to lesser helps. No one can tell. No one knows which factor will do most for any certain cough. So careful people, more and more, are using Creomulsion for any cough that starts.

The cost is a little more than a single help. But your druggist guarantees it, so it costs nothing if it fails to bring you quick relief. Coughs are danger signals. For safety's sake, deal with them in the best way known.

BIDS OPENED ON 3 CHICAGO STREET PROJECTS BY CWA

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—The state highway department today opened bids on three Cook county construction contracts.

One calls for the repaving and widening of Bryn Mawr avenue from Sheridan road to Broadway, a link between the outer drive and Ridge avenue used by north shore motorists traveling to and from the loop.

North Cicero avenue is to be widened from Devon avenue to Elston avenue. This is a connection with the new Skokie road being developed as a superhighway between Milwaukee and Chicago to take the place of rough, narrow and tortuous U. S. 41 and Sheridan road.

South Cicero avenue is to be widened between 95th and 110th streets. This is a needed connection with Governor's highway, which former Gov. Small built forty feet wide to his home town of Kankakee but left the northern end dangling in a cornfield.

All three of these jobs are to be finished with public works administration "easy money." Construction will start probably in three or four weeks.

State Highway Engineer Lieberman announced that construction will also get under way about the same time on seven other Cook county contracts awarded since Jan. 1.

They are:

ALDERMEN SLASH POLICE AND FIRE BUDGETS—IN PLAY

Minority Group Studies Other Reductions.

A minority group of the city council finance committee—there were only seven present at the conclusion of the session—yesterday played with the idea of making drastic cuts in the police, fire, and health departments appropriations to keep the city's 1934 budget within the estimated revenue of $39,500,000.

The suggestions, on which no definite action was taken, were to reduce the various ranks in the police department as follows: Captains, 54 to 43; lieutenants, 127 to 102; sergeants, 520 to 496, and patrolmen, partially by not filling vacancies, from 5,340 to 4,340. The aldermen estimated this would save $1,500,000. By eliminating 270 firemen they figured they could reduce the budget by an additional $560,000.

Make Alternative Suggestion.

An alternative suggestion, which was considered less drastic, was to put the firemen and policemen on the same basis as other city employés in regard to pay cuts. All employés were docked 78 days' pay during 1933 with the exception of the policemen and firemen who lost only 52 days' pay. This, the committee's staff said, would save $1,150,000.

Then, as neither of these economy measures would be sufficient to cut the 1934 budget $8,000,000 below that of 1933, the aldermen continued to make other tentative reductions as part of their plan to show that a $39,500,000 budget will not work.

They decided to order Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, to cut $100,000 from the $1,756,000 allotted to him by City Controler Upham. Then they struck out $100,000 tentatively set up for the council committees, $1,000 for the purchase of works of art created by local talent, $20,000 for the Chicago Plan commission, and $28,224 for aldermanic automobile maintenance.

Must Make Up Deficit.

Whether these reductions will still be in the budget when it is finally passed by the council is problematical. They are being suggested because under the law the city must make up in this budget a deficit estimated by the citizens' committee on public expenditures at $8,999,000. This deficit was caused primarily by reductions in Chicago real and personal property valuations.

The budget last year was $47,883,195. This year the controler has recommended expenditures of $43,764,871. The citizens' committee has suggested a budget of $41,500,000, but if the deficit is taken up there will be only $39,500,000 available for expenditure.

Deputy Controler V. S. Petterson, however, has told the aldermen that if a budget of less than $45,500,000 is adopted vital city services would be seriously affected. The aldermen, therefore, are proceeding to make two budgets, one of $39,500,000 that they believe won't work and one of approximately $43,700,000. They hope the legislature in special session will give them aid in finding additional revenues to meet the larger appropriation bill.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. ©1931 C.M.Co.

RELIEF FACING DRASTIC CUT OR LACK OF FUNDS

Battle Expected in Board Meeting Today.

When the Illinois Emergency Relief commission meets today in its offices at 10 South La Salle street, it will face the question of whether it shall continue to spend funds of the $30,000,000 relief bond issue at a rate that will use up that sum in less than five months, or make drastic reductions to spread the fund over the rest of the year.

A battle is expected between Wilfred S. Reynolds, director of relief for the commission, who heads an army of 6,000 social workers on its pay rolls, and state officials, who insist that the $30,000,000 must last the state all year. Reynolds contends that relief expenditures cannot be reduced below $6,000,000 a month.

There is a possibility that when the $30,000,000 is spent additional money for relief can be raised only through direct property levies in the individual counties. State officials close to Gov. Horner say that no more relief bond issues can be passed this year, and that the only alternative to provide funds at the rate of $6,000,000 a month is direct taxation.

Relief Expenses Not Cut.

When the $30,000,000 bond issue was provided by the legislature last fall it was understood that amount would be all Illinois would have to raise for relief during 1934. However, despite the civil works program, which has taken more than 100,000 families and individuals off the relief rolls, relief expenditures have not been reduced. State officials are expected to ask Reynolds why with the civil works roll the relief costs have not been reduced.

This month about $1,000,000 of the $30,000,000 bond issue funds will be spent for relief, Reynolds said, and thereafter the entire monthly relief needs must come from that fund unless federal aid is extended. The federal relief administration has indicated that it intends to let Illinois spend its own money for relief as long as it lasts, which would be until some time in July.

The federal government is spending approximately $3,500,000 in Illinois every month on civil works, educational programs, and transient services, which seem to make no reduction in the state's relief load.

$150,000,000 Spent on Relief.

An indication of the probable relief expenditures by the commission for this year if the present policies are pursued is given by the figures on the money spent by Illinois public and private charitable organizations for unemployment relief since the fall of 1930. Total expenditures exceed $150,000,000 for that period. In 1930 and 1931 almost the entire amount spent was raised by public subscription.

Charity campaigns in Cook county raised $19,650,000 in 1930, 1931 and 1932. The first relief bond issue provided $19,265,000. Loans totaling $55,443,721 were obtained from the federal government through the Reconstruction Finance corporation. These loans must be repaid out of the state's share of federal road building grants. Cash grants made by the federal Emergency Relief administration total $36,000,000.

The counties have diverted $3,173,278 of their share of the state motor fuel tax for relief. In the last six months of last year the state retailers' sales tax of 2 per cent raised $17,834,118 for relief. Other small sources of funds have been found by individual county boards and have been exhausted.

All this money is spent and no effort has been made, except for the discharging of a few hundred social workers and clerks, to reduce the cost of the relief administration.

Actress Jeanne Aubert Is Sued by Jewelry Firm

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Suit by Lebolt & Co. for payment of $10,000 for a string of pearls against Jeanne Aubert, stage star, will come up in court tomorrow. The actress hopes that her former husband, Nelson Morris of Chicago, will fly here to testify that he paid for the pearls.

ATTORNEY GETS $1 AWARD FOR FALSE ARREST

Attorney Raymond E. Blackwood, 7521 East End avenue, was awarded $1 damages in his suit for false arrest against Frederick H. Froemke, 10001 South Damen avenue, yesterday by a jury before Judge Herbert Anderson of Charleston, sitting in the Circuit court. Attorney Blackwood, a former assistant state's attorney, had asked damages of $100,000.

Froemke, a real estate dealer, caused Blackwood's arrest when he identified the attorney as one of two men who robbed him in June, 1929. Attorney Blackwood was discharged in the Municipal court when it was shown he had no connection with the robbery.

Attorney Blackwood was given a default judgment for $6,087 on Nov. 18, 1933, when the defendant failed to appear in court. The judgment later was set aside. Attorney Ernest C. Reniff, representing Froemke, argued that there was no malice in the defendant's identification of Blackwood and held that it was merely a case of mistaken identity.

Gas is Always at Customers' Command

Your butcher, baker, grocer and druggist all have their stores stocked with the best of goods, but getting this merchandise to your larder brings up the question of delivery.

You may go get the things yourself or, if necessary, order them delivered by telephone. Modern delivery service is excellent but at best you must wait for it. You may wait only minutes but minutes sometimes are embarrassing ones.

There is no waiting for gas.

The Peoples Gas Light and Coke Company has been at work 83 years building a perfect distribution system!

Under the streets of Chicago 3,727 miles of mains form this service. You turn on a burner and there is gas. No telephoning, no waiting. Gas service is instantly at your command.

And this prompt service is yours at a cost which is the most reasonable item in your general household budget.

Next time your fuel runs low get the facts on Gas Heat

A heating engineer will gladly survey your home to give you heating costs—Mail the coupon

BEFORE you order more fuel, get the full facts on gas heat. End the labor of shoveling coal, the dirty task of hauling and shaking ashes. Let us install clean, comfortable, automatic gas heat. What a pleasure it is! You fire your furnace by just setting the thermostat on the wall. The temperature of the house is even, correct—day and night. No watching, no furnace fixing.

Gas heat is clean heat. Walls and drapes stay clean much longer. You dust once or twice a week instead of every day.

To prove that every home can now afford to heat with gas, we'll install it at our expense . . . remove it at our expense, if you don't like it.

Gas heating rates are down

You may think that the cost of gas heat is too high. That is why we urge you to get an estimate. A heating engineer will gladly survey your home free of charge. Just mail the coupon at the right.

The cost of gas heat is now one-half of what it was during the 1930-31 heating season. That is why every home—even the most modest—can now afford to heat with gas.

To prove it, and we'll take the full burden of proof, we'll install it at our expense for you to try. You don't invest one cent for equipment.

While you are trying it you pay only $3 a month for the equipment in the average home. This charge is included with the bill for the gas you use.

Try gas heat, one month, two months, a year. If you like it, the rental you have paid applies on the purchase price of the equipment. But if within the first year you decide you don't like gas heat, we'll remove it at our expense and replace your former heating equipment in good workmanlike order.

PWA BOARD EYES 2,000 FT. TOWER PLAN WITH DOUBT

Two Other Loan Requests Also Coldly Received.

The Illinois advisory board of the Public Works administration, headed by Carter H. Harrison, looked askance yesterday at three applications for federal easy money loans totaling $9,314,000. Although the board took the applications under advisement, its members indicated at a hearing in the United States courthouse none of the three projects was eligibne for loans under the terms of the recovery act.

Besides Chairman Harrison the board members are James L. Houghteling and James H. Andrews.

The loan applications were made by the Chicago Tunnel company, which asks $5,000,000 for construction of a central heating plant to furnish steam heat to loop buildings; the Chicago Tower Market Building corporation, which seeks $2,500,000 to build a 2,000 foot "Eiffel tower" over the Illinois Central railroad tracks beside the Fair grounds at 13th street; and the Industrial Barge Lines, Inc., which asks $1,814,000 for construction of inland waterway barges.

Discuss Tower Project.

The plans for the proposed 2,000 foot tower, designed as an attraction for 1934 Fair visitors, call for the construction at its base of a three story building which would be used as an industrial mart.

In discussing the project, Joshua D'Esposito, consulting engineer for the PWA advisory board, said it was his opinion that while the mart might be eligible for a loan, the tower was not.

William R. Jordan, counsel for the tower corporation, was directed to furnish additional data showing what the cost of the mart would be without the tower. Jordan argued that the tower would attract people to the mart.

Rap Tunnel Company Plan.

A concerted attack on the loan application of the tunnel company was made by representatives of the Chicago Coal Merchants' association, the Illinois Coal Operators' association and by a number of labor unions. They protested against the lending of federal funds to private enterprises that would compete with other private enterprises.

Quoting facts and figures to support their contentions, they asserted that the tunnel company's central steam heating project would throw more workers out of permanent employment than the number who would be put to work for a temporary period.

Union Official Opposes Loan.

"We are utterly opposed to the granting of public funds that would defeat the aims of President Roosevelt," declared Anton J. Imhahn, a vice president of the international union of operating engineers. "Such a project would displace 6,000 to 7,000 miners, coal handlers and distributors, engineers, oilers and firemen. It's folly to put men to work temporarily and put many more men out of work permanently."

George R. Methe, treasurer of the Coal Merchants' association, told the board that the project would deprive the 250 members of the association of coal sales totaling 1,500,000 tons annually.

B. R. Gebhart, secretary of the Coal Operators' association, declared that the loss of revenue to the railroads alone would be $272,000 a year.

Speaks in Behalf of Loan.

Sherman Tracy, president of the tunnel company, spoke in behalf of the loan. He said the project would put 2,859 men to work for a year on a 30 hour week basis. He asserted that the central heating system would materially reduce soot and smoke in the downtown area.

Oscar Rosenthal, president of the builders' association, also spoke in favor of the loan. He declared that economies which the heating project would effect for loop buildings would provide a stimulus toward building construction.

John Druhan, an engineer for the tunnel company, said it was estimated that loop buildings would save 10 to 50 per cent in heating costs from operation of the project.

Barge Line Asks Loan.

The barge line's loan request was presented by its president, I. B. Tribken. He asserted that the project had a public interest value in that it would be similar to the subsidization of the shipping board by the government. The company's intention is to use the waterways to bring in lumber from Europe and South America for large inland industries, he said.

Nab "Khaki Shirt" Chief in Driver's Death; Aid Held

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Art J. NEW ELEVATOR BEGINS SERVING TRIBUNE TOWER

Another Will Go in Operation Thursday.

The first of the ten new elevators being installed in Tribune Tower was placed in operation yesterday in the express bank extending from the first to the twenty-fourth floor. A second elevator, serving the first thirteen floors, will be running next Thursday.

Completion of the entire modernization program is scheduled for Sept. 28. Work is proceeding two cars at a time so that service may continue with as little impairment as possible. Tenants of the building then will have an elevator service which is the peer of any in Chicago, the superior of most.

In making these improvements THE TRIBUNE is following its program to utilize the latest inventions and most modern equipment in business as a means of putting men to work and helping restore prosperity.

Bright and Modernistic.

The new cars are brighter and modernistic in every way. Their ceilings are eleven inches higher than in the old cars and in the dome is an indirect lighting system integrated with a ventilating system.

According to George H. Malcolm, vice president of the Otis Elevator company, which has the contract for the $100,000 job, the oversize, three-speed fans in the dome ventilator are the only ones in a Chicago office building. Their only local counterparts are in the Skyride at the World's Fair.

New doors in the cars contribute to the comfort of passengers. Automatically operated sliding doors replace the collapsible gates which have already become antiquated in eight years of operation. This makes for safety. In addition, the sensation of motion is practically eliminated.

The doors operate more silently as well as more rapidly. This fact, combined with other features to step up speed, is expected to work for a maximum service efficiency. They now open in 1½ seconds or less.

Other Time Saving Devices.

Saving of time at floor landings also is expected through the new signal lanterns for waiting passengers. There is a bell gong to call audible as well as visible attention to the approach of a car. This is designed to shorten the wait for passengers.

The cab itself is fireproof, finished with a veneer of African walnut and aluminum appointments. Back of this are three layers of metal and two of soft wood to replace the ponderous solid wood walls of the old cab.

A modern control panel has been installed and direction of the car may be changed by pressing a button. The passengers' comfort also has been considered in the new floor stop buttons. Now a man may change his mind about stopping on a certain floor and the operator may pull out the button, permitting the car to continue without making the useless stop. Passengers may tell the location of the cab in the shaft by illuminated buttons over the lintel of the door.

Five Die in Electric Chair at Camp Kilby, Alabama

Mobile, Ala., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—The first group electrocution in the Alabama state prison at Camp Kilby is scheduled for early tomorrow morning, when five convicted of murder charges go to the electric chair.

PWA CONSIDERS SALE OF MUNICIPAL BONDS HELD AS COLLATERAL

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—The Public Works Administration is considering the sale of bonds acquired from municipalities and states as collateral for PWA loans, it was learned today.

Secretary Ickes, the administrator, revealed that he had directed his financial and legal departments to investigate the possibilities of such sale. The public works title of the national industrial recovery act gives the administration the right to sell any security acquired. This power has not been employed so far.

Such action would be in accord with the theory contained in the establishment of the PWA to allow the financing of sound, job making projects at a time when private credit was tight, with the intention of reselling the bonds provided to the government as security whenever a market capable of absorbing such sales was presented.

"If proper bids are not forthcoming and it does not seem advantageous to sell the matter will not be pushed at the present time because the government is receiving interest on its investment in such bonds while it holds them," Secretary Ickes said.

MRS. ROOSEVELT PLANS TO FLY TO PORTO RICO

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is making tentative plans for a trip to Porto Rico some time in March, she said today.

"I have long been interested in the relief and labor troubles of the island and am very desirous of seeing things with my own eyes," Mrs. Roosevelt said, "but there is nothing definite as yet about the plan. I hope to go some time in March and, of course, if I go I shall fly."

President Roosevelt announced some time ago that he hoped to make a trip to Porto Rico and the Virgin islands, as well as the Panama canal and Hawaii, in the late spring or early summer, depending on the adjournment of congress, but his travels will be on a battleship, where naval etiquette does not welcome women.

JUDGES FOR THE CRIMINAL COURT.

Reference was made the other day to an awakening sense of responsibility in the American bar for the betterment of our defenses against crime. We think the awakening should be observable in the judiciary. The failure of our local judicial organization to act promptly for the sufficient manning of the Criminal bench in Cook seems to indicate that there is still an insufficient sense of responsibility in that organization. No doubt there are difficulties to be resolved, but they should be immediately removed. The situation is serious in its possibilities, as the head of the crime commission has pointed out. The headway gained in speeding up justice should not be lost through the judges' failure to act.

We have already said and repeat that a system should be established and maintained which will insure enough judges at all times to keep the Criminal court up in its calendar and assure an unrelaxing expedition in the trial of all criminal charges.

We ought not to tolerate these periods of delay or accept as satisfactory occasional spurts of activity. Judges above all other men, if they are fit for their responsibilities, understand that prompt justice is essential to respect for law, for the courts, and for the public protection from crime. The criminal docket is again falling behind and this means that the efficiency of the battle against crime is reduced. This has occurred repeatedly and it is up to the courts not only to act promptly, but to set up a permanent system to prevent its recurrence in the future. Service in the Criminal court is a prior obligation of the judiciary, for crime is a major problem, and, since it is for most judges an irksome service, it should not be left to impromptu action under stress of a specially aroused public demand. The Criminal court should be at all times, and as a matter of established routine, so manned as to keep its dockets clear and prompt trial of all criminal charges guaranteed.

LEGISLATION FOR THE 1934 FAIR.

The governor has included in his call for a third special session of the legislature a request for an act authorizing the 1934 World's Fair. An enabling act should be passed as promptly as possible. As Maj. Lenox Lohr, general manager of the Exposition, has pointed out, the 1934 Fair has no legal status at present. It is therefore impossible for the Fair management to enter into contracts with exhibitors and concessionaires. Time is growing short, and unless the enabling act is passed promptly many of the projects contemplated for the 1934 Fair will not be completed on time.

The members of the legislature can hardly be unaware of the immense service of last summer's Exposition in stimulating business throughout the state. No one who watched for out of state motor licenses on Illinois roads last summer could have much doubt on that score. The Fair brought many millions of dollars to Illinois when the nation was in the trough of the depression. The Fair this year should do at least as much to speed the revival downstate as well as in Chicago.

BLAME FOR THE CASUALTIES IN PARIS.

News from Paris contained the prediction that Daladier and Frot are broken men whose careers are forever over and whose lives may be in danger. This is feared particularly of Frot, who, as minister of the interior, ordered the troops to fire on the rioters. In some countries rioters demonstrating as the Parisians did would expect to get into serious trouble if they did not disperse when they were apparently determined to burn public buildings, destroy private property, and to assault officials of government. A German mob, even before Hitler, would have expected rough treatment and the German populace would not have been astonished if the hospitals and morgues were full after such a night's work.

It is improbable that in an American city the people would think there could be a night of riotous disorder, precipitated by warring political factions seeking the overthrow of government and the destruction of property, without casualties. The Parisians are horrified by their casualty list. Their expectations counted upon a different official attitude and less drastic repressive measures. The former prime minister and his minister for the interior are sacrificed to the public resentment of the deadly methods used in suppressing the disorders, in which political demonstration was not to be distinguished from insurrection and violent revolution.

It is easier to fix such blame when a semblance of order has been restored and when remorse and still, deep anger have taken the place of the heedless fury of the attack. The two broken officials may now see their own mistake and it may be clearly seen by others. But that mistake is not so easily perceived when the outcome of furious mob uprisings is uncertain. Another verdict on another outcome might have been that the weakness of the authorities was fatal and inexcusable. It is a fortunate official who is wise in his first guess and strong enough to make it good.

CRIMES IN MINNESOTA.

Edward G. Bremer, the kidnaped St. Paul banker, has been returned to his family. His father, Adolf Bremer, paid $200,000 ransom for his release. The criminals held their victim so long there was grave fear they had killed him. The father says he hopes no other parent will have experiences similar to his own. There will be other such experiences in Minnesota if that state does not correct its political morals and turn upon crime the repression it tried to put upon criticism of these morals.

At the urgent request of the family the state police and federal authorities refrained from doing anything with the case until Bremer's safety was assured. The payment of the blood money and the release of the victim are supposed to release the law officers. They are responsible for what now happens. Kidnapers can be caught if the police want to catch them. This crime cannot be so effective as to protect the criminals, if there is an honest and competent effort to get them.

Some citizens of Minnesota resent skeptical criticism of the good intent of some of their officials. The officials have given little justification for such resentment. Some Minnesota authorities have shown much more interest in suppressing newspapers than in suppressing crime. What they justify is the inference of collusive interests. It is easy for a city or a state to become gang ridden when there is such collusion. Chicago and Illinois can talk from the book. When criminals exhibit great daring and have great success it is because criminals and politicians have formed combinations for profit.

The Bremer kidnapers can be caught and punished. If they are not the assumption will be that some one with influence did not want them caught. Until these criminals are brought to trial the state will be on trial.

THE TEACHERS' PAY.

One of three legislative bills proposed for the correction of school difficulties in Chicago embodies Mayor Kelly's plan for the sale to the federal government of $40,000,000 in school bonds, out of which money the board of education would pay the teachers and other employés $25,000,000 in back salaries. Real estate owned by the board and not used for educational purposes would be pledged as security. Some of this land was federal government school grant in the old days of supporting public education.

It can be said for the plan that it would serve as good a relief purpose as any the government has in mind and would be covered by as good security as any the government will be offered. The teachers are not unemployed, but in a way they have been worse off than if they were out of work and the wards of Washington. They are working, but their pay is far in arrears. They are not the only public employés who have suffered, but that is no consolation to them or to any one else. The situation is not the making of the present administration, which has been trying to cure it.

Relief money goes to far less deserving citizens and much of it goes as a gift. Even where there is the color of a loan the security is not as good as that offered with the bonds. If the legislature will pass the enabling legislation the city can make a sound and, it is to be hoped, a convincing argument in Washington.

Editorial of the Day

EDUCATING SELF-RELIANCE OUT OF THE PEOPLE.

[Kossuth County (Ia.) Advance.]

The Winnebago supervisors decided to paint the courthouse as a PWA project. They called in painters and accepted a bid at 75 cents an hour. Work was begun. Then the CWA butted in with its $1.20 skilled labor wage on other projects and the painters struck. Now Winnebago, hat in hand, wants to tap Uncle Sam's purse again.

The painters, out of work, had been eager to take the job at 75 cents. In fact, considering the times, it was good pay—$6 a day for an eight hour day; pretty good pay for any kind of times, one might say, more than many employers of labor are reaming now. But painters are human. When they saw a chance to get $10.60 a day from a rich uncle they made no bones about breaking a contract to get it.

The aftermath of the war has revealed many startling effects, and among the worst is the letdown in private and public morals. The number of debtors who deliberately seek to avoid paying has become legion. Men whose fathers would have thought breaking a contract a disgrace do it now almost as if it were praiseworthy. And the government and the courts lead the way by dishonoring gold clauses and holding that states may impair contracts.

There may be colorable excuses in the government cases where there is no excuse for individuals, but average men are not educationally equipped to make the distinction. All they know is that the government issued bonds containing a gold clause and then repudiated it; and that the federal constitution says no state shall pass any law impairing a contract, but that the Supreme court found a way to get around the constitution.

What the government can do citizens can do. That's the natural conclusion of the average man, and he has no scruples about acting on it.

Hand in hand with that sort of thing we are also educating the people in the art of beggary. The people are being taught to look to the government for a living instead of relying on their own resources. This is not to say that where real need exists it should not be met; but no one can look at what is going on without feeling that there is great waste. And what will happen if, after we have accustomed the people to government help, we cease giving it?

For some time it must cease. Either the government will run out of money or the emergency will be considered ended. But if in the meantime we have destroyed the self-reliance and the initiative of the people and have accustomed them to generous government help, will the emergency, for them, ever end? And if they elect subservient congressmen, what will be the final outcome?

There is food for sober thought here. It might help to consider the pioneers. It would be worth while, in fact, to review American history all the way back to Jamestown and Plymouth Rock. For the Pilgrim Fathers and the pioneers of the west were one in the same indomitable spirit. To them a contract was a contract, debt a sacred obligation, and the necessity of alms acceptance a crushing disgrace.

The people of Kossuth county have only to consult their own comparatively brief history to know what stuff the pioneers were made of. The only government help they knew anything about was a homestead in a wilderness. Once on the land they had to carve their own way against every hardship and without benefit, without thought even, of government coddling. Where today is the unconquerable spirit of our sires?

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

HERE'S A CHANCE for somebody to haul down that five dollars or whatever it is that is paid for those things. John Jacob Astor III. arrived the other day in Loz Onglaize in his private car. And it was a dark and gloomy day, and so as the welcoming committee buzzed madly around him he asked: "Where is your much advertised sunshine?" Oh, what a chance for anybody in that welcoming committee to write to the Most Embarrassing Moment editor and say: "And there he stood right in front of us and he asked, 'Where's your much advertised sunshine?' Honestly, I was so mortified I wanted to sink right through the floor. You could certainly have knocked me down with a feather," etc., etc., etc.

BIRTHDAYS.

Birthday—or deathday? Forgotten . . . serving to meet them again,
Thirst and its worst in the desert . . . death in the Pine Ridge campaign.

Bodies to tread on like a carpet—what a natal day, this! and a grin
Lightens the night, as the still dawn softly weeps into Tientsin.

Gray—but erect to the bugles. Over the roar of the guns

Near seven decades of honor—what shall thy feast day regale?

DOES PREPAREDNESS make for war or peace? Only the debating clubs can settle the question. Old Tom Botts, the fisherman, says that if a feller prepares himself for a swim he goes swimmin', doesn't he? And if he prepares himself for a-goin' ter church he goes to church, doesn't he? And if he digs bait and gets him a nice fish pole and a fish line and hooks and sinkers and prepares himself generally to go a-fishin' then he goes a-fishin', doesn't he? Then, says old Tom, if a guy gets himself all trained and dolled up in a uniform and prepares for war, what does he do, huh? He sure doesn't take his gun and 200 rounds of ammunition and his bayonet and gas mask and go to a Sunday school picnic does he? Huh? The argument is now fairly open and the next speaker will do a little huhhing on the other side of the question. Huh?

DOWN STREAM.

Drifting down the river of the fumbled, jumbled years,
Since we heard the Sirens' song we're careless now of tears;
They who lure us onward with our face against the wind,
Ever show a fairer land than that we left behind;
Wagering the future and forgetting all the past,
Knowing for a certainty that life can never last,
Living like a vagabond as we drift along,
But blessed with the beauty of the Sirens' song.

E. LESLIE SPAULDING.

"PASTORS VOICE Doubt of Devil and Hell Fire."—La Trib. I've always had a sneaking doubt of the devil myself. I never believed he could keep his hat on if he had horns, and if he had a tail I was sure that some of the hard boiled sinners that went down to live with him would have long ago seized hold of it and dragged him right to the boiling pit with them. As for hell—well, the dubious preachers probably have their reasons, but in this icy zero weather somehow I cannot entirely give up my belief in a nice, warm place like hell.

"GIRL BITES Roommate's Nose."—Headline. Then even if she is a nice girl, good to her folks, and writes a nice hand, you can never convince me she's a lady. No, it's useless to argue. I insist that no lady will bite another lady on the nose. I may be old fashioned, I may be out of step with the jazz age, but I stick to my point. If a lady bites another lady on the nose she's no lady. Anyhow, that's my position and I'll stick to it.

SONG.

There's time enough for sorrow,
And time enough for sleep;
I'll leave them for tomorrow—
Today I'll strictly keep
For songs that I'd be singing,
For joys that I can take;
If troubles come a-stinging,
Of them a song I'll make!

SALT IN THE DIET.

SALT is in rather bad repute among physicians. The evidence is convincing that certain diseases are made worse by its overuse. In all conditions where fluid tends to accumulate in the tissues it is well to decrease the daily intake of salt. For instance, in ascites, or accumulation of fluid in the abdominal cavity; and in anasarca, or accumulation of fluid in the tissues, a condition commonly known as dropsy, the sick person will have less trouble if he uses very little salt. In heart disease and in those forms of Bright's in which there is a tendency to dropsy a low salt diet is advisable.

On the other hand there are disorders which are due to a deficiency of salt. The evidence indicates that the body does best when it is about "so salty." When on that level the cells pick up nourishment and water, do their work, and throw off wastes as well as they can. Either too little salt or too much interferes with these processes.

Among the disorders due to too little salt are heat cramps. This trouble is prevented by drinking a weak salt solution instead of plain water. As a result of excessive vomiting the body may suffer from salt deficiency. Four Baltimore physicians think salt deficiency is responsible for the shock stages of Addison's disease. To prevent a person with Addison's from getting into this shock stage they give him very considerable doses of salt—as much as ninety grains a day in some cases and fifteen grains in the usual case. The amount of salt given as a medicine is kept below the level where diarrhea or nausea is caused, and below the level where swelling of the ankles is induced. This means a daily average dose of about twenty grains.

In addition the diet should be rather rich in salt. Among the saltier foods are: Sauerkraut, mackerel and other salted fish, salt pork and other preserved meats, salted nuts, melons and celery (as we usually prepare them for eating).

These physicians use salt as the regular routine remedy for Addison's disease. Cortin, the new extract of the adrenal gland now coming into use in the treatment of this disease, they reserve for the treatment of the shock and collapse stage. Their studies showed them that in Addison's disease the brakes were taken off the kidneys. In consequence, great quantities of salt as well as water were thrown off by these organs. Because of this the blood tended to become so very concentrated that the cells could not interchange nourishment and waste with it.

The shock stage was due to an excessive blood concentration. It could be warded off by supplying salt to replace that thrown off by excessive elimination by the kidneys.

EATING STARCH.

Mrs. W. H. S. writes: A letter from Mrs. M. L. B. tells of her habit of eating starch and dirt. I want to say to this woman that from my sixteenth until my twenty-fourth year I ate starch and coal, and I really ate it. I had to. No one knows what a terrible craving I had. And none knows how ashamed I was. I was a teacher, and in my twenty-fourth year I accepted a position far enough away from home so that I had to remain away for months. I wasn't away from home two weeks before this awful craving left me, never to return. I know now that my diet has been the cause of my unnatural craving. My diet had not contained enough meat or sweets. As soon as I left home and had a diet rich in these foods my craving left me.

LORDOSIS BACK.

I. C. B. writes: What can be done for a lordosis back? Is there any exercise one can take to cure it?

REPLY.

Lordosis means swayback. Some swayback people are naturally built that way. Nothing they do will change the posture. There is a disease of the muscles which causes swayback. It is generally a disorder of childhood and no exercise cures it. Some cases of swayback can be cured by building up the trunk muscles by rowing, carrying weights, and lifting. In simple cases, walking with the shoulders thrown forward will overcome the sway.

No.

Anxious writes: Several times during the last two or three weeks, when evacuating, I have found considerable blood. What can this mean in a woman? I am 46 years old. Does it mean cancer?

It probably means hemorrhoids. It may mean cancer.

CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—[Friend of the People.]—Please tell me if an alien serving in the world war, U. S. A., can get citizenship papers right away, or does he have to wait two years after he gets his first papers? L. T.

Under present law, which expires on May 25, 1934, an alien who served in the U. S. army during the world war, who was honorably discharged, may petition for citizenship and does not require declaration of intention (first paper), but he must have been permanently admitted to the United States, must have resided continuously in the United States, and must make a showing of good moral character. Petitions for citizenship under this law may not be filed after Feb. 23, 1934. It is suggested that the inquirer call at room 776 Courthouse, Chicago, for further information if he desires to take advantage of the provisions of this act.

CONTEST OF WILL.

Sarasota, Fla., Feb. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My father died a month ago, leaving his home in Chicago and one-third of the balance of his personal property to my brother. 1. Is there any way I can contest this and how soon do I have to act? 2. Would I have to return to Chicago before spring to start action? A bank has been appointed (3) administrator (4) with a clause giving them power to sell, convey, and deliver any part of all real or personal property during the administration of the estate on any terms in its discretion may be for best interest and to distribute proceeds and shall be binding and conclusive on all parties. 5. How can I get a photographic copy of the will? 6. Am I entitled to a statement of the condition of the estate? O. P. R.

1. You would have to prove undue influence or lack of testamentary capacity.
2. No, in the sense that you could arrange by mail to have the proceedings started.
3. The personal representative named in a will is called an executor rather than an administrator.
4. It seems probable that these powers are specified in the will.
5. Write to the clerk of the Probate court.
6. No, but you can secure a copy of the inventory filed in court if you are willing to pay for it.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—Again man goes to the birds to learn about flying, this time to reduce the landing speed of airplanes.

It was from the common pigeon, after he had studied exotic birds the world over, that Dr. A. P. Thurston, British inventor, devised his wing tip rotors which the air ministry is now testing at Farnborough field.

"Briefly, the invention consists of a two bladed rotor fitted over the leading edge of the wing tips," Dr. Thurston says. "When not in use it lies flush with the wing of the plane and thus does not interfere with the air flow.

"When the plane loses forward speed and is about to 'stall' the blades come into action automatically. They are rotated purely by the action of the air, just like the autogiro.

"They rotate at great speed and give the plane first of all the lateral stability which 'slots' have been installed to give. With this device the machine does not put one wing down and then develop a spinning nose dive.

"In the second place, the device assists slow landings. With either the present system of 'slots' or by autogiro flight the pilot must hold the nose of the machine up to slow down the speed. With wing tip rotors it will be possible to dive the machine and still land slowly. The experiments at Farnborough proved that the angle of descent could be increased by well over 30 per cent without the speed of the descent being increased.

"This means that the airplane can reach the ground much more quickly and yet effect a very slow and safe landing. It will be able to skim over tall trees and buildings and yet pancake down from any height and land in a small field."

Dr Thurston visited the tropics to study the flight of condors and other large birds. But he found what he was looking for on his doorstep in Lincoln's Inn Fields.

"The pigeon," he explains, "has a wing called the alula wing. With this it can give its wings increased lift, prevent itself from 'stalling,' and glide steeply though slowly. This alula wing is common to most birds, of course.

"I have simply adopted the principle by a mechanical device to the wing tips of airplanes. Increased lift beyond the 'stall' will be assured and the steep though slow glide results from the use of the wing tip rotors."

The inventor believes that the idea can be developed so that the aileron and the rudder can be eliminated.

In tests in a wind tunnel a 12 inch rotor was used. It was affixed to a 48 inch wing. Military experts engaged in the tests feel that the device may succeed in solving the problem of landing safely in small areas, which has become increasingly acute as the cruising speeds of planes increase.

THE HIGH PRICE OF WINE.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—The United States will never become a country of wine drinkers as long as the present short sighted price policy is maintained by vintners and restaurant owners. The most humble workingman of France or Italy is able to afford wine with his meals, but the average American must be content with water.

At a middle class restaurant in Paris, Florence or Rome one may obtain a generous sized carafe of "vin ordinaire" for the equivalent of ten or fifteen cents. In practically every middle class Chicago restaurant fifteen or twenty cents is charged for a ridiculously small glass of claret, sauterne or burgundy, which is exhausted before the meal is well under way. No person of average means can make a practice of buying this wine in sufficient quantity to consume with a dinner, for restaurants charge from $1.35 to $1.75 for a bottle.

In the middle class eating houses which I patronize each evening I have observed that almost no one orders wine with his meal, though many would like to. The wine industry would do better in the long run if it popularized its product by contenting itself with a reasonable profit per bottle.

It is very well under certain circumstances to advocate a high tariff for the protection of American industry. But the barriers against European wine make it possible for American manufacturers to take advantage of the public in a manner characteristic of their kind. If we cannot accept the wines of France because of that country's refusal to pay its debts, let us take those of Italy and Spain, duty free, until the American wine industry comes to terms with the public. There is no reason why a commodity which is a staple article of diet in most civilized countries should be a prohibitively expensive luxury to Americans. H. B.

ST. PAUL, NOT MINNEAPOLIS.

En Route to Minneapolis, Feb. 2.—Passing through Chicago this morning I bought a copy of your issue of even date and note on page 14 under the caption "Coincidence in Minnesota" the statement that two recent kidnapings, "the one in which the Touhy gang was tried, and now the Bremer case," have been pulled off in Minneapolis.

You are not the first editor east of Minneapolis who hasn't seemed to realize that Minneapolis and St. Paul, the so-called Twin Cities, are not one and the same place.

Please let me correct you in the matter of the kidnapings referred to. I am a member of the Minneapolis city council and do not like to see our city receive credit for virtues or what not really belonging to our sister city. Both these kidnapings took place in St. Paul.

May I suggest also that it would seem prudent on the part of a Chicago editor not to call too much attention to rackets in other cities?

May I add that we almost never have any Indian uprisings in Minneapolis, and that the hotels are all equipped with bath tubs? HORATIO P. VAN CLEVE.
Alderman, Second Ward, Minneapolis.

REORGANIZING A BANK.

Chicago, Feb. 5.—I heartily agree with M. S. M. about the necessity of an investigation of the West Side Trust and Savings bank reorganization matter. This investigation will certainly prove embarrassing to M. S. M. and the group which is backing the plan, which claims to represent depositors but really represents the stockholders, who are trying to settle a $4,000,000 liability for $400,000.

Are the proponents of this plan disclosing to the bank's depositors the fact that the bank's assets will be barely, if at all, sufficient to pay for the RFC loan, so that the depositors have an extremely remote chance of getting anything paid on 60 per cent of their deposits which they will waive? Have they disclosed to the depositors the names of the stockholders and the amounts of their liabilities so that the depositors could judge on actual information rather than on the committee's say so whether or not it would be more advisable for them to accept this plan than to let the bank liquidate in due course? Have they disclosed to the depositors that the bank's receiver can get a loan from the RFC as liberal or even more liberal than the present loan? Have they shown that the plan which they submit is the best plan for the depositors? The answer, of course, to all of the above questions is no.

The fact is that the proposed plan is nothing more than an attempt to put something over, and nothing would show this more clearly than a full open hearing on the merits and demerits of the plan, which I suspect its proponents will oppose most strenuously when the matter comes up again. HAROLD JACKSON.

CRIMES COMPARED.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Today's TRIBUNE tells of a family of eight who lived on relief for almost 14 years, although they had $4,000 in the bank. They were found guilty of theft of $902.94. Quite a crime. The same paper tells of an employé of a company in Hammond, Ind., who stole $132,000 and was fined $1 and costs for his crime. I just wonder who is the better citizen, the one who stole to feed his children or he who stole to gamble? U TELL ME.

ILLINOIS STRIKES AT TENNESSEE ON TRUCK LICENSES

Southern State Asks Full Fee for One Trip.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—The arrest of Tennessee truck drivers operating in Illinois without an Illinois truck license was ordered this afternoon by Secretary of State Hughes as a reprisal against the southern state for its treatment of Illinois trucks.

"This seems to be the only way to argue with Tennessee," said Lee A. Friend, chief of the investigating department of Secretary Hughs' office. "The Tennessee authorities turned down our overtures for reciprocal courtesies to the truck operator on an occasional trip into the state."

Mr. Friend received a letter from Dancey Fort of the Tennessee departments of finance and taxation saying that under the new law in the southern state there was no alternative but to compel privately owned and operated Illinois trucks to purchase a full year's license for a single trip into or through the southern state.

Friend Raises Two Points.

"I'm writing another letter to Mr. Fort raising two points," said Mr. Friend. "First, I'm mentioning that Kentucky owners of privately operated trucks have been given a special dispensation so they can drive into Tennessee four times a month without a Tennessee license. Second, I'm calling his attention to section 20 of the Illinois motor vehicle code."

Section 20 is a reciprocity clause, saying in effect that Illinois will treat visitors as Illinois residents are treated in the native states of the visitors.

"I'm instructing the state highway police," said Mr. Friend, "to halt Tennessee trucks until they procure Illinois licenses. We'll keep this up until Tennessee listens to reason."

Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, said that the detour of tourist traffic around Tennessee might be as effective as the Illinois police activity against Tennessee trucks. He pointed out that Tennessee, while enforcing its rigorous measures against trucks, was also charging an 8 cent gasoline tax.

TENNESSEE SEES LIGHT

Knoxville, Tenn., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—The howl of anguish which has gone up from Tennessee motor clubs, chambers of commerce and newspapers over the "Tourist Boycott" on Tennessee proposed by the Chicago Motor club and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, probably will result in a modification of Tennessee's motor laws, it appeared tonight.

The Knoxville News-Sentinel, a member of the Scripps-Howard chain of newspapers, today poked fun at Chicago in an article entitled "George Washington and Andrew Jackson never visited Chicago—why should we?" The other side of the situation was pointed out by Joe Hatcher, political columnist for the Knoxville Journal and the Nashville Tennessean.

Gives State "Black Eye."

"Where Dayton's monkey trial and other such affairs stopped off in giving Tennessee a black eye to the nation, the automobile license laws of the state and the enforcement thereof are continuing," Mr. Hatcher declared.

"The unreasonableness of the law that requires that every truck or passenger vehicle operating on any highway must bear a Tennessee license is making enemies for the state," the article continued.

"The state is merely killing the gasoline tax goose to get a single golden egg. And still the people go ahead permitting a legislature to meet every two years in this state."

The News-Sentinel's humorous article carried an accompanying map which showed four routes by which the north pole can be reached from Knoxville by "discriminate travelers" without going through Chicago. Chicago was labeled as "unfair to education."

OIL PLANT OWNER ASKS INJUNCTION AGAINST GAS TAX

A suit filed yesterday in the United States District court in behalf of the Blue Rose Oil company, 5820 Ogden avenue, Cicero, asked that K. L. Ames Jr., director of the Illinois department of finance, the Cicero police, and the state highway police be restrained from "picketing and molesting" the oil plant.

Charles D. Duncan of Hinsdale, president of the company, has refused to buy a state operator's license on the grounds that the Illinois gasoline tax law is unconstitutional. The suit filed yesterday charged that the tax is discriminatory because operators of passenger automobiles must pay the same tax as that paid by operators of commercial vehicles operated for profit.

The suit also charged that the state law is discriminatory because motorists can fill tanks in other states and use the Illinois highways; that commercial vehicles damage the highways to a greater extent than passenger automobiles, although both pay the same tax. Duncan has been arrested for his failure to purchase a license and is to appear before a Cicero magistrate on that charge.

Gunmen Rob Physician; One Poses as Patient

Two gunmen, one posing as a patient, held up Dr. Leo Awotin in his office in his home at 5914 South Francisco avenue last night. "My friend is ill," said one of the robbers. "Will you examine him?" As Dr. Awotin prepared to examine the second man both drew guns. They stole $80 and two revolvers valued at $50 and then fled.

GRANTED DIVORCE

Mrs. Barbara C. Murphy, 26 years old, 844 Rush street, a member of the chorus in the musical show, "Hold Your Horses," yesterday won a divorce from John H. Murphy, a New York broker. Mrs. Murphy testified before Circuit Judge Walter J. La Buy that her husband deserted her on Jan. 1, 1932, following their marriage in August, 1929. She asked no alimony. Her attorney was Leo Miller.

UPHOLDS PARK BOARD'S ACTION ON PARKING FEES

Circuit Judge Joseph Burke yesterday sustained the demurrer filed by the south park board to a bill brought by Timothy H. Klapperich as a taxpayer, asking for an accounting by the board and W. C. Kominske of the proceeds of two parking places operated by Kominske at A Century of Progress. Klapperich asserted that the contract between Kominske and the board was invalid and asked that Kominske be ordered to return the money received as parking fees. Judge Burke in sustaining the demurrer held that Klapperich had failed to show specific injury to himself which would allow him to maintain the suit. Kominske's attorneys announced an appeal.

Blonde Accuses Doctor of Theft, Narcotic Charges

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Mrs. Caroline Pulitzer, a comely blonde, today charged in Yorkville court that morphine administered by Dr. Frank H. Russell, 53, three years ago had caused her to become a narcotic addict, that the doctor had collected several thousands for daily injections, and finally had stolen a $12,000 stock certificate while she was unconscious. Dr. Russell denied the accusations and was held in $2,500 bail for the grand jury.

BRITAIN MERGES CUNARD, WHITE STAR SHIP LINES

Opens Fight to Win Back Blue Ribbon Honors.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Great Britain launched a fight today to regain the blue-ribbon honors of the North Atlantic through the formal announcement of the merger of the Cunard and White Star shipping lines, with the government assisting financially.

Work consequently is expected to be hastened on the unfinished giant "534," now on the stocks at Clydebank, so that the new "queen of the waters" can enter a speed race with Germany's Bremen and Europa and Italy's Rex as soon as possible.

The new company, to be called Cunard-White Star, Ltd., will have a combined fleet of 25 ships under its flag, headed by Cunard's Berengaria and Mauretania and White Star's Majestic.

Long Negotiations.

The new board will have ten members, six nominated by Cunard and four by White Star. The merger, which followed long negotiations, has practically been in effect since Jan. 1, when accounts of the firms were combined.

Leslie Hore-Belisha, financial secretary to the treasury, announced before the house of commons that the lines had reached an agreement with the treasury. An advance not exceeding $15,000,000 was agreed upon for the completion of the "534." From time to time a total of not more than $7,500,000 for working capital will be advanced by the treasunry.

Treasury to Aid.

"It is regarded by all parties hereto," the agreement said, "as the cardinal principle of the merged company that it is to be and remain under British control."

A provision was made that legislation to be introduced in parliament will include authorization for the treasury to advance the company funds not exceeding $25,000,000 for building another ship or ships.

The "534"—it has no other name yet—is designed to be the biggest ship afloat. According to previously announced plans, it will cost about $25,000,000 and be of 73,000 tons. Contracts for it were let in December, 1930, and more than $9,000,000 was expended on it before construction was suspended more than a year ago.

Marries for Fourth Time; Husband Once Her Second

Reno, Nev., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Mrs. Marion Hayden Keenan, whose second marriage to Alexander S. Keenan Jr., San Francisco deputy district attorney, ended in divorce yesterday, was married today for a fourth time. The bridegroom was Gilbert O'Shaughnessy, Reno cabaret musician, another former husband. The ceremony climaxed a matrimonial mixup with Keenan her first and third husband and O'Shaughnessy her second and fourth.

NEW YORK CITY TAX RATE BOOST IS ANNOUNCED

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—New York City taxpayers who had assumed that under the agreement with the bankers, their tax rates would not be higher than those of last year, will find a sharp increase in their 1934 bills, it became evident today.

Controler W. Arthur Cunningham's estimate of the tax rate for 1934, revealed today, is $2.70 per $100 of valuation as a basic rate, an increase over last year's rate of 37 cents per hundred and one of the highest rates taxpayers ever had paid. In addition assessments will be added in each borough, increasing the final bill. The 1933 figure was $2.33.

The aggregate amount to be levied on all taxable property in the city is fixed within the bankers' agreement at 429 million dollars. The figure cannot be increased to provide additional funds for budgetary purposes. But the joker in this provision is the fact that although the entire city pays the same levy for the four years, the burden can be shifted up or down on particular property by the department of taxes and assessments.

Because of the tremendous reduction in assessed valuations which have been granted by that board—most of them during the closing days of the O'Brien administration—the load is bound to fall, it is said, more heavily on the small home owners in the outlying sections of the city whose bills will be materially higher.

WEST SIDE SEWER CONTRACT IS LET BY CANAL BOARD

The sanitary district trustees at their board meeting yesterday voted to award a $1,134,024 contract to the Nash Brothers contracting firm for the construction of a new branch of the west side intercepting sewer system. The contract was let by the trustees subject to the approval of Joshua D'Esposito, chief engineer for the local Public Works administration board.

The project was the second to be awarded on funds from the recent $42,000,000 federal grant. Work on the sewer section which will collect sewage from the loop district is expected to start within two weeks and will provide jobs for more than 300 workmen, according to Philip Harrington, chief engineer for the district. The board also authorized the clerk to advertise for bids for construction of a third branch of the west side system.

5 JUDGES AWAY ON VACATION AS CRIME WAR LAGS

More Help Is Sought to Clear Docket.

The crime wave in Chicago rose higher yesterday, with two policemen lying near death as a result of wounds received in battles with bandits and a number of holdups reported. In the face of this evidence of the need for clearing the Criminal court docket in order that captured criminals may be given prompt justice there was no progress yesterday in the campaign for additional judges in the Criminal court.

A survey of the county building revealed that at least five judges have selected this winter period to journey to warmer climes for vacations. A judge's salary of $1,250 a month continues throughout the year. The courts are normally in vacation for two months in the summer.

Vacationing Judges Named.

One reason offered for the failure to send judges of the Circuit and Superior courts to the Criminal court has been that the civil courts need judges more than the Criminal court because of overburdened dockets. All five vacationing judges have been hearing civil cases. They are:

JUDGE JOSEPH SABATH, at Hot Springs, Ark.
JUDGE ROBERT E. GENTZEL, resting in Florida.
JUDGE JOSEPH B. DAVID, in southern California.
JUDGE MARCUS KAVANAGH, at Biloxi, Miss.
JUDGE JOHN P. M'GOORTY, resting in the east.

Most of these judges, according to their bailiffs, have vacations coming to them because they worked for a while last summer. Judge Kavanagh will return and start hearing cases in the Criminal court next Tuesday. Judge Daniel P. Trude, now in the civil court, will go over to the Criminal branch, thus raising the number of judges there to twelve.

Sullivan Silent on Vacations.

Acting Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Superior court, known as one of the hardest workers on the bench, refused to comment when informed of the vacations taken by his colleagues. He had something to say, however, about the question of hiring country judges to help out in the civil courts of Cook county.

Judge Sullivan on Wednesday criticized the county board's refusal to allow an appropriation for traveling and other expenses of the downstate judges, pointing out that a country judge could not be expected to pay railroad and hotel expenses here out of his $20 a day compensation.

In reply President Emmett Whealan of the county board declared that country judges within driving distance of Chicago should be hired.

"We have tried in vain to get judges within a 100 mile radius of Chicago to sit in Cook county and help us out," said Judge Sullivan in reply to this statement. "Seventy-eight per cent of Illinois' litigation is in the northern area of Illinois and the judges outside of Cook county are too busy to come here. We must go down into the southern part of the state to find judges with time enough to hear Cook county cases."

Lineup of the Judges.

The lineup of Cook county judges, excluding county and probate judges, yesterday was as follows: Ten Circuit court judges working; one Circuit judge taking the day off; one Juvenile court judge working; eleven Superior court judges working; five Superior court judges on vacation; ten Criminal court judges working. There were also seven downstate judges working in the county building.

With two more judges entering the Criminal court Monday that court probably will have more working judges than either of the civil courts and Judge Sullivan said twelve Criminal court judges should be able to attack the docket effectively.

Chief Justice Finnegan of the Criminal court announced that he would ask the Criminal court judges at their regular monthly meeting next Tuesday to insist upon four more judges to hear criminal cases.

M'DONOUGH ASKS 20 PETITIONS FOR RECEIVERSHIPS

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday were $261,755, making a total of $105,456,419 collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began on April 28, 1933. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for four years follow:

	1928.	1929.
Feb. 8 .....$	15,783 $	22,657
Uncollected	15,332,437	41,058,566
	1930.	1931.
Feb. 8 .....$	48,613 $	174,702
Uncollected	64,906,489	62,759,512

The day's collections of 1931 personal property taxes totaled $9,456.

County Treasurer McDonough yesterday filed twenty more tax receivership petitions against properties delinquent a total of $39,857 in taxes for 1928, 1929, and 1930. The petitions, filed in the County court, ask the appointment of the treasurer as receiver under the Kerner-Skarda act. Among the properties sued is a building at 434-36 Wellington avenue which owes $7,074 in taxes for the three years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after-effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound; you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 15c, 30c, 60c.

JUDGE EDELMAN SAYS BOND SALE IS NEWS TO HIM

Discusses Release of Forger Weiss.

Judge Leon Edelman of the Municipal court declared in an interview last night that he had never heard of the court's rule which prohibits a judge from accepting bail for a prisoner in a felony case without the approval of an assistant state's attorney.

Judge Edelman was referring to a statement of the court's chief justice, John J. Sonsteby, who said the judge violated the rules of the court by approving a bond for Lester Weiss, a notorious forger, in the Edelman home at 1:30 o'clock on the morning of Jan. 26.

"If there is such a rule Judge Sonsteby never told me anything about it," said Judge Edelman.

Lawyer Arranges Interview.

The interview with Judge Edelman, arranged by his attorney, Samuel A. Hoffman, was the first he had granted since the freeing of Weiss, who jumped his bond and has not been found. But it was domestic difficulties and not his reluctance to discuss the 1:30 a. m. bond that kept him inaccessible, the judge explained. He confirmed reports that his wife had accused him of misconduct with another woman, but declared:

"I am confident that this difficulty will be straightened out by my lawyer, Mr. Hoffman, and that my wife will accompany me on a trip to California."

Then the interview with the judge proceeded as follows:

Q.—There are reports, judge, that $200 was paid by somebody to somebody in conenction with getting Weiss out on bond. Do you know anything about that? A.—I know I didn't get it. Here is my bankbook. You can see for yourself that I haven't deposited any such amount.

Q.—Did Robert Marcus, the professional bondsman, ask you to approve the bond? A.—No. So far as I know Marcus had nothing to do with it. Attorney George R. Bieber and Mrs. Anna Skolnik, one of the sureties on the bond, came to my house. She had signed bonds before and I thought this one was all right. She swore her property was worth $15,000.

Denies He'd Been Drinking.

Q.—When you approved this bond, judge, were you perhaps slightly under the influence of alcohol? A.—No, I was not drunk. I had been to a 24th ward political meeting, but I hadn't been drinking. I had just returned home when they came out asking me to approve the bond.

The property scheduled for Weiss' $15,000 bond had an appraised valuation of $3,484, indicating a real value of around $10,000, and this was subject to incumbrances of $4,800. The law requires that real estate scheduled on a bond shall have a value twice the amount of the bond.

Judge Edelman, on motion of the state's attorney, has cited Mrs. Skolnik for contempt, and the police are seeking the other surety, Morris Lakowitz.

UNION CHIEFTAIN, 11 OTHERS SEIZED AS ROBBER GANG

George Roy Baker, 30 years old, union business agent, and nine other men and two women were arrested last night as alleged members of a bandit gang which has stolen $30,000 in Chicago in holdups in the last eight months. The arrests were made by Capt. John Stege and Sergts. Frank Reynolds and William Smith.

Police said Baker was the gang leader. Baker is known as a union organizer. Last May he led a group of insurgents into headquarters of the Coal Teamsters' union and physically ousted the incumbent officers. His coup was short lived, for he and his followers were similarly treated a few days later.

Within a few hours of the arrests one of the prisoners confessed to eleven different robberies. In another holdup, that of the B. A. Railton company, 363 West Erie street, in which $4,600 was stolen, Baker was identified by witnesses. Two other prisoners were also identified.

JAILED ON DOPE CHARGE.

William Moore, 40 years old, 5616 West Austin avenue, charged with possessing narcotics, was sentenced to six months in the Bridewell and fined $1 by Judge Frederick W. Elliott yesterday.

FIGHTING COLDS!

Don't stop with temporary relief, but try to get the cold out of your system.

Any family can cut down the time lost and suffering due to colds, by intelligent care.

Try above all else to clear the head, dry the secretions, and reduce the fever. Until this is done, you are never really rid of your cold.

You can get the necessary medicines of any druggist, by asking for Pape's Cold Compound which combines them in a pleasant tablet.

An ordinary cold may be relieved with three of these little tablets; just chew them up, and drink some water.

A more stubborn cold will require a second treatment, and often a second day's treatment. But isn't it worth the time, if you get real relief?

Don't put any faith in so-called "instant" cures. Pape's Cold Compound relieves a cold as quickly as anything you could safely take.

TWO POLICEMEN, SHOT BY GUNMEN, FIGHT FOR LIFE

Wounded Man, Wife Held as Robbery Suspects.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Roy Quinn, embezzlement, sentenced to one to ten years in the penitentiary by Judge Walter P. Steffen.

Two policemen, severely wounded by gunmen in the frustration of a holdup and in a battle with safeblowers, were fighting for their lives yesterday as other policemen arrested a wounded man and his wife suspected of having participated in the safeblowers' gun battle.

In another robbery a citizen received a wound which may be fatal. Jack Vanders, 35 years old, was shot in the abdomen by one of two bandits who robbed the grocery owned by Vanders' sister, Mrs. Marie Matson, at 5010 Ferdinand street, and obtained $75.

Grapples with Gunmen.

Mrs. Matson and her mother, Mrs. Antoinette Vanders, were alone in the store when the gunmen appeared and looted the till. As they started to leave Vanders entered, saw the guns and grappled with one of the bandits. The man shot him and both escaped.

Policeman Emil Harder of the Fillmore station was declared to be in a serious condition at the Frances Willard hospital after he had been shot by a robber who attempted to hold up the Columbus Park pharmacy, 5575 West Van Buren street. On guard in the store, which had been robbed six times in the last five years, Harder was in the washroom unarmed when the gunman entered. He was shot as he tried to wrench a gun from the man. The robber escaped without obtaining any money.

Fighting for Life.

In the Alexian Brothers hospital, attendants said that Policeman Ernest W. Bauer of the Sheffield avenue station, was in a critical condition as the result of a face wound. Bauer was shot early in the day when police trapped two burglars in the offices of the National Clock and Manufacturing company, 928 Fullerton avenue.

One of the burglars, Philip J. Stumpf, 26 years old, 1846 Fremont street, was wounded and captured when he tried to flee by a fire escape. He was shot in the leg. Later in the day police arrested John Kelly, alias John Wallace, and his wife, Cecilia, in an apartment at 4631 North Paulina street. Lieut. Thomas Duffy believes Kelly was the second robber.

Kelly was found in bed suffering from two bullets wounds in his back. His legs were peppered with shotgun pellets. At the Bridewell hospital it was said his condition was serious due to loss from blood.

Named in "Confesison."

Kelly denied to police that he had been connected with the robbery, but Lieut. Duffy declared that he had obtained a confession from Stumpf involving Kelly. Kelly claimed that he had been shot on the street near his home by two holdup men.

Kelly, the lieutenant believes, was the man who ran from the Clock company's offices in the midst of gun fire and forced himself into a car driven by Michael De Vitto, 533 North Trumbull avenue, who was accompanied by Miss Laura Siko, 924 Fullerton avenue. In the rear seat was Policeman Felix Kosinski who had asked De Vitto to take him to the scene of the robbery. As the burglar smashed the rear window, Policeman Kosinski jumped from the car and he and the gunman traded shots as De Vitto was forced to drive on for a few blocks.

Found Near Kelly Home.

A few blocks away the robber forced De Vitto and Miss Siko from the car and drove on. The machine, with blood stains on the seat, was abandoned near the apartment when Kelly was found.

Policeman Harder was shot in the abdomen when the gunmen entered the rear section of the west side pharmacy, forcing the clerk, Max Weinstein, 3543 Douglas boulevard, before him.

Harder came from the wash room without his revolver and tried to seize the gunman's weapon, but the latter leaped away and fired once. The policeman, who is 57 years old and has served 31 years on the department, dropped to the floor. As the bandit fled to the front door, the clerk recovered the policeman's gun and fired five shots.

BREWERY WORKER ROBBED.

DR. KENNEDY'S LETTER TELLS OF HIS TAKING TOO MUCH MORPHINE

Greenwood, Miss., Feb. 8.—(AP)—An alleged letter from Dr. John Preston Kennedy to Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean, in which the former declared his love, used affectionate terms, and admitted having nearly died in 1932 as a result of taking "too much morphine," was made public tonight by attorneys defending Dr. Dean.

They had been temporarily blocked in an attempt to place the letter before the jury trying the woman for the death of Dr. Kennedy in 1933.

The letter made public by Dr. Dean's attorneys described how Dr. Kennedy became violently ill after taking the dose of morphine.

FORMER STATE RELIEF OFFICIAL ADMITS SWINDLE

Carl Harned, former head of the tabulating department of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, was reported last night to have told police how he had swindled the commission out of hundreds of dollars—and how easy it was to do so.

On the strength of Harned's story, detectives arrested Oscar Johnson, 45 years old, 5613 Drexel avenue, a former IERC employé. Johnson denied any implication in the embezzlement, but is said to have admitted knowing that cheating was done.

Harned, who is a former Secret Six investigator, told police, they said, that swindling on the part of relief workers was not uncommon, and that many men, including himself, had basked in Florida sunshine and gambled on Florida horse races with the proceeds of their fraudulent manipulations.

KEEPER OF DIVE CONFESSES IN VICE RING CASE

Indictments Expected; U. S. Inquiry Under Way

The confession of a disorderly house keeper was obtained by the state's attorney yesterday in connection with the investigation of a vice ring which is reported to have sent escaped inmates of the Illinois State Training School for Girls at Geneva to houses of prostitution in Chicago and a number of middle western cities.

The indictment of five persons accused of helping in the escapes of girls from the school is expected today or tomorrow, according to the announcement of Assistant State's Attorney Julius Sherwin.

Confesses Vice Activities.

In a long written confession, Angelo Louisa, keeper of a roadhouse on the outskirts of Coal City, Ill., explained how girls were brought from the Geneva home for girls and distributed to the vice ring's outlying branches through a central headquarters in Chicago.

Two Negroes went to Louisa's place, he said, and suggested that they could supply him with a number of white girls. He was taken to the Spencer hotel, 300 East Garfield boulevard, in Chicago, he said, and "bought" five young women of a group of 20 shown him. The price paid was not revealed.

U. S. Investigates Charges.

United States Attorney Dwight H. Green revealed yesterday that the federal bureau of investigation was investigating the vice ring because of charges that a number of girls from Illinois were sent into other states in violation of the Mann act.

A raid on Wednesday by Lieut. Frank Johnson of the state's attorney's office on the Spencer hotel climaxed months of investigation by George T. Scully, supervisor of paroles. Twenty-six persons, six of them white girls who recently escaped from the Geneva institution, were taken into custody. Among those seized were Louisa, David Young, 259 West 22d place; Jessie White, colored, of the Spencer hotel; Calvin Stone, one of the keepers of the hotel; and Rose Bianca of Rockford, Ill.

Harriet Cole, colored, 32 years old, 5944 South Park way, another alleged keeper of a disorderly resort, was also held at the detective bureau. Policeman Harold McCoy, colored, attached to the Wabash avenue station, tried to talk to her, telling the state's attorney that she was a "good friend" of his. He was not allowed to see her.

Two Policemen Accused.

Two policemen, one a Negro, were members of the vice syndicate, according to Scully, and gave warnings of impending police raids upon hotels operated by the ring in return for favors received.

A Negro pander, Glasgow Brigham, is being sought as the head of the ring, it was reported, as well as a Chinese whose name was not revealed.

The cases against Louisa and Rose Bianca, were continued yesterday in the Women's court before Judge Frank M. Padden until March 8 at the request of Prosecutor Sherwin.

The Waukegan police last night arrested Ramona Flores, colored, keeper of an alleged disorderly house at 40 Spring street, Waukegan, and one of the inmates, Betty Carter, 22 years old, who was hiding in an attic room. The police said they had evidence to show Betty was one of those who escaped from the Geneva school.

LINK 3 TO VICE RING IN GIRL'S IMPRISONMENT

Police arrested two women and a man yesterday as alleged members of a vice ring which kidnaped Virginia McAdams, 16 years old, and held her prisoner for several months. They were Mrs. Helen Agar, 23 years old, 1843 South Troy street; Mrs. Esther Oakie McKean, 41, of 13 West Ohio street, and Jacob Steinberg, 49, owner of the State hotel, 555 South State street.

A TRUE STORY

By A MOTHER

whose discovery, back in 1923, has helped her to keep her family happy ever since

FOR almost eleven years Mrs. J. L. Wolle, of Upper Darby, Pennsylvania, has known a very valuable secret that has helped her take care of her family. But let her tell her own story.

"It would be hard to find a healthier family than ours," she writes. "My two little boys, Jimmy, aged four and a half, and Larry, aged three, play hard outdoors all day, and come in for meals half starved. They are both over-size for their age, with sound teeth, and active minds. It means a lot, I can tell you, to have children always happy and well.

"We think we know the reason for their health. Perhaps some other people might like to know it, too. It is a healthy mother before their birth, and Nujol.

"I had used Nujol for at least five years before I was married in 1928. Nujol kept me well before my baby was born, and when I brought Jimmy back from the hospital the doctor said, 'Why don't you use your old standby, Nujol? It is one of the few things which is perfectly harmless for a small baby.' I started in giving him a teaspoonful morning and night; gradually I reduced the amount, until I gave him nothing at all. If he seemed to be getting an upset stomach or a slight cold, I'd start the Nujol again.

"For more than four years now he has been getting Nujol. It has never upset his stomach—just seems to keep him feeling fine.

"Jimmy was such a healthy baby from Nujol, and I was so strong and well, that I didn't experiment when my second baby, Larry, came along. I gave him Nujol from the start. I have been mighty thankful to my doctor for his advice. It has made a lot of difference in our lives."

Nothing we could add to Mrs. Wolle's letter would make it any more convincing. Follow her example. Try Nujol yourself. Bring your children up on it to be regular as clockwork. Nujol now comes in two forms, plain Nujol and Cream of Nujol, the latter flavored and often preferred by children. Get it at any drug store.

What is your Nujol story? If you have been using Nujol for ten years or more, if you are bringing up your children on it, tell us. Address Stanco Incorporated, 2 Park Avenue, New York City.

"TWO TO ONE PREFERENCE FOR TRIBUNE WANT ADS"

SO SAY TENANTS CHECKED BY 17 LEADING RENTAL AGENTS

● Recently 17 leading Chicago rental agents decided to get the up-to-date facts about rental want advertising.

● Each agent wrote letters to the tenants in the building he manages, asking for answers to a few questions on a ballot postcard.

● After the agents tabulated the 1,942 replies, they found that 1,423 of the tenants—or 73%—preferred Tribune Want Ads.

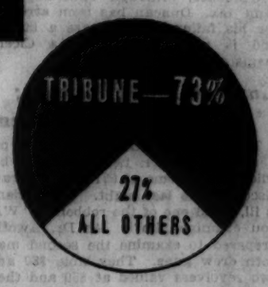
"Let's ask the people who sign the leases and pay the rent." This was the idea of 17 leading rental agents who recently decided to get the facts about rental want advertising. Each agent sent a letter to the tenants in the buildings he managed. Tenants were asked to fill in the answers to a few questions on a prepaid return postcard. Replies were sent direct to the agents who tabulated the answers.

A total of 1,942 tenants returned filled-in cards. Of this number, 1,423, or 73%, said they would consult Tribune want ads first when looking for an apartment.

This was a lead of better than 2 to 1 for the Tribune over the next Chicago newspaper, an 8 to 1 lead over the third newspaper, 16 to 1 over the fourth.

You are invited to get all the interesting facts developed by this important study, which included practically all neighborhoods, all rental ranges. No matter where your apartments are located, this survey can give you information by which you can profit. Ask a Tribune representative to show it to you. Call Superior 0100—today!



THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR RESULTS!

Rate per word or per line does not measure the cost of want advertising. What you, as a landlord or rental agent, are interested in is results. Chicago Tribune want ads get action for you at low cost because the Tribune reaches 620,000 families in city and suburbs—59% more families than any other Chicago daily newspaper reaches.

Many Chicago Guests Attend Dartmouth Fete

Winter Carnival Is Famous Throughout U. S.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THERE are few debutantes or post-debs in Chicago this week-end who are not secretly wishing they were down east in the little snow-clad village of Hanover, N. H. Beginning today, Hanover is putting on its best bib and tucker to play host to the 900 fair young women who are coming from all parts of the country to be guests at Dartmouth's 24th annual winter carnival, the most famous of all collegiate winter festivals.

According to custom, it's to be an event royal. The Dartmouth Outing club is responsible for the plans which have for their highlight today the "Arctic Antics" in which the queen of the carnival will be crowned. The "antics" will portray a ski battle between rival Eskimo villages for possession of the queen. After the crowning ceremony there will be exhibition skating, fireworks, and then skiing and skating by floodlight for all of the guests.

Changing to formal attire later, all of the hosts and their pretty partners will attend the initial performance of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Iolanthe" by the Dartmouth Players before they return to the various fraternity houses for dances that will continue until sunrise.

Carnival Always. Sleepless Week-End.

Sleep is the most remote thought of all of the young hosts and their guests during the three day carnival week-end, for it is a continual round of merrymaking from the time the special trains deliver their passengers today at White River Junction until farewells will be said late Sunday night.

Although the intercollegiate winter sports union championships, in which Dartmouth will defend its title against twelve other college teams, gets under way today, the contests will provide the greatest thrills tomorrow when the downhill ski races and the ski jumping tournament are held.

The Chicago representation at the carnival is to be larger than ever this year, with several of society's prettiest young women stepping off of trains today with their suitcases filled with nobby woolens and sleek formals.

Tall, stunning Ruth Johnston and chestnut haired Jane Hart, both of Highland Park, are to be two of the guests at the Delta Kappa Epsilon house. And, incidentally, an invitation to the DKE house, along with those to the Alpha Delta and Psi U houses, are among the most coveted for Dartmouth's carnival.

Other Chicago guests of the Dekes will be Miss Audrey Kanaley of Winnetka and Miss Eleanor Sims. Miss Beatrice Bamford, a lovely Titian haired girl, and Miss Marjorie Stern, both of Glencoe, are to make their headquarters during the carnival at the Alpha Delta house. Miss Jane Snyder, Miss Margaret Kelly, Miss Jean McDonnell, and Miss Doris Lane will be guests of Psi U's.

Alice Bradley Will Attend.

Miss Alice Bradley, daughter of the Herbert E. Bradleys, is leaving her studies at Sarah Lawrence college to be a guest at the Phi Delta Theta house along with Miss Betty Heath and Miss Kay French. Another Sarah Lawrence student, Miss Nancy Harris, daughter of the junior Alan Harrises and a debutante of the last season, will be a guest of the Sigma Chis.

Miss Mira Lee Benoist, just back from a holiday in England, is one of those who has made the trip all the way from Chicago for the party. Miss Benoist will be another guest at the Sigma Chi house and so will Miss Mary Clokey and Miss Marjorie Moore of Evanston, Miss Katherine Korrady of Winnetka, and Miss Elizabeth Quinlan of Wilmette.

Miss Catherine Weary left Winnetka on Tuesday. And still other Chicagoans are Miss Janet Silby, Miss Mary Manley, Miss Peggy Osborn, Miss Jane Robertson, Miss Rhoda Minkler, Miss Winifred Jackson, Miss Marian Sykes, whose engagement to Andrew Longacre of Yonkers, N. Y., has just been announced and who will visit Smith, where she was graduated last year while east; Miss Inez Bouvea, Miss Gertrude Matthews, Miss Mary McNulty, Miss Nancy Moir, and Miss Ann Hatfield.

Stag Banquet of Dartmouth Alumni.

Here in Chicago this evening the carnival will be the chief topic of interest at the annual stag banquet the Dartmouth Alumni association is having at the Interfraternity club. Dean Craven Laycock, declaring himself "too old for carnival fun," is here to be the speaker.

Other special guests are to be the fathers of Dartmouth's Chicago undergraduates, representatives of other college alumni associations, and the headmasters of various secondary schools in and about Chicago. After the banquet the annual election of officers will be held. Samuel W. Banning is now the president.

Doris Bokum Will be Bride on Birthday.

On Thursday, March 15, just fifteen minutes before Miss Doris Bokum, daughter of the Norris H. Bokums, walks down the aisle of St. Chrysostom's church to exchange wedding vows with Newton C. King, she will have been exactly 19 years old.

A very lovely bride Miss Bokum will be, too, for she is tall and blonde and very pretty. When her engagement to the son of the Calvin P. Kings was announced last Aug. 15 it meant giving up debut plans, but that did not take the fun out of Miss Bokum's winter, for both she and her fiancé are such popular young people that they went to all of the debut parties anyway.

The marriage will be performed at

Beauty Aids

Heading the list of grooming gadgets that contribute so much to a woman's beauty are the inexpensive, thin little cotton puffs that are used once and thrown away.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

When you consider their importance to the general scheme of a woman's beauty it's a mean shame that grooming gadgets are so often unhonored and unsung. And when you consider how relatively few women take advantage of the fact that the beauty woods are full of them and that they cost next to nothing, it's even sadder.

Take powder puffs for instance. A glimpse of a soiled puff in a woman's fingers or in the depths of her purse can wreck a romance faster than the most glamorous getup can promote one, but lots of women who want to be beautiful and alluring don't realize it. They cling like leeches to one puff for weeks or even months, when it's obviously rouge stained, powder smeared and downright grimy. It's a dumb trick. Aside from violating the first rule of good skin and destroying at least 90 per cent of the effectiveness of every makeup, it's unnecessary. Individual puffs are all over the place.

Almost every shop in Chicago that caters to women has the thin little puffs at a cost that's somewhere around a handful for a penny. The fastidious woman and the woman who uses her beauty brains wouldn't be without them; she uses one for lotions, one for rouges, one for her powder and always has a few in her purse or in her desk. It's a great idea, and she doesn't feel like a spendthrift when she tosses one away after using it only once.

Women are much better educated up to cleansing tissues than to the neat little puffs we find. Almost every woman uses the tissues rather lavishly because they're so sanitary, so utterly satisfactory for removing every vestige of cream and quite inexpensive.

Complexion brushes are something else again. They're elegant little beauty aids that too few women take advantage of. They leave your skin clean and tingling after its scrubbing and you can get them now almost everywhere. Incidentally, they're grand things to have about the house where there are children's skins to be looked after. They'll keep their faces rosy and well scrubbed.

Small things, these, but they play big rôles in the pageant of beauty—and they're all around the town if you want to seek them out.

Prof. Redfield Made Dean of Division of U. of C. Social Science

Robert Redfield has been appointed dean of the division of social sciences, one of the five main units in arts, literature and science of the University of Chicago. He succeeds Beardsley Ruml, who resigned to become treasurer of R. H. Macy & Co., New York.

The appointment of Dr. Redfield was announced yesterday, following the monthly meeting of the university board of trustees. In addition to becoming dean, Dr. Redfield was promoted from associate professor to the rank of professor. Both appointments are effective March 1.

In his efforts to systematize the study of culture, Prof. Redfield has been especially concerned with problems arising in the field of racial and cultural contacts, and his research has been centered on studies to determine the effects of western civilization on primitive races.

As a research associate of the Carnegie institution since 1930 he has been in charge of ethnological and sociological research in Yucatan, where he has spent part of the last three years. The first volume of the reports on the investigations made by himself and the staff under his direction is entitled "Chankom—A Maya Village," and is now in press.

In 1926, while a graduate student in anthropology, Prof. Redfield began a study in Tepoztlan, Morelos, Mex., a community where a distinctive culture was undergoing influence from modern civilization. At this time he was accompanied in the Mexican village by his wife, a daughter of Prof. Robert E. Park of the university, and their two children. The result of this research was published by the University of Chicago press in a volume entitled, "Tepoztlan, a Mexican Village."

Prof. Redfield was born in Chicago, Dec. 4, 1897, the son of the late Robert Redfield, corporation lawyer, and Bertha Dreier Redfield, now Mrs. Paul Willer-Petersen.

President May Select His Own Guest List Now

Army and Navy Party Last Official Reception.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Perhaps there should be a law against permitting any male, and especially an uncouth and raw mid-western male, to report the windup of the official social season in Washington, but since the editor has ordered such an account, at a late hour, and since the best of Washington's women reporters is out somewhere polishing up on her own sincere social duties, it falls to this aforesaid uncouth person to attempt to fill the gap.

Tonight the White House is a-clatter with the spurs of the army and the swords of the navy as the official reception to the officers of the American military—and this includes the brave gentlemen of the marine corps—marks the end of the season so far as the White House is concerned.

In other words, the functions which will take place at that lovely mansion between now and late spring will be those which the President and Mrs. Roosevelt will choose to give, not those which the protocol officers and the White House social staff rule the President and Mrs. Roosevelt must give.

And the guests at the coming functions will be those whom the President and his wife wish as their company, not those whose ratings in the codes of capital precedent specify that they must be asked.

It is all very confusing to the socially ignorant reporter from the middle west, but he is told that to flout the rote that governs—and plagues!—Washington in social matters is the worst of heresy.

Doubtless there will be no happier man in Washington over the windup of the social season than President Roosevelt.

It is quite likely that along about half-past midnight the President will suggest to Mrs. Roosevelt that they order up some scrambled eggs in his study and with a goodly mug of hot milk celebrate the temporary respite they have won from the rigors of society. In the good rousing days of the presidential campaign, after a long siege of handshaking and well-wishing, the scrambled eggs and hot milk primed Mr. Roosevelt for his night's sleep.

The President has stood up bravely and uncomplaining before weekly onslaughts of the most society conscious breed of people in America.

It is probably overstating the case to contend that Washington society holds the social duties of the President above his business tasks, but both are held quite indispensable.

So in addition to the other simple duties of his office, such as, for instance, the devising of a monetary policy, the parrying of politicians' demands, the planning of CWA, PWA, NRA, and the performance of similar minor tasks, Mr. Roosevelt has been obliged to stand up for two hours and more at a stretch, shaking hands with thousands of people in stuffy, starchy evening togs.

First of the receptions was that to the diplomatic corps. The braided and gorgeously outfitted ambassadors, ministers, their bejeweled wives and some of their clerical flunkies, did a stiff little parade in the White House and then, passing by the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, touched hands and with utmost dignity got into their wraps and then their limousines and drove home.

The limousines of the diplomats as well as of the congressmen, by the way, are all marked with blue and white plates so traffic policemen will not offend the appointed ones by crass remarks on the subject of parking or speed violations.

The point of the diplomatic reception was that the nicest people who came tarried for dancing, but the diplomats all went home. No one had ever heard of any of them staying to dance with just common society.

But there is a serious implication in the phrase "common society" which must be explained. They are not common, no indeed. The age-old method of getting invited to a White House reception is to drive up to the mansion portals any afternoon, motion to the butler to come to the automobile door, and, with proper aplomb, to put cards on his tray. This goes for a "call" upon the President and his wife, and while it is possible to walk to the door and hand in the card it is almost never done that way. Some people hail one of the 20 cent taxies and get by in that fashion.

Having thus registered with a "call," the persons then undergo the stern scrutiny of the social advisers to the White House, the protocol officer and the social secretary, and if they are "nice people" they will be asked to one of the receptions. If they are in the social register they may be asked to two or even three receptions. Alice Roosevelt Longworth was asked to all of them, and, to the amazement of all those who look with good humor on the society show, she went to every one. She never went to the Hoover or Coolidge receptions.

The reception to the congressmen was the crowning touch this year. A senator might skip a roll call on the gold bill to keep a lunch date with his secretary, but he would never pass up a White House reception.

Because the President grows tired at the end of these hand-shaking ordeals, senators and congressmen were asked to limit their requests for tickets to one ticket apiece. Whereupon most of them graciously asked for five and some for nine and some for twelve, and, what is worse, got them.

They looked very uncomfortable, most of them, in their swallow-tails, even Congressman Dirksen of Illinois, who got his pictures in the papers in a rented dress suit.

A New Type of Net Will Make Style History

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Intriguing bits of fashion news trickle through . . . returning buyers confidentially regale you with authoritative hints as to what you will wear for party frocks . . . net, tulle and lace, with fabulous stories about a new net that is fully prepared to go places, sunshine or showers, without any visible dampening in either crispness or color.

Swatches of imported net are flipped for your approval, with color samples that leave you gasping for good new adjectives to describe the assortment. All the newest, most important and flattering dresses of this strong stiffened net will be here before you know it . . . dresses that are probably the most devastatingly feminine things you ever slipped over your head.

Most of them are made with ruffled hemlines, repetitions of the same ruffled motif of the dropped shoulder line yoke effects, and swirling capes. Every pastel and high color imaginable will be here soon to completely charm and captivate your flagging interest in party clothes.

The lure of lace seems to be ageless . . . artlessly youthful new creations are hastily put into circulation by the younger dancing set, especially the famously attractive new things of thread lace or string lace. One perfect white affair is as interesting as anything you can find—miles of swirling circular flounces from the kneeline to the floor keep it especially right for dancing. A long slender sheath of the dull white lace bursts into a froth of shoulder ruffles to match the flounces and a deep V backline makes it gala enough for the most important of dates.

Inky black lace made with long transparent sleeves fashions a super-slim and mysterious dinner dress. Or there is the tucked "sheer" made in the long sleeved simplicity knowingly dramatized with huge round shoulder clips of rhinestones. No matter what you prefer in materials, these new heartbreakers of thin lace, net, and tulle are irresistible!

NEW YORK SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Given have gone to Nassau, B. I., with her father, Arthur V. Davis, their winter home being in Nassau.

Mrs. Orson D. Munn gave a luncheon at the Ritz-Carlton for Mrs. Alice C. Fleitmann, Mrs. John W. Stafford, and Mrs. Byron C. Foy.

Mr. and Mrs. Paxton Blair are receiving congratulations on the birth of their third child, Joseph Paxton Blair III., born Feb. 2 at Doctors' hospital. Mrs. Blair was Miss Gertrude Hubbard Grosvenor, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor of Washington, D. C., and granddaughter of the late Alexander Graham Bell.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

THIS story of Dale Fisher's is belated, but pretty nice, so we'll relay it to you. The day after Christmas a priest in a Denver church discovered that the figure of the Christ child was missing from the tiny crèche. As he left the church he met a very small boy pulling a new red wagon in which the missing figure reposed.

Promise—Inventor—Ad Seller—Incident.

The priest's very sober and serious reprimand was interrupted by the youngster's sobs as he explained that he had prayed to the little Savior for a wagon for Christmas.

"And I promised," he wailed, "that if I got it I'd give Him the first ride."

THE approach of Lincoln's birthday makes it timely to report, for those who did not know it, that Abraham Lincoln was an inventor. A patent in the library of the Museum of Science and Industry in Jackson park issued by the U. S. patent office is dated May 22, 1849, patent No. 6,469, and was taken out by A. Lincoln of Springfield for "buoying vessels over shoals."

ONE of the women on the board of Passavant Memorial hospital who had been helping with plans to raise money for the charity bed fund is the wife of a staff physician. Her husband forbade her asking former patients to buy tickets to the benefit performance of the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe a week from Friday evening, so she solicited ads for the program. A north side undertaker declined to buy space in the program. Puzzling over his refusal, the board member commented, in all seriousness:

"I guess we just don't give him enough business."

And another board member, bursting into laughter at her comment, said:

"Well, that's the best ad the hospital ever had."

SEEING the piece by Knut Hamsun in the current Esquire brings to mind the tale some one once told about Hamsun, Norwegian novelist and Nobel prize winner, having once been a street car conductor. On one occasion a lady passenger asked the embryonic novelist whether the trolley was northbound or southbound, and it was necessary for him to go up front and get the right answer from the motorman. And the fellow who knew the answer is still a motorman.

Report Movies Bought Out Hepburn Play

Declare Film Company Feared Criticism.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The cancellation of Katherine Hepburn's tour in "The Lake," after contracts had been signed for engagements in Chicago, Pittsburgh and other cities, may have an interesting aftermath. The New York Telegraph publishes an item of Broadway gossip alleging that Jed Harris, the manager who produced "The Lake," with Miss Hepburn as star, received $100,000 from the RKO Film company for the cancellation of his bookings. The theory is advanced that the cinema company felt Miss Hepburn's value on the screen was being impaired by New York criticism of her acting.

In investigating this rumor, the New York Times found that the principals were speechless. However, its theatrical reporters received information that the Actors' Equity association intends to lodge a complaint against Jed Harris with the NRA Legitimate theater committee for violation of the fair trade practices section of the code.

When interviewed on this subject, Frank Gillmore, president of Equity, replied that he was not in a position to speak. The same answer was given by Dr. Henry Moscowitz and Brock Pemberton, members of the stage code enforcement commission.

The advance sale for Miss Hepburn's engagement in Pittsburgh was $10,000. In Chicago, on brief notice of a two weeks' engagement to begin Feb. 18, the mail orders for two days amounted to $500.

"The Mad Lover," a play dealing with the career of Lord Byron, written by Melanie Koll of Chicago, will have its first performance in the Punch and Judy theater tonight. Raymond Hackett will have the central rôle.

Joe Cook's successful engagement in "Hold Your Horses," at the Grand Opera house, will end Feb. 24. The show will then move to St. Louis.

Frances Kennedy II. will replace Carrie Reynolds in the cast of "Elizabeth Sleeps Out," at the Studebaker theater, next Sunday night. She is a daughter of the Frances Kennedy who was popular in Chicago musical comedies, especially those staged at the La Salle theater, 20 to 25 years ago.

A performance which will reconstruct the scene and atmosphere of Lincoln's assassination will be given in the Cube Experimental theater, 218 South Wabash avenue, tomorrow night under the title, "The Crisis of April 14." Episodes from "Our American Cousin," the comedy that was being acted in Ford's theater, Washington, when John Wilkes Booth invaded the presidential box on murder bent, will be staged. The crime itself and the escape of the assassin across the stage will also be represented.

Dinner Marks 52d Year of Service on Newspaper

Charles H. Dennis, editor emeritus of the Chicago Daily News, was the guest at a banquet tonight in honor of his completion of 52 years of service with the publication.

The occasion, held on Dennis' 73d birthday, also celebrated his appointment as editor emeritus and the promotion of Paul Scott Mowrer from the paper's foreign service to direct its editorial page.

Frank Knox, the toastmaster, said that Mr. Dennis "in no sense is retiring," but that he will be available for service.

Mr. Dennis, a native of Decatur, Ill., described early days on the newspaper, particularly the first editorial room on the fourth floor of a loop building which held a large stove in the center. Reporters coming in to write their stories would take one kerosene lamp each from a table holding many of them, retire to a desk, and turn out their "copy" by kerosene light.

Famed Music Rebel Appears with Orchestra

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Arnold Schoenberg, the Viennese composer whose name has long been a synonym for everything dissonant in the whole art of music, is visiting Chicago for the first time. One of his assignments was to appear as guest conductor in a group of his own works with the Chicago Symphony orchestra last night, a duty which he will repeat this afternoon.

There are times when reputations get overrated. Mr. Schoenberg is not in the least the bogyman of unpleasant sounds that people used to think he was. He came, he conducted, and he conquered. He received a lot of applause—and not even a single hiss—from the audience, much tapping of bows and at the end a great fanfare from the orchestra.

Hearing his section as he conducted it, one realizes that he has always been a melodist, even though he treated his melodies unconventionally at times. Early in his career, when he wrote "Verklaerte Nacht," the first on last night'r list, he positively wrote tunes whose only fault is that they are spun out a trifle too long.

He is an enormous admirer of Bach, as his final number showed, his orchestration of the "St. Anne's" Prelude and Fugue. There is liking and reverence in every measure of it. Only in the middle section did he become debatable. This consisted of the "Five Pieces for Orchestra," which Frederick Stock first presented to Chicago over twenty years ago.

Twenty years is long enough to get some sort of an idea of what a composer with new thoughts is driving at. Even here he is a melodist. By the time he made this orchestration he had taken up the theory of atonality, which means that he did not care about having his melodies in any particular key relation with each other or with themselves. They were just tossed in at more or less of haphazard to combine with each other as best they may. But if you follow them closely you will discover that they are almost without exception melodic.

Not knowing the work accurately, they did not always make sense to me. There was no particular logic about their beginning or ending. They just ran along for a time and then stopped. But almost continuously they were saying something pleasant. And there is no question but that Mr. Schoenberg has an unfailing sense of what makes attractive orchestral color. It may be winsome, it may be grotesque, but he never misses his effect.

Mr. Stock had preceded him on the stand in the first half, conducting the introduction to the third act of d'Indy's "Fervaal" and the lovely Chausson Symphony, one of the most beautiful works in the whole répertoire. During the intermission Edward L. Ryerson Jr., addressed the audience on the present plight of the orchestra, saying that Chicago is much better off in this respect than New York, Boston, or Philadelphia, and that responses on the present campaign have been highly encouraging, but that a great deal remained to be done before the orchestra could be considered on a safe footing again.

Here's Splendid Movie of Way Eskimos Live

Photography of the Arctic Circle Is Superfine.

"ESKIMO."
Produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.
Directed by W. S. Van Dyke.
Presented at McVicker's theater.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Interested, are you, in learning how folks of the arctic circle live? Well, "Eskimo" is a veritable bin of information on the subject.

The picture, reminiscent of "Nanook of the North" and "The Silent Enemy," was all filmed in the polar regions. Peter Freuchen's two books, "Eskimo" and "Die Flucht Ins Weisse Land," served as basis for the photoplay. Freuchen, a Dane trader who spent many years among the Alaskan Eskimos, enacts the heavy. Several white men, including Director Van Dyke, portray members of the Canadian Northwest Mounted police, and sailors—but the bulk of the cast is composed of natives. The movie brings Freuchen's experiences to the screen, with, I imagine, quite a bit of doctored narrative.

Engrossingly are revealed the customs, hardships and industries of the country. You learn how the Eskimos pass their summers and winters, go with them on hunting and fishing expeditions. Exciting episodes are those where man and wolf fight, caribou stampede and a crew struggle long, and, at last, successfully with a polar bear that is determined to escape their clutches. You learn about Alaskan matrimonial arrangements from the private life of the leading man, Mala, a mighty and brave young hunter.

An Eskimo is most obliging about lending his wife to a friend for the night—but he wants no white man to have her. So—when Mala's first wife comes to grief at the hands of white traders—much happens!

The story is screened with considerable art. There is much to laugh at and not a little to shed tears over—for Mala, simple fellow that he is, certainly does get a rotten deal in more ways than one. The native players are eager, unaffected and not a bit camera shy. The girl who plays his second wife is a beauty. She'll probably land in Hollywood—if that's not where she came from. 'Smatter of fact it is whispered she's a sister of Anna May Wong. The Eskimos chatter au naturel. Subtitles translate their speech.

Photography is superfine, and never have you seen more fascinating winter scenes. Those showing the breaking up of the ice floes are unforgettable—and I think you will remember your last glimpse of Mala for a long time.

BARGAIN PRICES PREVAIL ON MANY FOOD PRODUCTS

Savings on Fruits, Staples and Some Meats.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The consumer's dollar will stretch just as far this week-end and for some items farther than in recent weeks in purchases of foods for Chicagoland larders. Price changes have been effected for the week-end in many of the major food commodities making possible savings in fresh fruits and vegetables, some of the staples and some of the meats and perishables.

Cold weather foods will find favor in the week-end menus. White potatoes in most stores are no higher than they were a week ago—the first time in more than a month that they have not shown an increase of two to three cents a peck during the week. Sweet potatoes, a favorite substitute, are slowly rising in price, but these in turn can be replaced on menus by bargains in spaghetti and macaroni, canned pork and beans, and green cabbage.

Wisconsin Cabbage Available.

Farmers in three Wisconsin counties still have several thousand tons of the 1933 cabbage crop, competing with the new green cabbage shipped to Chicago from California, Arizona, Texas, and Florida. Wisconsin is second only to the state of New York in cabbage production. Still another section of the United States participates in the production of cabbage for city consumers, however. A relatively small area in the Skagit valley in western Washington's Puget sound region produces most of the cabbage seed used by American growers.

Citrus producers, after a survey of sales since the repeal of prohibition, are now willing to welcome repeal with open arms. Sales of lemons, limes and oranges have increased, while prices remained at bargain levels along with grapefruit. Juice oranges and the seedless navels are especially attractive in price.

New Bags Stimulate Sales.

Considerable stimulation in the sales of such items as oranges, potatoes, grapefruit, cabbage, and onions has resulted from the use of open meshed bags, packaged in warehouses and permitting buyers to inspect lots for quality. More strict grading has been the result.

In box apples as well the "golden rule" has ended the old time practice of placing the big ones on top, so that now the bottom layer of fruit is equal in size and quality to that at the top.

Strawberries, new potatoes and fresh green peas carry price tags reflecting adverse weather conditions in southern truck growing areas. A pint of berries costs three to four cents more this week-end than a week or two weeks ago, yet the price is not in the luxury level, if one compares prices with those of several years ago at this season when the southern grown berries sold as high as a dollar for a quart.

Other Vegetables Low.

Supplies of other fresh vegetables are so plentiful that prices are especially low. Bunched carrots, heads of lettuce, stalks of celery, and spinach by the pound, and green beans by the quart are as low in price as last summer when home grown produce was available.

Meat bargains provide a variety for the week-end. Prices on fresh pork roasts and chops are rising, due to an increase in the wholesale prices being paid farmers. Cured pork products such as hams and bacon have not reflected this increase as yet, and lard prices have changed very little.

Attractive Meat Prices.

Pot roasts of beef, poultry for stewing and roasting, fish and cheese are meat department items which bear attractive price tags in most stores. Prices of guaranteed quality fresh eggs, inspected under the new state egg grading law, have dropped slightly in the last few days, while butter, flour and sugar are priced about the same as a week ago.

A new and unusual food item is being offered in a few Chicago stores. It is the passion fruit, resembling a large wrinkled plum in size and skin texture. The fruit is being grown on vines in California by a San Diego county producer who imported seeds from Australasia. The edible portion includes the pulp and seeds obtained from the inside of the fruit after it is sliced open.

UNBAKED FRUIT CAKE WILL FILL GAP IN LARDER

Apricot Glaze Handy Holiday Accessory.

Unbaked fruit cakes, they're called—those fruity concoctions that require a thorough mixing but no steaming or baking. And although they're only a second or third cousin to a fruit cake, you'll be especially interested in them if you've neglected baking one of the holiday cakes. Or perhaps you did supply yourself and some hungry fruit cake admirer has discovered its hiding place and cut himself off a too liberal wedge now and then. [It happens in the best of families!]

Unbaked Fruit Cake.

1 cup dates
1 cup seeded raisins
1 cup pecans
½ cup marshmallows, quartered
½ cup maraschino cherries
¼ cup candied pineapple
Cream.

Roll the graham crackers to fine crumbs and chop the fruit and nuts. Combine the ingredients thoroughly, adding only enough cream to hold the mixture together. Pack into a loaf pan lined with waxed paper and let stand in the refrigerator overnight.

Another unbaked fruit cake recipe calls for one-half pound each of dates, dried figs, seedless raisins, brazil nuts, walnuts, and pecans. These ingredients are run through the fine blade of the food chopper three times. Then butter your hands and knead all ingredients together thoroughly. Turn into a pan lined with waxed paper and beat down with a wooden potato masher.

If you're one of those lucky persons with fruit cakes all baked and waiting to be used, have you been wondering how the shiny glaze is made for the top? Here's how:

Apricot Glaze for Fruit Cake.

1 cup juice drained from cooked dried apricots
1½ cups sugar.

Boil the juice and sugar together until the mixture will spin a long thread. Apply a thin layer over the top of the cake with a brush. If desired, candied fruit decorations may be applied to the cake, sticking them into the glaze. Allow this to harden. Then apply another thin coating over the fruit.

APPLE COMPOTE IDEAL DESSERT FOR LUNCHEON

A fruit dessert for a winter luncheon or supper menu is apple compote, which adds flavor and color to the meal.

APPLE COMPOTE.

6 tart apples
2 cups of sugar
2 cups of water
Red coloring or red cinnamon candies
⅛ teaspoon of salt.

Select tart apples that will hold their shape when cooked; peel and core them. In a pan large enough to hold all the apples make a sirup of the sugar and water. Add the red coloring, or red candies, and the salt. Put in the apples, cover and simmer them until the apples are tender when pierced with a straw or toothpick. Drain the fruit and place an individual apple on each plate. Fill the apple centers with tart jelly, and on top place a spoonful of hard sauce, or grated cocoanut, or chopped nuts. The apples may be served cold, with whipped cream. The sirup may be used in fruit drinks, or more added to it and another lot of apples cooked in it.

TRY THIS CAKE ON HUBBY, AND HE'LL ADORE IT

BY MARY MEADE.

You've heard all the standard "try this on your——" quips, but one more won't quite destroy you, so my suggestion today is that you go "try this on"—your husband! The item is an angel cake, two of them, in fact, but the point is not that you should make it and he eat it, but vice versa. At least, unless he wishes to admit himself outdone by one of his ambitious Chicago brothers. This is the story you are to tell him, and I'll vouch for its veracity:

Not long since there arrived a most convincing argument that angel food cake is the easiest kind of cake to make. It came from a young man, a truck driver of the most masculine sort, who has the habit of pleasantly relaxing on his off hours by baking cakes. So sure was he that it was no trick at all to make a good angel food that he chose it for his contribution to a recent cake baking contest staged here in the city, and ran off with a sizable prize.

Asked about his prize winner, this admirable young man essayed that he preferred to make angel food cakes because they were the easiest to mix, required few ingredients and little equipment, and were practically foolproof if a fellow followed directions. Which is apparently just what Mr. Solnik, the hero of this tale, has been doing for some time, for he admits to have fathered already 40 cakes. Only once, when the oven failed him, did the cake disappoint its maker.

And think ye on this, ladies! Explaining the secret of his success, our hero remarked: "Each time I make a cake I measure the ingredients as carefully as if it were the first time I were using the recipe." Which, it strikes us, is an excellent notion for us gals to remember.

Then here's another tip he gave us that could be applied quite as well to hasting females with much on the mind as to trucksters. P'raps better. When the cake is in the oven this gentleman sets the alarm clock for the moment when the cake is to come out. He then totes his reminder with him and sets it on a packing box while he goes about his business of loading and unloading his truck. That's what we call management.

One more point made by this trousered prize winner was that, this fall and winter, eggs have been so cheap that he makes his favorite cake regularly, and so is always nicely in practice. His recipe, while it varies slightly from ours, has certainly proved itself to be a good one. Here 'tis:

ANGEL FOOD.
[Which Walked Off with a Prize.]

1¼ cups egg whites
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ cups granulated sugar
1 teaspoon flavoring
1 cup cake flour

Beat the egg whites until they are frothy. Add the cream of tartar and the salt, and continue beating until the whites will hold a point when the beater is drawn out of them. [Beating the whites just to this stage gives a tender, light cake. To some cooks this might seem underbeaten.] Now add one cupful of sugar, a little at a time, beating after each addition. Fold in the flavoring. Sift the flour three times with the remaining half cup of sugar, and add the flour-sugar mixture, about4 tablespoonfuls at a time. Fold in each addition. When all of the flour and sugar have been added, pour the batter into a dry, ungreased angel food cake pan. Bake in a slow oven [325 degrees F.] for 1 hour. When done, invert the pan on a cake cooler until entirely cold.

Chocolate angel food cake was another prize winner in this same contest in which our young man shone so brilliantly. This one is especially rich in chocolate and takes on a much darker blush than we have usually found in our chocolate angel foods.

DARK ANGEL FOOD CAKE.

12 egg whites
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
2 cups sugar
½ cup cocoa
1 cup cake flour
1 teaspoon vanilla

Add the salt to the egg whites and beat until frothy. Now add the cream of tartar and beat until the egg whites will hold a point when the beater is lifted out of them. Sift the flour 5 times with 1 cupful of the sugar. Sift the cocoa 5 times with the other cupful of sugar. Fold the cocoa-sugar mixture into the egg whites, 2 tablespoonfuls at a time. Use a wire whip for the folding. Then fold in the flour and sugar, a little at a time. Finally, fold in the vanilla. Bake 1¼ hours in a slow oven [300-325 degrees F.].

LIVER REQUIRES LOW HEAT, AND MUST BE DONE, NOT OVERDONE

Pork liver, lamb liver, and beef liver are all much cheaper than calf liver, but their food value is much the same.

Enjoyment of liver depends largely on how it is prepared. Liver should be cooked with a low heat and for as short a time as possible to get it done. Pork liver, like all pork, should be served well done. Scalding before cooking will make older and less tender liver more palatable.

For school lunches chopped cooked liver with chopped pickle or chopped onion makes a good sandwich. Liver, scalloped or creamed with macaroni, is a good hot dish. Liver that is not tender enough for boiling can be used for braising, grinding, or chopping and creaming, for hash, or it can be made into croquettes or a loaf.

Finds Guitar Now More Popular than Saxophone

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Arthur Cremin, director of the New York Schools of Music, announced today that the guitar has replaced the saxophone as the most popular instrument among students. A survey of 2,563 students showed the accordion was second in popularity and the harp third, he said, while the saxophone was back in sixth place.

"WAS TAKING EVERY KIND OF DRUG FOR CONSTIPATION"

Then ALL-BRAN Brought Relief

Read this very enthusiastic letter: "I am 34 years old and from far back in my life I have been constipated. I was so bad that I had one bowel movement every five or six days. I was taking every kind of drug known for constipation.

"Now for the last two months I have been eating a little ALL-BRAN night and morning and I have at least two or three bowel movements each day."—Mr. Frank Piratzky, 40-66 98th St., Corona, Long Island, New York.

Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN is also a source of iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, this clears out the intestinal wastes.

Isn't this safer than taking harmful patent medicines? Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Severe cases with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

You'll enjoy eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN as a cereal with milk or cream—sugar or honey or fresh fruits added. Or, to use in cooking.

HOW TO KNOW THAT YOUR FISH WILL TASTE GOOD

Neither you nor your fish dealer can tell whether fish are going to taste good, because neither of you know how long they have been caught. The longer they're caught, the worse they taste.

But there is a way to get that glorious fresh-caught taste in your fish, and it is to ask your fish dealer for 40-Fathom Fish, which fairly fly from ocean nets to your dealer, with that fresh-caught flavor of the sea all through them.

Therefore, ask your fish dealer for 40-Fathom Fish by name and see that he delivers them to you in the 40-Fathom wrapper with the name and the picture of Old 40-Fathom on the wrapper. If fish in some other wrapper or in no wrapper are offered you as 40-Fathom Fish, don't take them for they are not 40-Fathom Fish with the fresh-caught taste of the sea all through them. Get 40-Fathom Fish in the 40-Fathom wrapper or refuse to buy them.

PEANUT BUTTER LENDS ITSELF TO MANY DISHES

May Be Used as Part of Shortening.

BY DOROTHY PARKHURST.

Peanut butter may be used for part of the shortening in biscuits, cookies, cakes, and gingerbread to give them a new and interesting flavor. For each one-half cup of other shortening use one-third cup of butter and one-third cup of peanut butter.

Creamed potatoes may be varied by blending peanut butter with the thickened white sauce, or peanut butter cream sauce may served over fried tomatoes. Omelets may be spread with peanut butter before folding.

A delicious salad is one of cooked prunes stuffed with peanut butter. Or try a peanut butter salad dressing with apple and celery salad. The dressing is prepared by adding one-half cup of French or boiled dressing gradually to 3 tablespoons of softened peanut butter. Peanut butter balls rolled in shredded cocoanut are a dainty garnish for fruit salads. Fudge squares in which peanut butter is substituted for part of the shortening have a pleasing nut flavor. Some other recipes follow:

PEANUT BUTTER BROWNIES.

¼ cup butter.
¼ cup peanut butter.
2 eggs.
½ teaspoon salt.
½ cup flour.
½ teaspoon baking powder.
2 one ounce squares unsweetened chocolate.

Cream together the butter and peanut butter and add the sugar. Combine with the beaten eggs, melted chocolate, and flour which has been sifted with the baking powder and salt. Spread in a shallow pan lined with waxed paper and bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] for about 20 minutes. Cut into squares while still warm.

PEANUT BUTTERSCOTCH ROLLS.

3 teaspoons baking powder.
1 teaspoon salt.
3 tablespoons shortening.
¾ cup milk.
3 tablespoons butter.
3 tablespoons peanut butter.
½ cup brown sugar.

Sift the flour, baking powder, and salt into a mixing bowl. Work in the shortening until the mixture has the appearance of coarse cornmeal. Add the milk and combine with a fork. Turn out on a floured board and roll to one-fourth inch in thickness. Spread with the butter and peanut butter which have been mixed together and sprinkle the brown sugar over this. Roll as for a jelly roll, cut in 1 inch slices, place in buttered muffin tins, and bake in a hot oven [450 degrees F.] for 15 minutes.

QUICK FREEZING OF VEGETABLES NOW PERFECTED

If and when packages of quickly frozen vegetables and fruits are displayed by the grocer, the consumer may know that this represents extensive experiment and research.

In the first commercial trials of quick freezing methods, most of the vegetables developed hay-like flavors. Spinach, alone, retained its natural flavor, and the spinach had been blanched, or scalded, before it was frozen. After that all the vegetable samples were blanched before freezing, and they, too, retained their natural flavors.

The method of quick freezing vegetables which was finally evolved provided that newly harvested vegetables are cleaned and prepared, blanched in boiling water, packed in cellophane-lined containers, and subjected to temperatures of from 30 to 40 degrees below zero Fahrenheit for two or three hours.

The temperature is then raised to the permanent storing temperature of zero, or 32 degrees below the freezing point. Fruits offer more problems to the quick freezing process than do vegetables, because they cannot be blanched, since heating fruits gives them a cooked flavor.

The large seeded market garden varieties of peas are better adapted to quick freezing than are the small seeded varieties commonly grown for canning.

The advantage of quick freezing over the former old slow freezing methods comes partly from the fact that quick freezing forms small ice crystals which do not break down the tissues as do the larger, more slowly developed crystals of the former methods.

HAVE A FITTING DESSERT FEB. 12, A LINCOLN LOG

An interesting Abraham Lincoln dessert to serve next Monday is formed of chocolate cake with marshmallow icing ruffled to represent bark on a log.

Lincoln's Log Roll.

4 tablespoons cocoa
1 cup flour
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
4 eggs, separated
4 tablespoons cold water
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ cup sugar

Sift together the flour, cocoa, salt, and soda. Beat the egg whites until stiff, adding the sugar gradually with continuous beating. Beat the egg yolks until light, adding the water gradually. Add the vanilla and fold the yolks into the egg white mixture. Fold in the dry ingredients carefully and turn the batter into a long, shallow pan lined with greased paper. Bake in a moderately hot oven [375 degrees F.] for 25 minutes. Turn out on a damp cloth and cool slightly. Spread generously with marshmallow icing and roll jelly roll fashion. When cooled the log may be spread with chocolate butter frosting. Run the tines of a fork lengthwise of the loaf so that the frosting will resemble the bark of a tree. The "log" may be decorated wih pink frosting flowers.

"Finer Flavor! ...because this NEW kind of BUTTER is churned from Sweet (NOT SOUR) Cream

NO WORDS can convey the delicious difference between butter churned from fresh, naturally sweet cream, and butter churned from cream that's sour or stale. You can't even imagine it, until you've tasted the rich, delicate, fresh-cream flavor of LAND O' LAKES butter.

Why not try a pound of LAND O' LAKES sweet-cream butter today? Taste it . . . test it. Try it on hot biscuits, hot toast, pancakes, waffles . . . or plain sliced bread. It makes all the old winter stand-bys more tempting and appetizing. It high-lights common foods.

Look for the Certificate of Quality inclosed in every carton or roll. It is assurance that the churning has been tested by a U. S. government grader and the butter certified as "fresh, sweet, clean and fine in flavor."

THE WILD BIRD

By OWEN JOHNSON

SYNOPSIS.

Barbara Brawne, aged 22, is completely dominated by an adoring though jealous father, who is against every modern idea and improvement. Lynwood, their home, is in the prim and proper village of Oxbridge, a place of intellectual sanctity. Barbara seems predestined to join the ranks of the village spinsters. Her father scares away any would-be suitors. She contemplates rebellion. Gregory Rance, popular novelist, is visiting her cousin, Laurie Chiswick. They are mutually attracted. Barbara overhears Rance asking Laurie about her. He says she is the sort of girl he'd want to marry. Barbara proposes to Rance. But Rance is divorced and her father hates divorce. Barbara invites him to a small dinner party and introduces him to her father as a casual acquaintance. Her father suspects Barbara's interest in Rance. He won't have him in the house again. Then relents, fearing she will meet him outside. Gregory writes to Mr. Brawne, asking for an interview. Barbara tells her father she is going to marry Gregory.

INSTALLMENT XXIII.

SUBTERFUGE.

Brawne felt weak, thankful, and hope was reborn in him.

"She still loves me," he thought. "He hasn't gotten her away from me yet."

His derby had rolled to the ground. She picked it up and put it on his head, laughing in order to control her emotions.

"Sit down."

She obeyed, his hand still in hers, shocked at the exhaustion she saw in his face. After the first flash of triumph he had felt in her tumultuous return, his mind had cleared. He saw at once all the advantages he might derive by a policy of magnanimity and shifted his campaign.

"My dear, you have shown me very little consideration," he said sadly. "Do you regard me as your enemy?"

"It is going to be difficult," she faltered. "You are hurt and resentful. It will be hard for me to make you understand."

"Why have I lost your confidence?"

She hesitated in doubt how to answer him.

"Is there any one else in the world who cares more for your true happiness?"

"No."

"Then why have you shut me out?"

"Because I wanted you to know Gregory first, to learn to like him—before—before you knew."

"So! This has been going on a long while."

"Yes," she added, rapidly remembering her plan of campaign, "I made up my mind deliberately long ago that he was the type of man I wanted to marry, the sort of a man, you know, who would open up the kind of life I've always wanted—interesting people, interesting things to see and do." She felt that she was floundering and shifted hurriedly. "It's all because I wanted you to be happy in my choice."

"My dear, you have shown me very little consideration," he said sadly.

"But why has all this been concealed from me—from me alone?"

She sat up, facing him.

"Well, father—can we talk calmly now?"

"Yes, but answer my question."

"Because from the moment you suspected I was interested in Gregory—for you did suspect last night, didn't you?—you turned immediately against him."

"I had my reasons."

"I don't think you know your reasons."

"This has nothing to do with anything before. I've made up my mind to marry Gregory Rance and I've thought it all out carefully and considered every side of the question."

She said it so calmly that deceived, he thought:

"Can she be telling the truth?"

"What! You are not in love with him?"

"I admire him, I like him tremendously, we are companionable in every way." She turned to her father and lied deliberately, "but if you ask me if I am infatuated, no, certainly not."

"H'mm, and he?"

"He's too serious a——"

"Nonsense. He's in love with you. I've seen the way he looks at you."

"Nevertheless, everything was discussed between us as two friends, being perfectly honest with each other, taking everything into account, our adaptability to each other, what we should require of each other—everything ['This at least is the truth,' she added to herself.] You see, father, I am not a girl; I am very much of a woman. All that I have done I have done deliberately."

He was frankly puzzled. It would have been so much easier to deal with a frantic avowal of an overwhelming passion, to point out to her the danger of an impulsive leap, to remind her of the last mistake from which he had saved her. To gain time he said:

"If this is the way you feel, all the more reason for your having talked it over with me from the first. But wait—I am rather bewildered by this—this mistrust, this necessity of deception. Just what is my position?"

"What do you mean?"

"Will anything I say make the slightest difference?"

She hesitated.

"Why, of course."

"Is my advice to count for anything? Is my experience, my knowledge of the world worth anything to you? In other words, do you intend to listen to anything I may say? I have had one shock—what is your attitude going to be?"

"Father, I do want your approval."

"Good." He thought rapidly. "That's a starting point. The great thing is to gain time." Aloud he said, "Then you won't think it strange that I, too, wish to be convinced that you are making no mistake."

"Now he's going to ask for a postponement," she thought.

"Well?"

"There is only one way to do that, see Gregory and get to know him. Will you let him come this afternoon?"

"Of course I shall see him, but not here, not this afternoon. Just at present I should be well—rather resentful."

"I understand."

"Have you had no doubts?"

She shook her head.

"That's strange. Just what makes you think—forgive my bluntness—what makes you think that a girl like you, without experience, brought up in a sheltered life, can hold a man like Gregory Rance, with all the brilliant women he is thrown with?"

"Father, I know I can."

He shook his head.

"You know only one side of me," she persisted, smiling.

"Nevertheless, that is a major point," he said decisively.

"I don't want my daughter to go through what most girls do today; marry in haste, repent at leisure. There are things in your blood I can't tell you that frighten me. I've stopped you twice from throwing yourself away. I want to be convinced that the man has constancy, loyalty, and that he is kind."

"I know him—he's all that," she cried, unable to restrain a little emotion

He smiled wryly.

"You are marrying into a world you know nothing about, my dear. If you can translate yourself successfully, well and good. If you fail, a man like that will drop you ruthlessly."

"That is the risk in any marriage today."

"So long as there is love——"

"But he is, I know——"

"And you, too, are in love with him," he said sharply.

She recovered herself instantly, pretending to consider what he had said.

"I certainly feel differently about him than if he were—well—just a friend. Naturally. But my head is firmly on my shoulders," she added smiling, "and it will remain there!"

"Then if I can convince you—mind you, I don't say I shall want to—I know nothing yet. But if I can convince you that you are unsuited to each other and that such a marriage would undoubtedly be a failure, you will pay some attention to my warning."

"Yes," she said in a low voice.

"There has never yet been a divorce in our family," he said rising. "You are not going to be the first to suffer from it. So. This clears the air. I haven't been so unreasonable, have I? I'm not the tyrant you imagine me?"

"No, no!"

Many Chicago Guests Attend Dartmouth Fete

Winter Carnival Is Famous Throughout U. S.

4:30 o'clock. The Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard of Christ church in Winnetka, who was a classmate of the bride's father at Princeton, will read the ceremony, and a reception will follow.

Miss Mary Margaret McAlpine is coming from Detroit to be maid of honor, and Miss Jean Watson is coming from New Brunswick to be bridesmaid. Both of these young ladies spend their summers near the Bokum summer home on Nantucket island. The other bridesmaids will be Mrs. Richard M. Lamport [Julia Kramer], Miss Betty Alexander, and Miss Frances Canfield. Miss Caryl Bloomingston was to have been an attendant also, but unfortunately she will be out of the city on that date. The bride's youngest sister, Sally Bokum, will be the flower girl.

Frederick MacFarlane will be best man for Mr. King, and ushering will be Robert Shotwell, Paul Poole, Harry Bryant, Richard D. Bokum III., the bride's brother; Howard McIlvaine of Philadelphia, and Christian de Guingné, who must be a very cosmopolitan young man, for he is equally at home in Bordeaux, New York, and California.

Winter Sports Party of Alfred M. Wolfes.

Leaving today for a long week-end in the Wisconsin timberlands are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred M. Wolfe and three carloads of guests. The Wolfes are giving the house party in the summer home of Mrs. Wolfe's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Stock, at Ephraim. Their guests are to be Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Blossom of Peoria, Prince and Princess Rostislav, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Curtis and the Henry Rowleys.

Urge Support for Orchestra.

Young Miss Mary Welling won't be a debutante for several years—she is only 15 now—but she had some experience last night that will be of value to her when she is a bud, for she helped her mother, Mrs. John Paul Welling, take in subscriptions at the Symphony concert in Orchestra hall. Mrs. Welling and her daughter, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne; Mrs. Carl Bricken, Miss Janet Fairbank, Mrs. Albert Bigelow, Mrs. William F. Peterson, and Mrs. Thomas I. Underwood "manned" tables in the foyers of Orchestra hall during the intermission to receive the subscriptions for tickets to the remaining concerts this season and contributions to help meet the deficit of $70,000. Edward L. Ryerson had urged the audience to give that support to the orchestra.

Mrs. Cecil Barnes of 1153 North Dearborn street is to entertain at tea this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock for the Bryn Mawr benefit committee. The benefit is to be held the opening night of Cornelia Otis Skinner's engagement at the Selwyn theater on Feb. 26.

Miss Jane Morton, Mrs. William R. Odell Jr., Mrs. John C. Mechem, the Misses Christabel and Eleanor Wheeler, Mrs. Paul Moyer and Miss Margaret Thompson will be the models in a burlesque fashion show Miss Morton has arranged for tonight in Lake Forest as part of a benefit entertainment for the Chicago Nursery and Helf-Orphan asylum. Following the show the moving picture, "The Private Life of Henry VIII.," will be shown.

Mrs. Allen Whitman Visiting Parents.

Mrs. Allen E. Whitman, the former Betty Brown, is in Chicago visiting her parents, the Charles Edward Browns, until Monday or Tuesday. Last night Miss Margaret Chapman, the John A. Chapmans' daughter, entertained at dinner for Mrs. Whitman. Miss Jane Brooks, Mrs. Mason Phelps' daughter, took the guests to the hocky game.

Miss Peggy Hixon, the Robert Hixons' debutante daughter, is leaving next Monday for Del Monte, Cal., where she will join another debutante, Miss Nancy Morse, and visit Miss Morse's father, Samuel Morse. Miss Hixon will remain in the west for three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Hixon are on a West Indies cruise.

Henry H. Porters Drive to Texas.

The Henry H. Porters left yesterday to motor to Texas, where they will visit the Willoughby Gundrys on a ranch. From there the Porters will go to Mexico City. They will be away for a month.

Mrs. Charles C. Haffner Jr. of Lake Forest is leaving next week for a visit at Mountain Lake, Fla. From there she will go to Palm Beach to be with Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy during the annual meeting of the Garden Club of America from Feb. 22 to 27.

Mrs. John W. Gary of Glencoe had planned to go to Palm Beach for the meeting, but her mother, Mrs. Thomas R. Lyon, has not recovered from the injuries she received in a fall five weeks ago. Mrs. Lyon is hoping that she will improve enough, however, so that her daughter will be willing to leave her. Mrs. Gary will be Mrs. Cudahy's guest if she attends.

Huntington Harris, a junior at the University of Chicago, is one of the three collaborators on the musical comedy that has been accepted for production this spring by the Blackfriars, men's musical comedy organization of the university. "Merging for Millions" is the title of the opus, and it satirizes the proposed Chicago-Northwestern merger. Henry Reese and Dulaney Terrett are the other collaborators.

Mrs. John H. Buckingham will be hostess this afternoon to the Chicago branch of the National League of American Pen Women. Dr. Cossette Faust-Newton, who is a member of the Texas branch of the league and has only recently returned from two years in the orient, will be a special guest.

The Country Club of Evanston is giving a "What's Wrong with This Picture?" dance tonight at 9:30 o'clock at the club. The guests are supposed to "come wrong in some part of their attire."

Fidelity Emblem Is Dainty Motif of Quilt for Girl

Forget-Me-Not

BY NANCY CABOT.

This tiny emblem of friendship and fidelity is always signified by a beautiful blue, which probably accounts for the time honored expression, "true blue." The forget-me-not block is appliqued in a true, clear blue, combined with yellow and two shades of green. For a young miss of teen age there is nothing more attractive for her "very own room."

For a quilt pattern in this design send 5 cents in coin or stamps to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service office, One South Dearborn.

Ascertain If Girl Loves You by Asking Her

Silent Wonderment Brings No Information.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

They're not the big, bad, sure-of-themselves sex they're sometimes pictured. Nor are they the "see-a-girl-and-grab-her" sex either. Sometimes the male sex, as we meet it in this confessional of ours, scares us with its timidity. We, like our sisters, love to go on believing them the big, strong, masterful sex. Instead, we find them often "skeered" to death about a girl. They don't know how to talk to her. They don't know how to go about registering with a girl. And they, great gobs of them, wince about asking a girl if she really cares.

There isn't a day goes by but some member of that so-called stronger sex inquires how to tell if his sweetheart really loves him. He can't from his own symptoms, nor do the girl's actions appear to give him the cue.

Faint hearted, we call it! If we belonged to the clan known as the brotherhood of man and we wanted to know if a girl really cared for us, we'd up and ask her. We wouldn't hem and haw and beat around the bush. We wouldn't spend a lot of money on her, either, before finding out if the investment were promising, at least. We'd barge right in, even where brother angels feared to tread, and we'd find out, straight from the girl's lips, where we stood and how well. We'd indicate that we weren't trifiers and get the idea across that we didn't want to have any truck with trifling gals. That's what we'd do if we were so in love that we were missing meals and heartbeats and dates with other girls.

It's never less than music to a woman's ear to hear that she's the object of devotion. Even though she may not be able to return the compliment, it's still a pleasant tune. So, there's no harm done in asking, and a great good may come of it with the heart at rest and concrete plans ahead.

You can't tell that the girl loves you just because she accepts your dates, your gifts, your time, your devotion. That is, you can't guess that all's well with your romance until the girl answers your question honestly about where you stand. So, ask her.

Paris Does Its Sports Suits in Three Fabrics

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Skirts and jackets that show no "get-together" spirit either on the matter of color or materials make suits that are designed for southern springtime.

The hiplength brown piqué jacket is stitched with green thread and fastens in front on two green clips. The front of the jacket does not end as usual at shoulder seams, but is draped around the neckline.

Parents Should Learn to Check Own Weakness

Today Is the Best Possible Time to Start.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

We were talking about—you can't imagine—children! One woman who has boys and girls in their teens was making a confession.

"I'm giving the children a new deal," she said. "I'm reforming. I got to wondering the other day why the children were so cranky—and why they didn't want to do things I needed done—and why I always had such a 'bad taste' in my mouth after they had left for school in the morning. And I suddenly realized that I was the 'why' myself."

"What were your crimes?" some one asked.

"O, I'd gotten into all sorts of bad habits. And I tell you for your own information that a lot of things I was doing don't make a hit with growing up children, either—like telling them exactly what to put on each day and getting nervous over the noise they make, and nagging them about their manners, and finding fault with them, and almost never praising them. I'd gotten into so many bad habits that I was terribly discouraged—I didn't see how I was ever going to reform.

"And then," she went on with enthusiasm, "I read a quotation from some great writer and it began, 'Today—today—today.' And there was my cue."

It's a good cue. We do get into bad habits—negative ways of handling our children—every once in a while. Sometimes it's only about trifles—and as to those you can make a general resolution and say to yourself, for instance, "I'm going to stop saying 'dont' once and for all." But when your mistakes are more serious—when you see that you're arousing the children's antagonism or are getting nowhere—when you need to make lots of changes in your attitude, I believe that the most satisfactory way is to do it a day at a time.

If your children are at the vigorous age—between six and twelve—you may find helpful our written-in-full booklet, "LIVING WITH OUR IN-BETWEENS," which may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

Mr. Sims is universally acclaimed the greatest living contract and auction player. He was captain of the renowned "Four Horsemen" team of four, now disbanded, and has won twenty-four national championships since 1924. These articles are based on the Sims system, which includes the one-over-one principle which the Sims group of players was the first to employ and develop.

FIRST AND SECOND HAND BIDS.

BEFORE you carelessly open the bidding for the wolves to leap upon, examine your hand more carefully. What may happen to the player who opens blindly with a borderline hand? Forced by an enthusiastic partner, he makes each subsequent bid with ill concealed reluctance, and is finally crushed by the juggernaut of his own devising. The other side of the picture is just as dark. The opponent to the left doubles; partner, with a black hand, passes; fourth hand cheerfully passes—result down 1,400 points.

P. HAL SIMS.

Therefore, I say to you:

Do not open the bidding in first or second hand position without some rebid values in the hand.

This does not necessarily mean that you have to rebid. If your partner responds with one no-trump, a weak denial bid in my system, and you have nothing more to show him, no safer sign-off to suggest, you may pass. The strength shown by your opening bid guarantees him a play for that contract.

With a defensive type of hand, I look for three primary tricks, subject to reservations.

EXAMPLE:

Sp. x x	Di. A x x
Hts. A K x x x	Cl. x x x

The above hand justifies a bid because there is a bidable five card suit in the hand.

With a four card suit, however, I require some additional secondary values, such as Q J, together or separately. I regard the Q J as a reserve value, providing additional safety, if my partner has to play the hand at one no-trump.

EXAMPLE:

Sp. A x x	Di. A K x x
Hts. Q x x	Cl. J x x

Holding the following type of hand, I prefer to pass:

Sp. A x x	Di. A K x x
Hts. x x x	Cl. x x x

I feel there is no future for this hand unless my partner is strong enough to open the bidding, or overcall an opponent's bid. In either case, I have unsuspected strength for him and can enter the bidding confidently from that point on. My pass may also cause the opponents to bid on and on, until they reach a disastrous overbid. It is hard to be precise about the hands which are neither definitly aggressive nor defensive. If the hand tends more toward the aggressive, and moreover shows strength in the major suits, the opening primary trick requirements may be shaded a trifle.

EXAMPLE:

Sp. K Q 10 x	Di. x
Hts. x x x x	Cl. A Q x x

With this hand, I would pass; but, (1) If the heart suit were headed by the jack, I would bid one club. The additional jack, although unimportant in itself, would provide very strong support for a heart take-out by my partner.

(2) I would also bid, if the club jack accompanied the A Q. The strengthened club holding makes the hand look hopeful for a game in no-trump, if my partner bids diamonds. If he bids hearts or spades, I can confidently give him a raise. The club holding should give him a play for game by virtue of a finesse or a discard.

Lee Tracy Given Contract with Universal Films

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Summarily discharged by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios several weeks ago as a result of an escapade in Mexico City, Lee Tracy, film actor, today signed a contract with the Universal Film corporation. He will take part in a production of a newspaper romance. Tracy has been idle since M-G-M removed him from its pay roll as a result of his alleged undressing scene on a hotel balcony in Mexico City during a military parade.

Jane Arden Evans and Dorrance Brown Wed at Canal Zone

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

BALBOA, C. Z., Feb. 8.—The marriage of Miss Jane Arden Evans, daughter of Lieut. Commander Herbert Heard Evans, U. S. N. R., and Mrs. Evans, to Dorrance Brown, son of Maj. Gen. Preston Brown, U. S. A., and Mrs. Brown, took place today at the Episcopal Cathedral of St. Luke's in Ancon. The Rt. Rev. Harry Roberts Carson, missionary bishop of Haiti and the Canal Zone, performed the ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Evans home in Balboa Heights.

The bride was graduated from Smith college in 1932. Mr. Brown was graduated from Yale in 1929. His father is now commandant of the 6th corps area, Chicago.

MIDDLE AGED HAIR IS YOUTHFUL AGAIN

"I'M DISGUSTED WITH MY HAIR. IT'S ALWAYS SO DULL, LIFELESS AND OLD LOOKING. HOW DO YOU KEEP YOURS SO LOVELY?"
"MY HAIR WAS THAT WAY UNTIL I USED GERAL THE ORIGINAL MAKE-UP FOR THE HAIR. WHY DON'T YOU TRY IT?"

Doing one thing now makes dull hair gleam with lustre

If you would like to see your dull, faded hair take on a lustre and beauty it has not had in years—just do this one simple thing. Comb your hair with Geral—the original make-up for the hair. Geral is not a dye, bleach or henna. It contains no oil. Geral beautifies the hair as rouge, powder and lipstick beautify the face. No matter what the color of your hair—blonde, auburn, brown, brunette or gray—no matter how lifeless and drab, Geral will impart NOT an artificial look but the natural life, sheen and softness of youthful girlhood. Obtain Geral at all good toilet counters and drug stores.

Determinant of Cosmetic Shade Is Skin Color

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

What a lot of time and history have gone under the bridge since a white powder and a strawberry pink rouge graced [or disgraced] the fair [sometimes called wanton] face.

Makeup, as it is offered today, compared to its setup fifteen, or even ten years ago, is as changed as are world conditions, only more settled.

The gradations in makeup colors are many, as you know. The actual making of these products advanced beyond the earliest dreams. And women users, of the modern stuffs, are so different from the whitefaced, strangely flushed cheeked woman of former days!

Our problem today is not so simple, of course, because we all have not the fine color sense which this handsome array of makeup shades inspires.

But we always can ask. The manufacturers have been pretty smart in the way in which they establish with their products women who can direct the buyer to a better choice. She may not always be right, but neither are you or I and, at least, she has the advantage of experience with many complexion tones and general coloring. So, she's worth interviewing if we cannot make up our own minds.

One must know something about skin colors in order to get the best out of her makeup color. There is no such thing as white skin. There's cream in skin, a little yellow, tan maybe, or pink.

There may be a bit of blue in your skin or a ruddy, reddish coloring. There are clear enough cream skins and tan, but there are also muddy skins and bluish skins. And, then there is a change in skin color, reflected by the color in the dress worn, all of which must be understood in order to get the best from your makeup coloring. A creamy skin would take best a cream or light rachel powder and a bright red lipstick would be its best complement. If the skin is pinkish, a pinkish powder would be best, and rouge and lipstick with a bluish cast. For a yellowish tone in the skin, one of the ochre shades would be the best powder choice, and a coral red lipstick, or Spanish red.

PASSAGE OF BILLS FOR THE 1934 FAIR BELIEVED CERTAIN

Telegrams Pledge Support of Assemblymen.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Passage of the 1934 Century of Progress enabling legislation by the two-thirds vote of the general assembly required to make it effective immediately upon its enactment was believed assured yesterday by further replies from assemblymen to telegrams of inquiry sent to them by THE TRIBUNE.

The assurance came from the favorable answers received from senators and representatives of districts outside of Cook county. Affirmative and enthusiastic replies have come from most of the Cook county delegation, which is expected to stand as a unit for these bills on roll call. Taking that for granted, there were sufficient commitments and favorable expressions from downstaters yesterday to show that there will be at least 36 votes in the senate and at least 102 in the house for these measures.

Await Other Favorable Replies.

There are still a large number of the lawmakers to be heard from, about a dozen senators and two score representatives. Many of these, according to reports made to THE TRIBUNE, have not yet received the telegrams inquiring as to their attitudes.

Senator Roy C. Woods [Rep., Chicago], who sponsored the original legislation for the 1933 Exposition, and who will introduce the 1934 bills next Tuesday, went a long way toward clearing up the doubts expressed by nine downstaters—one senator and eight representatives—who were noncommittal because they said they did not know just what the bills would provide.

Explains Bills' Provisions.

"They need have no fears on that score," said Senator Woods, "for so far as the grant of power is concerned these bills cover the same ground as did the original bills of 1931. Their enactment is necessary because the 1931 bills provided only for the use of park land and other necessities during 1933.

"There are only minor changes in the new bills, alterations for clarification and for the avoidance of disputes that arose under the old laws. Two bills are approximately duplicates, one being a special bill for A Century of Progress specifically, and since its validity has not been passed on by the courts, a general bill for any world's fair.

"The third bill extends the life of the state commission headed in 1933 by Gov. Horner and including state senators and representatives and nonlegislative members. My best information concerning the amount of money required from the state is that this fund will not exceed $100,000—this in contrast to the $350,000 voted in 1931."

Comments from Senators.

Excerpts from telegrams received from state senators representing districts outside Cook county follow:

ARNOLD T. BENSON [Rep., Batavia]—"Favor and will support legislation making possible A Century of Progress this year."

C. L. EWING [Rep., Douglas]—"I am for anything within reason."

JEROME O'CONNELL [Dem., Morris]—"Will gladly support legislation for continuance of A Century of Progress in 1934."

RAY PADDOCK [Rep., Round Lake]—"Have not received copies of proposed bills but am friendly toward this legislation."

J. S. MUNDY [Dem., Marshall]—"Will go along with World's Fair legislation, state appropriation excepted."

L. C. SIEBERNS [Dem., Gridley]—"Favorable. No commitment without seeing legislation."

Representatives' Comments.

DENNIS J. COLLINS [Rep., De Kalb]—"World's Fair put thousands of people to work and brought over 4 hundred million dollars to our great city and state. The 1933 success has put more hope and confidence in all our people. I will whole heartedly, sincerely, and actively support any reasonable legislation for its reopening."

JOHN L. WALKER [Rep., Joliet]—"Constructive stimulation of all lines of business by A Century of Progress last year compels me to enthusiastically add my vote for continuation."

HENRY C. ALLEN [Rep., Lyndon]—I will be pleased to support any legislation necessary."

RICHARD J. LYONS [Rep., Mundelein]—"All Illinois will benefit from a continuation of the great expostion."

G. J. JOHNSON [Rep., Paxton]—"Will of course be happy to support necessary legislation."

F. W. LEWIS [Dem., Robinson]—"I am unqualifiedly for A Century of Progress legislation."

M. E. BRAY [Dem., Litchfield]—"I favor the legislation. The magnificent success last year justifies the general assembly in passing it immediately."

MICHAEL FAHY [Dem., Tolucs]—"Will support any legislation for reopening A Century of Progress."

LAURENCE F. ARNOLD [Dem., Newton]—"I favor enabling legislation to permit reopening."

W. O. EDWARDS [Dem., Danville]—"Fair should be continued. Am favorable to legislation. It means added business to Illinois."

W. C. CHYNOWETH [Rep., Decatur]—"My attitude is favorable, but must see bills before certain commitment."

SOL HANDY [Dem., Marshall]—"I favor enabling legislation. I take it that small or no appropriation will be asked."

CLINTON SEARLE [Rep., Rock Island]—"With proper safeguarding A Century of Progress very desirable."

HUGH GREEN [Rep., Jacksonville]—"Without knowing specific proposals, the most I can say is that I see no objection to same."

THOMAS J. LENANE [Dem., Quincy]—"I will favor any reasonable legislation for reopening."

D. T. WOODARD [Dem., Grayville]—"Can see no reason for opposing legislation."

Gov. Horner, who is in Arizona, has data as to the items of the appropriation required for state participation in the Exposition and he is expected to name the amount of the appropriation asked.

Austin, Tex., Feb. 8.—(AP)—The Texas senate today defeated a house resolution proposing ratification of the child labor amendment to the United States constitution.

HEAD OF CUBA ORDERS WORKERS TO STOP STRIKES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Feb. 8.—President Mendieta issued a decree today ordering workers to cease their strikes. It is estimated 108 strikes are in progress. Some have lasted as long as three weeks.

The decree dissolves unions and syndicates of the National Labor Federation, the National Confederation of Labor, and the Railroad brotherhood for 100 days. It further provides that when they reorganize, all leaders must be native Cubans and actually employed. Foreign agitators, who are blamed for the strikes, are to be deported or sentenced to prison. A supreme court of labor is created. Its membership is composed of two government officials, three workers, three busines men, one representative of any organization on strike, and one representative of the business against which the strike is directed. The secretary of labor will preside.

Another clause authorizes Col. Fulgencio Batista, chief of the army, to mobilize immediately a militia of 40,000 men to aid the army in suppressing terrorists. Batista announced the additional force will be on duty before the end of the week. Three bombs exploded in the last 24 hours. There were no casualties.

Begs from Auto Drivers; Gets Year in Bridewell

Jacob Aconis, who begged $97 in ten days from kindhearted motorists whom he approached when they stopped for a traffic light at Jackson boulevard and Des Plaines street, was sentenced to one year in the Bridewell and fined $1 by Municipal Judge Gibson E. Gorman yesterday. Aconis was arrested by police when they discovered that he was an inmate of one of the relief shelters. He was charged with obtaining money under false pretenses.

AUTO 'STRIPPING' FRAUD INQUIRY IS ASKED BY JUDGE

Judge Joseph A. Graber in the automobile court yesterday demanded that the state's attorney investigate reports that certain insurance adjusters have conspired with dishonest garage owners to defraud insurance companies by "stripping" recovered stolen cars.

The judge said he had been informed that stolen automobiles, recovered in perfect condition, are sent to the garages by dishonest insurance adjusters and the accessories removed. The insurance company then has to pay for the missing parts before the car is returned to the owner.

Assistant State's Attorney Raymond Prystalski, assigned to the Automobile court, assured the judge that an investigation would be started immediately.

Frank Tokarz, 21 years old, and Bernard Phillips, 18, who were arrested Sunday in a stolen car, were held to the grand jury yesterday by Judge Graber in bonds of $2,500 each.

A coroner's jury decided yesterday that James Royston, 19 years old, a Leyden Township high school student who ended his life in the Oak Park jail on Wednesday, had committed suicide while temporarily insane. The youth was held as the "fence" through which a gang of five young automobile thieves disposed of automobiles taken from western suburbs. Police said the youth's father, Claude A. Royston, 179 North Elmwood avenue, Oak Park, had visited him on Wednesday and that shame had probably prompted the boy's act.

Chirps the First Robin

A lovely spring song! It's music to our ears. Some very catchy notes have been added this year, and Carson's insists that you come to the tweed shop so you will always be on key! We have studied tweed so assiduously in our store, and have figured and schemed so faultlessly, that there is no excuse for any one to "flat" their tweed fashion song here!

THE lady who is so sure of her suit pulls the knee length tuxedo coat back for you to see her slender skirt and short jacket buttoned in Chanel fashion. Navy, beige, gray and green. It is one of our best suits and "Vogue" thinks so, too, for it is a "Vogue Economy" suit in the last issue. $30.

THE top coat is one of those divine spongy tweeds that you want to feel. It's the new seven-eighths length and on smarter, straighter lines than any of last year's tweeds. Green, tan, gold, navy. Buttons are wooden, pockets are deep. $17.75.

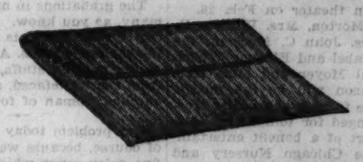
THE lady with the top coat has on a striped silk blouse, meticulously tailored with a trim bow-tie, and buttons marching down the front. Choose it in dark maize, rose, blue. Sizes 32 to 38. $5.95.

Tweed Shop, Fourth Floor.

You will find something in this hat that no other hat has—look it up when you are in and see if you can leave without it. The folded crown will ensnare you. Felts in colors for tweeds. $5.

Millinery, Fifth Floor.

Silhouette has a number of perfect hats for tweeds. This one has a squarish stitched crown. The felt is the finest. Many colors. Silhouette hats come in 13 accurate headsizes. $7.50.



Flat envelope bag in Schiaparelli rib grain. Smart and nice to slip under your arm. $3.

Pigskin pull-ons are the right kind of gloves. Contrast or match tweeds in blue, black, brown, neutral beige or white. $3.50.

If You Take Your

Tweeds

By the Yard—

You yourself can have a hand in making your visions of that perfect tweed outfit come true. You'll find it a joy to sink your needle into the inviting tweeds in this collection. Take your choice of monotones, mixtures, or plaids. There are stunning weaves from across the sea, and equally smart ones from right here at home. Weights and colorings suitable for coats, suits, frocks. Priced according to kind and quality.

$3.50 to $11.50 yd.

Fabrics, Second Floor.

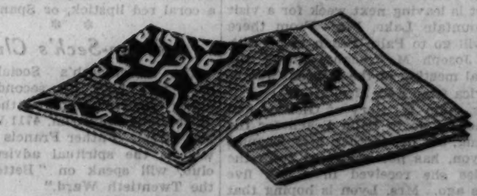
Jewelry, First Floor.



You'll be amused to find printed linen handkerchiefs looking for all the world like a tweed weave. They are priced at 25c.

Calfskin used inside out in the proper style of fringe tongue oxford with low leather heel. Brown, beige, gray. $8.95.

Shoes, Third Floor.

First Floor.

CHICAGO ENTRY SETS RECORD IN GOLDEN GLOVES

2,772 Boxers Seek Titles.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Entries in the Chicago Golden Gloves sectional tournaments have established an all time record. Two thousand seven hundred and seventy-two boys sent in entry blanks to the sports department for the tournaments, which will qualify 32 novice fighters for the Chicago Stadium meet and 64 open division fighters for the Tournament of Champions.

JOHN BEHR.

This year's entry exceeds last year's by 15 per cent. In the two years since the inauguration of the novice division the list of entries has multiplied more than three times.

West Section Opens Monday.

A new system of selection of competitors was started this winter, and after nine nights of physical examinations the lists have been reduced to those boys who are best fitted for the rigors of a boxing tournament. The west section, which opens Monday at the 132d Regiment Armory, Madison and Rockwell streets, will be the largest of the four Chicago sections in number of contestants. For three nights two rings will be in use. The tournament will start each evening at 7 o'clock.

All contestants in both open and novice divisions must report between 4 and 6 o'clock Monday afternoon at the 132d Regiment Armory for their second physical examinations.

While the increase in the novice tournament may be due in part to the rewards for this group, which includes a trip to New York for the eight winners, there also has been a marked increase in the number of contestants in the open class. From this group of experienced fighters will come Chicago's team, which will battle with the representatives of 35 cities from eight states and the champions of the Catholic Youth organization for the 1934 Golden Gloves titles.

Greatest Tourney of Champions.

The Tournament of Champions undoubtedly will be the largest and best amateur tournament ever held. Not only is the field larger than ever before, but it now includes such outstanding boxing centers as Indianapolis, Detroit, Omaha, Cleveland, Grand Rapids, Milwaukee and Nashville, not to mention other cities that have coöperated with THE TRIBUNE since the inception of the tournament.

Chicago's Golden Gloves action shifts next Wednesday to the Savoy ballroom at 4733 South Parkway for the near south side tournament. One ring will be used for three nights at the Savoy and the opening night will be simultaneous with the final night of boxing at the 132d Regiment armory. During the next week the boys from the north side will compete at Loyola university on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, while the south side entrants swing into action on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights.

Admission for all sectional tournaments will be 60 cents plus the federal tax. There will be no reserved seats, and the doors will open each night at 6:15.

Referee Corps Intact.

The success of the matches depends in no small measure on the work of the referees. For more than five years the same group of nine referees, all licensed by the Illinois athletic commission and the central association of the A. A. U., have supervised the Golden Gloves boxers. Their efficiency in the past is a matter of record and their fairness never has been questioned. THE TRIBUNE is fortunate that this corps of men will be available again this year. The list follows: John Behr, Dave Miller, Tommy Thomas, Phil Collins, George Young, Norm McGarity, Dave Barry, Tom Gilmore and Joe McNamara.

Now Is Your Chance

Applications for Golden Gloves tickets are being received by mail only this week. Next week they will be placed on sale at loop ticket offices and it will be more difficult to get seats up close. Order today if you want choice locations.

Prices of tickets for the Tournament of Champions at Chicago Stadium, Feb. 26, 27, and 28 are $1.10, 66c, and 40c. The finals will be held in the same arena, March 9. Seats for the championship bouts are $3.30, $2.20, $1.65, $1.10, and 55c. All seats are reserved.

More than 6,000 fighting men are striving for Golden Gloves. Only eight will survive. All will have proven their bravery, though they never win a bout. You will want to follow their struggle down the championship trail.

Talking It Over

BY ARCH WARD.

CHUCK KLEIN is not a rubbing table addict, which has relieved some of the vexations from the life of Andy Lotshaw, Cubs' trainer . . . There are only a few moments during the day or night when Dr. Lotshaw can get Babe Herman and Stanley Hack off his massage table and those few minutes usually are taken up by injured players . . . If Chuck were a slab lizard after the fashion of Babe and Stan, the only out for the doc would be to carry an assistant masseur. . . Herb Graffis reports that a survey of 436 golf clubs shows the number of new members for season exceeded the number of resignations on file in July 1933 for the first time in four years . . . Wendell Wilson, freshman football coach at Illinois, spends his summers as a forest ranger in the Rocky mountains. . . .

The only campus memorial to a Northwestern football player is to a man who never won his letter . . . The inscription on the boulder reads in part: "In honor of David Hanson. He played four years on the scrubs. He never quit" . . . Hanson was graduated from the Northwestern medical school in 1909 . . . He was a captain in the medical corps during the war and was killed at St. Etienne, Oct. 8, 1918, when in the face of heavy machine gun fire he went to the aid of a wounded man . . . Lou Gehrig never will play golf until he is through with baseball . . . He thinks it hurts his batting. When five New York Rangers recently were presented with diamond signet rings to mark their 400th game together, four received them in ordinary fashion, but when it came to Murray Murdock, they called on Gehrig of the Yankees, who has played 1,350 consecutive games of baseball . . . It was one iron man to another, for Murdoch had played in each of the 400 games . . . Charles Nash, president of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association, is vacationing in Florida . . . Ted Moreau, secretary of the organization, is convalescing after an operation . . .

Minnesota' basketball team scored 186 points in its first six games . . . That is more than the Gophers have made in a similar period for at least a decade . . . The brother, who will be graduated from a military academy in June, has been pitching for several years but Goose wants him to be an outfielder . . . Johnny Goodman, Johnny Fischer, Lawson Little and Chandler Egan will be getting their baptism of international golf when the American Walker cup team meets the Britons in England May 11 and 12 . . . This is the first year the team has been selected so early . . . Gus Moe . . . [illegible] cup series, didn't know he was going until a week before the matches . . .

The Toronto Maple Leafs have ten scouts watching indoor and outdoor rinks around Toronto for talent . . . Two of Lionel Conacher's younger brothers, Roy and Bert, have been tied up by the Leafs . . . Kyle Anderson, who has succeeded Pat Page as baseball coach at the University of Chicago, was with the Pirates for part of one season . . . He was a good fielding second baseman but he couldn't hit in the big time . . . Eddie Shore of the Boston Bruins is the iron man of hocky, often playing entire games without relief . . . Once having missed a train from Boston to Montreal he drove all night in an open automobile to participate in a game . . . His playing was not affected by the trip . . .

TED LYONS SIGNS 1934 CONTRACT; HIS ARM'S READY

Chamberlain, Wanderer, Joins Sox List.

President Lou Comiskey of the White Sox received a double portion of good news from Ted Lyons last night. One item was the signed contract of the veteran right hand pitcher and the other was a letter accompanying the document, in which Ted declared his salary arm, which caused him no end of difficulty last summer, is again in top condition.

The latter detail is the more cheering of the two to the Sox chief, inasmuch as there never was a great deal of doubt that Ted would sign, but there was concern about that arm, which held the usually consistent pitcher down to ten victories while he was losing 21 games in 1933.

Ted Was Good Then.

Ted reached his peak with the Sox, his only major league affiliation, in 1927 and 1930. He won 22 games while losing 14 the former year and won 22 while being charged with 15 defeats in 1930, despite the fact that the club was one of the weakest in the American league.

A few hours before the registered envelope bearing Lyons' news arrived at Sox headquarters the signed contract of one Joe Chamberlain, the wandering infielder, had been received. Chamberlain is the lad who was purchased by the Sox from the Waterloo club of the Mississippi Valley league in 1932. He appeared in a few games with the Hose near the end of the campaign, but failed to report at Pasadena last spring and continued to absent himself throughout the summer.

Yesterday's letter was the first news the Sox had received from him in months.

Miller Draws Release.

Walter Miller, the elderly left hander, whose ability to baffle the champion Senators on several occasions was the only reason for his retention last season, was mailed his unconditional release by President Comiskey yesterday.

The only announcement from the Cub officials yesterday was to the effect that Pat Malone, the temperamental pitcher for whom the club is seeking a buyer, will arrive from his winter home at Miami, Fla., today to discuss terms with President William Walker.

Pat returned his first contract unsigned, following which President Walker announced that the club would place Malone on the block.

THREE MEETS TOMORROW FOR SKATE STARS

Chicago ice skaters will compete in four meets over the week-end. Three are scheduled tomorrow, while the other will be held Sunday. Tomorrow the annual Lincoln park meet will be held on the north lagoon, while the municipal meet will take place at the Garfield park lagoon. The Sleipner Athletic club will conduct its 40th annual meet at the Coliseum tomorrow night.

Leading skaters in the district will participate in the Arthur M. Romme Skating club's meet at Humboldt park Sunday. The races will start at 1 o'clock. Among the clubs which will be represented are the Brekke, Olympic, and the Northwest.

There will be two races for senior men on the program. There also will be competition in classes AA, B, C, novice, intermediate, junior, and juvenile for boys and classes A, B, and under 14 years of age for girls.

MISSES ORCUTT, HICKS MEET IN GOLF FINAL TODAY

Miami, Fla., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Two rivals in women's golf—Helen Hicks of Hewlett, N. Y., and Maureen Orcutt, Haworth, N. J., will meet in the final round of the Miami-Biltmore women's golf championship tournament tomorrow as a result of victories in the semi-finals today.

Miss Hicks eliminated Miss Marian Miley, Lexington Ky., 2 and 1, while Miss Orcutt defeated Mrs. Opal S. Hill, Kansas City, defending champion, by the same score. The finals tomorrow will be at 36 holes.

CRADLEWEIGHT CHAMP

James Spearson of 4422 Emerald avenue won't be 11 years old until next month, but he wanted to fight in The Tribune's Golden Gloves tournament, where the minimum age of contestants is 16 years. James brought in his mother, Mrs. Mary Spearson (with 19 months' old Brother George in her arms), to prove he had parental consent to enter the tourney. Officials were forced to turn down James' plea, but marked him as a likely candidate for the 1939 or 1940 squad. Brother George forgot to send in his entry blank.

HALL TRIUMPHS OVER THURNBLAD IN CUE TOURNEY

Layton Defeats Reiselt, 50 to 48.

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Allen Hall of Chicago scored his third triumph in the world's three cushion billiard tourney by virtue of a close match this afternoon and has yet to be defeated. Hall won by 50 to 49 over Arthur Thurnblad of Chicago, former title holder, in the fifty-seventh inning, after his rival had the edge, 49 to 48, in the previous inning.

Although Hall started slowly, tallying only a single point in the opening ten innings, his skilful shooting gave him the lead in the twenty-sixth, 20 to 18, after a foul in the twenty-fifth cost Thurnblad a point. Hall accounted for his high run of 7 in the twenty-seventh and widened his margin to 11 points by the thirty-ninth, being in front, 41 to 30.

Thurnblad Takes Lead.

Tallying 12 points in three innings, a 4, 5, and 3, Thurnblad nevertheless moved ahead, 43 to 42, in the forty-fifth. They tied at 44 to 44 and 45 to 45. Then Hall clicked off three in the fifty-third and Thurnblad got one. Thurnblad seemed to have the victory within his grasp after acquiring one in the fifty-fourth and two more in the fifty-sixth for 49 as Hall went scoreless. But on his next trip to the table Hall bagged the two points for the game. Thurnblad had two high runs of 5.

Kinrey Matsuyama, the national champion, reeled off an unfinished run of 6 to carry off his afternoon game against Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago, 50 to 46.

Matsuyama's winning spurt completed the game in the fifty-third, after Kieckhefer had gained the advantage by a run of 3 in the fifty-second. The Chicagoan at that moment led, 46 to 44, but the diminutive national title holder carefully gauged his angles in executing his final high run of 6. Matsuyama had an earlier string of 6 in the forty-second. Kieckhefer's steadiest work came toward the close of the match when he counted 15 points in six innings, starting with the forty-seventh.

Layton Beats Reiselt.

By virtue of an unusual rally Johnny Layton of Sedalia, Mo., ten times champion, beat Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia, 50 to 48, in an evening game.

Seemingly on the verge of almost certain defeat as Reiselt had an advantage of 49 to 36 in the fifty-fourth inning, Layton swept through to a victory in the sixty-first inning at the Capitol academy while his rival desperately attempted to gain the vital point for the game.

As it turned out, Reiselt lost ground in the sixtieth inning as Referee Charles McElligott called a foul for striking the cue ball with the side of his cue instead of the tip, and thus one point was deducted from Reiselt's total. Coming at this juncture, the incident proved to be a crucial one, for on his trip to the table Layton tied the count at 48 to 48 with a run of 3.

Reiselt failed to score in the sixty-first, but Layton, who had trailed by 20 points earlier in the game, then ran two to annex his second triumph of the tourney.

Following this match Willie Hoppe, world's 18.1 and carom cushion champion, defeated Len Kenney of Chicago, 50 to 46, in 53 innings. Kenney assumed the lead at 42 to 41 in the forty-fourth and again, at 45 to 44, in the fiftieth, but Hoppe proved too consistent. The New Yorker tallied four in the fifty-first and one in the next two innings for his second victory.

Aurora Junior College Beats Elmhurst, 28-22

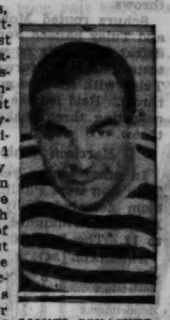
Aurora Junior college's basketball team defeated Elmhurst, 28 to 22, at Elmhurst yesterday. Turk starred for the winners, collecting 13 points. Duhang scored eight points to lead the Elmhurst attack.

THOMPSON AND AURIE SCORE IN THIRD PERIOD

Fist Fights Break Out Twice.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Blackhawks and Detroit Red Wings, never what you might call the best of friends, renewed their little difference last night at the Stadium in the presence of a fortunate 7,500 without arriving at anything more decisive than a 1 to 1 tie. The lucky 7,500 who were in attendance were regaled, not with the best hocky of the season, but with one of the most rambunctious contests that has ever been transacted on the Stadium ice.



LIONEL CONACHER.

There was nary a beg your pardon at any moment of the seventy minutes, and although Referees Smith and Stewart, who contributed one of the few refreshing jobs of officiating of the year, assessed only eight penalties during the whole game, two of them were majors and one, to Lionel Conacher of the Hawks, ten minutes for misconduct.

Hawks Gain Advantage.

It appeared as though the Hawks might overtake the Wings, who this morning are still one point ahead of them in second place in the American division of the National Hocky league, when Paul Thompson and Doc Romnes collaborated on the first score of the evening in the middle of the third period. This was all very nice until, with the final siren about to whine, Laurie Aurie of the Wings came along and tied it up. Neither team could increase its profit in the overtime.

The strenuous complexion of the contest became quite apparent in the first minute of play, when both teams began skating at a third period tempo. It would have been very well if they had decided to confine themselves to sheer speed, but it soon became quite evident that both were also going in for a bit of old fashioned jostling. This went beyond the elbow bumping stage within the first five minutes, and both teams indulged in a flurry of spirited stick waving which had the customers in an uproar but still found both officials extremely lenient.

Romnes was the first to draw the attention of the referees when he was deported on a slashing charge. Shortly after, Buswell was sentenced for tripping, and at fourteen minutes the aforementioned Conacher business came to pass. Lionel had taken the puck down twice, and on each occasion had encountered Buswell. He escorted it down for the third time and caused Walter to stretch himself out on the ice.

Then Trouble Begins.

Referee Smith tagged the Hawk defense man out on a routine checking penalty. It appeared to be an ordinary body check as far as Lionel was concerned and he started over to debate the matter. Somewhere in the confusion that ensued his fist came up among the features of Teddy Graham, the one time Hawk captain, who was traded to Montreal originally for Conacher. Referee Smith then added the ten minute misbehavior penalty to the original two minutes.

Lionel restrained himself in the bastile until seventeen minutes, when Goodfellow and Cook came to blows, and then he clambered over the rim of the penalty box, apparently with a view to attending to Ebbie, but was sent back with both of them, the pair being given major penalties.

Prior to this Gardiner had come almost the length of the ice for several heated words with Smith, but got no response.

A 0 to 0 deadlock prevailed into the third period, when, at eleven minutes, Thompson personally took the puck down the rink, passed to Romnes, and accepted the latter's return for a clean shot at Cude. This appeared to be sufficient until Aurie came along, with less than three minutes of the regulation period remaining, and with the assistance of Sorrell and Lewis slammed the puck by Gardiner to tie the score.

MARSHALL FIVE DEFEATS CRANE, 34-19; HOLDS TOP

Possner Leads Attack in Fifth Straight Win.

Marshall's heavyweights maintained their lead in the west section of the Chicago Public High School league by defeating the Crane Tech quintet, 34 to 19, at Marshall's gymnasium yesterday. It was Marshall's fifth consecutive victory. Possner, center, led the Marshall attack, scoring five field goals and three free throws.

Another undefeated team, Bowen, triumphed over Hyde Park, 41 to 25, to take first place in the south section. Parker, which is in second place with four victories and no defeats, will tie Bowen if it defeats Hirsch this afternoon on the Hirsch court.

Harper and Fenger Win.

Harper and Fenger won in two other south division games. Harper eked out a 28 to 27 victory over Calumet on the latter's floor, while Fenger defeated Morgan Park, 25 to 23, at Morgan Park. Stromberg, Fenger forward, scored eight baskets and two free throws.

Schurz routed McKinley, 44 to 15, and Tuley handed Foreman a 28 to 27 defeat in a pair of west section contests. Zuyek, forward, starred for Tuley with six field goals and one free throw. Reid led the Foreman scorers, collecting three baskets and one free throw.

Harrison Whips Phillips.

In other games yesterday Harrison Tech won from Phillips, 28 to 18; Lindblom defeated Kelly, 28 to 27, and Farragut triumphed over Manley, 43 to 18. The lineups:

MALKOV IS MAT RIVAL NO. 1,876 FOR GUS CLEM

Gus Sonnenberg has appeared in more than 1,000 wrestling bouts in his ten year career, but there is one veteran on the card at the Arcadia Gardens, Feb. 16, who has gone to the mat more times than the former champion.

He is Gus Clem, 175 pounder, who claims that in fifteen years of wrestling he has averaged 125 matches a year for an approximate total of 1,875. Clem adds to this the assertion that he has never been pinned.

Gus will bid for the city light heavyweight championship in a one fall, half hour time limit battle with S. Zack Malkov of Rogers Park in one of the four supporting matches to the Jack Smith-Sonnenberg windup.

Golden Fate Wins Hialeah Event Handily

Miami, Fla., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Golden Fate moved up into fast company at Hialeah Park today to take the measure of some of the best sprinters at the track in the six furlong Idle Hour handicap. Golden Fate led all the way and at the finish he was two lengths in front of Quel Jeu, with Evergold another length away in third place. Clotho, The Pelican, Red Roamer, and Flagstone were also rans.

Today's victory was Golden Fate's third straight in Florida, but the previous two were scored in cheaper claiming company. The 4 year old covered the distance in the fast time of 1:10 4-5 under a good ride by Silvio Coucci.

Makes Fast Start.

Golden Fate started fast and drew away from the field in the first furlong. At the quarter mile he was two lengths in front of The Pelican, which was running strongly in second place. Golden Fate showed no signs of tiring after his early burst of speed and Coucci was able to keep him out of danger throughout the late stages of the race.

Quel Jeu made a game effort to catch the winner, but owing to a slow start he found the handicap too great to be overcome. He held on well through the stretch but was incapable of closing any ground on the leader.

Gay Joe Wins.

Another racer accounted for his third straight victory when Gay Joe captured the fourth race, leading home a field of seven 3 year olds. Under the colors of Mrs. J. Grossman, Gay Joe drew into a winning lead in the late stages of the six furlong event, but tired and was forced to a drive in the stretch run.

TAMPA DOWNS OPENS

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Five thousand race track fans today visited the Tampa Downs track to witness the inauguration of the first season of horse racing here since 1927. Tampa Downs was built during boom days, but has had only one short season, a week in 1927 when betting was illegal.

LOYOLA SWIM TEAM TO MEET MICHIGAN STATE

Loyola university's swimming team will engage Michigan State college in a dual meet at the Loyola gymnasium pool tonight. The Ramblers opened their season with a 44 to 31 victory over Northwestern's B team, but lost by one point to the University of Chicago swimmers last month.

The withdrawal of Bill Spoeri from school has weakened the Loyola team in the 100 and 200 yard events, but Loyola still has five veterans. Consistent winners in the 50 and 100 yard free style events are Capt. Eddie Ertz and Bill Trick, Jim Elwell in the back stroke, Max Brydenthal in the breast stroke, Jack Kearns and Don Vandenburg in diving.

Many Pools Can Be Made Duck Havens

BY BOB BECKER.

"A duck on every puddle" urges the new committee on wild life restoration recently appointed to work out a nation-wide program. "But we must first get the puddles," advise America's conservationists. Therefore federal authorities, state game officials, sportsmen's organizations, and land owners are responding to halt the serious decline of America's duck population by joining in a nation-wide campaign for the establishment of hundreds of small migratory bird refuges.

These ponds for ducks need not be large nor expensive projects. In fact, it is surprising how water birds will nest on small pools if they have a fair amount of natural vegetation for cover and food.

Many Small Ponds in Chicagoland.

Chicagoland is fortunate in having many small ponds some of which are now being used by waterbirds for nesting sites. Other water areas not attracting water birds can be converted into nesting spots by planting vegetation and protecting the ponds so that birds can nest undisturbed. Such water areas not only can produce birds, but in the fall they also serve as rest grounds during the migration.

We have noted how birds have used several small ponds near Wheaton, Ill., during the summer and autumn seasons. On one small pond a grebe hatched a family not far from a number of domesticated wild geese. During the summer months numerous herons and white egrets came to the waterhole to feed. Then last fall we saw wild ducks swinging in for the night on every visit we made to the ponds.

New Booklet Just Issued.

Land owners who have ponds on their property, sportsmen, and others who wish further information on small refuges for water birds, will find much practical information in a new booklet which has just been issued. It has been published by More Game Birds, Inc., 500 Fifth avenue, New York City. The title of the booklet is "Small Refuges for Waterfowl." Copies are available free on request if you will write the organization at the above address.

This handbook describes existing small refuges and how they are operated. Methods of establishing new refuges are detailed. It states:

AMERICANS AND MAPLE LEAFS GO TO 3-3 DEADLOCK

Toronto Stands Off Foes with Two Men Short.

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Americans, first and fourth place clubs, respectively, in the National Hocky league's Canadian division, played to a 3-3 tie tonight before 8,000 fans. It was their third draw in five meetings this season.

Most of the excitement came in the second period when each team scored two goals in the first ten minutes. Then the Leafs made a magnificent defensive stand after receiving a series of penalties that left them two men short. Hal Cotton drew a ten minute misconduct penalty in the argument, which ended with Conny Smythe, Toronto manager, rushing across to tell Referee Jack Cameron about it, then remaining to direct proceedings from the penalty box.

Joe Primeau, Chuck Conacher and Buzz Boll of the Leafs were missing at the start because of injuries and in the middle of the first period Charlie Sands crashed into the stands and was taken out for the rest of the game. The Americans also had to use a makeshift lineup, due the absence of Ronnie Martin. The lineups:

AMERICANS (3).		TORONTO (3).
Worters	G	Hainsworth
Dutton	R. D.	Levinsky
Brydge	L. D.	Day
Conn	C	Blair
Burke	R. W.	Sands

MAROONS, 3; CANADIENS, 2

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Cy Wentworth broke up a fast and furious battle between Montreal's two national Hockey league teams, Maroons and Canadiens, tonight, scoring on a pass from Earl Robinson after six minutes of overtime, to give the Maroons a 3-2 victory and undisputed possession of second place in the Canadian division.

Little Aurel Joliat, playing his 500th National league game in 12 seasons with the Canadiens, received a loving cup from his teammates, and a chest of silver and a golf bag from the fans and then went out and took personal charge of the Canadiens' offense. Lineup:

BELLE PLAINE'S FIGHTERS DRAW WITH NORTHWEST

George Nelson, Belle Plaine, beat Stanley Milansky, Northwest [3].
Eddie Helstron, Belle Plaine, beat Morris Graff, Northwest [3].

LIST CENTRAL A. A. U. WOMEN'S MEET MARCH 3

The Central A. A. U. women's indoor track and field meet will be held March 3 at the 132d Infantry armory, 2753 West Madison street. William G. Larson, chairman of the women's track committee, announced this yesterday.

The events will include 50 meter dash, 50 meter low hurdles, 70 meter dash, 200 meter run, 400 meter relay, running high jump, standing broad jump, shot put and basket ball throw.

This is the first time that the metric distances are being used for the women's championship events here.

Brodar, Platek Reach City Handball Finals

Jack Brodar will meet Joe Platek in the finals of the annual Chicago city singles handball tournament at the Illinois Athletic club courts tomorrow afternoon. In the semi-final round last night Brodar defeated Gil Ribbach, 21-16, 21-9, and Platek eliminated Dick Martin, 21-4, 21-9.

Harvey Whips Gains, Wins British Empire Crown

LONDON, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Len Harvey, British heavyweight boxing champion, won the British empire title for good measure tonight by outpointing Larry Gains, veteran Negro from Canada, before a crowd of 10,000 at Albert hall, in a fifteen round match.

MOON MULLINS—A STRIKING RESEMBLANCE

NAUGHTY BOY— I THOUGHT YOU WERE TRYING TO GIVE ME THE AIR.
POOR LITTLE GIRL, HOW YOU MUST HAVE MISSED ME—AH! I SHALL EXPLAIN EVERYTHING, MAXINE MY DEAR, WHEN I SEE YOU THIS EVENING.

Now We'll Get the Dope on Football Code

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 8.—(AP)—The annual meeting of the intercollegiate football rules committee opens at the Atlanta Athletic club tomorrow night and likely will continue into Sunday. The conferences will be attended by four members of the coaches' advisory group and an equal number representing the officials.

Six or eight of the early arrivals, including Walter Okeson of Lehigh, the rules committee chairman, came today and spent the afternoon golfing.

The consensus was that no radical changes would be made in the rules for 1934. More than 50 suggestions or recommendations are to be considered. Okeson said, but most of these represent the ideas of only a small group and few will receive the support of the entire rules committee.

No Comment on Zone Rule.

Okeson had no comment on a statement made by the committee secretary, William S. Langford, that an increase in the side line zone from 10 to 15 yards was the most probable change to be made in the rules.

The chairman said that, although Langford also had expressed himself in favor of eliminating the touchback penalty on passes grounded in the end zone and of the suggestion that neither side be allowed to run with a recovered blocked kick, that other members of the committee might be opposed to these moves.

The committee also will consider seven proposals offered by a group of coaches headed by Harry Kipke of Michigan at the Chicago convention last December and will give thought to the request of a special coaches' committee in New York last week that eight rules "need clarification and amplication."

Here are the Doubtful Ones.

These eight are: The blocked kick; eligible men on forward passes; equipment; notification on time out; duties of field judge on dead ball; protection of passers; positions of officials on all plays; penalty on successive forward passes.

Return of the goal posts to the goal line, modification of the dead ball rule and permission of forward passes from any point back of the scrimmage line also will be considered.

Headliners to Attend.

Attending the meeting will be Okeson, Langford, H. J. Stegeman, Bill Bingham, Bill Crowell, F. H. Yost, Dana Bible, Ray Morrison, C. H. Smith, Bill Hunter and A. A. Stagg of the rules committee; W. A. Alexander, Lou Little, Babe Hollingsberry and Noble Kizer of the coaches' advisory committee, and A. R. Hutchens, A. M. Palmer, Herb Dana and H. B. Hackett, representing the officials.

MAROON TRACK TEAM TO MEET ARMOUR TODAY

Chicago's track team will get its first competition from the outside this afternoon at 4 o'clock, facing Armour institute in a dual meet in the Midway fieldhouse. There is no admission charge.

Although the Tech team will give the Maroon track men close competition in most of the individual events, the Chicago athletes have a slight edge that should give them the majority of first places. Jay Berwanger, Maroon football star, and Capt. George Nelson of Armour will face each other in four individual events. Berwanger is the ace of the Maroon squad, and has been high point man in two dual meets with the freshman team.

GOODWIN TO PLAY ORTUNO IN FINAL AT PALM BEACH

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 8.—(AP)—The two favorites of the annual South Florida Golf tournament, Tommy Goodwin, Monroe, N. Y., and Manuel Ortuno, West Palm Beach, today had little difficulty reaching the final round. They will play over the 36 hole route for the championship tomorrow.

Goodwin today defeated Allan Wylie, Winetka, Ill., 5 and 4. Ortuno won over Hugh L. Willoughby Jr., of Port Sewall Fla., by the same score.

BROWNING AND STECHER AGREE ON BOUT TERMS

Jim Browning will meet Joe Stecher a week from Wednesday at the Chicago Stadium. Browning, who claims the world's heavyweight wrestling title and is recognized as such in territory not presided over by Jim Londos, yesterday accepted terms.

Everett Marshall, Abie Coleman and Ray Steele have signed to take part in supporting bouts, and George Zaharias may also appear.

Armour Tech Takes 44-32 Game from Wheaton

Armour Tech's basketball team defeated Wheaton, 44 to 32, at Armour yesterday. It was the second game between the teams, Wheaton having won the first. Lauchikis starred for Armour Tech with six baskets and one free throw.

Winning Ping-Pong

BY COLEMAN CLARK.
[National Champion 1932.]

THE SERVE.

THE serve is the first shot which puts the ball into play. Observe carefully the above illustration showing the only legal service, known as the bounce ball serve, which was adopted several years ago by the American Ping-pong association. Make sure that the ball is struck behind the end of the table, not over it. You may strike the ball any way you please, as hard as you care to, and with any kind of a grip.

In serving use the regular topspin and chop strokes described in previous articles. As one of the best serves is a fast shot that just clears the net and lands deep in your opponent's court be sure that the point where the racket first hits the ball is low. Place your shots with care and vary the direction and depth. Use different spins and combinations of spin, and always avoid serving high balls as they are set ups for any one.

Aranson Beats Rosenberg in J. O. Y. Fight

Milt Aranson, 18 year old fighter from Dubuque, Ia., whipped Phil Rosenberg, Jewish Peoples' institute lightweight, in a three round bout last night at the J. P. I. which shared honors with the championship battles in the novice division of the Jewish Organized Youth tournament.

Aranson and Rosenberg fought in the open division on Monday night and Rosenberg won a close decision. They were rematched for a special trophy and Aranson squared accounts.

J. P. I. Team Wins.

The Jewish Peoples' institute, which had won five bouts in the open division, easily clinched the Baby Ruth team trophy.

The J. P. I. team scored 33 points. Unattached boxers and Franklin park tied for second place, each getting 11 points. Boys Brotherhood Republic representatives scored 8 points, while Hyde Park High school, Hallowah and Trafton's gymnasium each had 5.

One of the other outstanding matches was the novice featherweight final which brought together Charlie Linn and Ray Langman. The bout started slowly, with Linn taking the measure of his opponent. He then came tearing in to gain the decision.

The 118 pound final between two J. P. I. boys, Reuben Noedenberg and Dave Krietchman, was hard fought. Krietchman came tearing in during the first round but he slowed up as the contest progressed and Noedenberg won the decision.

Turek Gets Close Decision.

Phil Turek of Franklin Park and Mandel Meyerson of the J. P. I. met for the lightweight title. Meyerson was knocked from his feet during the first round but he came back strong and lost the decision by only a narrow margin.

Results of final bouts:

175 POUNDS—Richard Lucie, Hyde Park, beat Irving Rottberg, J. P. I. [3].
150 POUNDS—Irving Robbins, J. P. I., beat Bernard Weisman, J. P. I. [3].
147 POUNDS—Morris Goldman, J. P. I., won by default.
135 POUNDS—Phil Turek, Franklin Park, beat Mandel Meyerson, J. P. I. [3].
126 POUNDS—Charles Linn, J. P. I., beat Ray Langman, Franklin Park [3].
118 POUNDS—Louis Dean, Deborah, beat Reuben Noedenberg, J. P. I. [3].

LAWS OF IOWA SIGNS CONTRACT WITH GREEN BAY

Green Bay, Wis., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Joe Laws, University of Iowa quarter back, who won THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S most valuable player trophy last fall, signed today to play with the Green Bay Packers of the National Professional Football league next season. He will be graduated from Iowa in June.

Layden Is Honored at Notre Dame Club Dinner

Mayor Kelly and Bishop Bernard J. Sheil were the principal speakers at the Notre Dame Club of Chicago banquet in honor of Elmer Layden at the Chicago Athletic association last night. About 400 attended. James McNicholas of the class of 1925 was elected president of the club.

Massera to Block King's Path Tonight

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—King Levinsky of Chicago will take the first step in his campaign for recognition as one of the outstanding challengers for the world's heavyweight championship when he opposes Charley Massera of Pittsburgh in the feature bout of ten rounds at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Levinsky is eager for a bout with the winner of the fight between Primo Carnera and Tommy Loughran, which will be held in Miami on Washington's birthday. To gain this objective, the Chicago heavyweight has to get past Massera and then tackle Walter Neusel, German heavyweight, in three weeks.

Kilpatrick Likes King.

Col. John Reed Kilpatrick, president of the Madison Square Garden corporation, looks with favor on Levinsky's candidacy and is likely to sign him for a championship bout if the latter is successful in his local tests.

Massera, however, is not expected to be a soft opponent for the former fish peddler. The Pittsburgh boxer is strong and packs a hard wallop in either hand. He has had considerable success in his short career and he, also, entertains hopes of getting into the ring with the title holder.

Levinsky is the more experienced fighter and for that reason is rated the favorite, at odds of 8 to 5.

CARNERA BALKS AT QUIZ

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Having almost exhausted the patience of the court probing into his plea of bankruptcy, Primo Carnera today took off for Miami, Fla., to resume training for a title bout with Tommy Loughran on Feb. 22.

Called in from Florida for another hearing and cross-examination yesterday, Carnera failed to enlighten his legal attackers, who are seeking answers to the questions: "How much does a fighter earn?" and "what happens to his money?"

New Lacrosse Race to Open Here Feb. 18

Two Chicago teams, one to play its home games on the south and the other with headquarters on the north side, are included in the reorganized National Professional Lacrosse league schedule, which will open here Feb. 18.

The south side entry, managed by Mique Malloy, will be known as the Chicago Sox and the northsiders as the Blues. South side games will be played at Dexter Park pavilion and north side at Arcadia Gardens.

In the opening game of the new schedule here the local teams will clash on the south side court.

In the reorganization of the league, effected in Pittsburgh during the last week, A. C. Leslie was chosen the new president; Malloy, vice president, and R. S. Scott secretary and treasurer. The Buffalo franchise was transferred to Detroit.

At present the Chicago Sox are engaged in a series at Pittsburgh to decide the winner of the first half schedule of the old league, the victor to meet the first place team at the conclusion of the newly drawn schedule.

EDDIE SCHROEDER LEAVES FOR ICE MEET IN NORWAY

Eddie Schroeder, Chicago speed skating star, left last night for Oslo, Norway, where he will compete in the world championship ice skating meet. Schroeder was accompanied by his trainer, Daniel Canaday, vice president of the Romme Skating club.

It will be Schroeder's second visit to Norway. He competed in the world meet there last year after climaxing a brilliant season with several victories in American meets. Schroeder was a member of the United States Olympic skating team in 1932.

Nagurski Pins Marshall in Mat Match; 20 Minutes

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Bronko Nagurski, star full back of the Chicago Bears, returned to the wrestling game tonight after a four months' absence to pin Floyd Marshall of Phoenix, Ariz., in 20 minutes and 17 seconds of a one fall match.

Cliff Olson of Beaudette, Minn., weighing 208 pounds, and Jim McMillen of Chicago, 216, drew in 30 minutes.

Goslin Signs Contract to Play with Detroit

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Goose Goslin, veteran outfielder, today signed his contract to play with the Detroit American league club during the 1934 season. Goslin was obtained by the Tigers last fall.

OFF FOR NEW TRIUMPHS

Eddie Schroeder (on lower step), who holds the North American skating championship, and Dan Canaday, his trainer, as they were leaving Chicago yesterday for Oslo, Norway, where the world's ice skating championships will be decided. Schroeder hopes to add a few more titles to his collection. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Two Professional Boxing Shows on Program Tonight

Two professional boxing shows will be held tonight, one at Rainbo Fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue, and the other at Cicero stadium, 20th street and 52d avenue.

Johnny Liston vs. Ossie Jefferson [5], 160.
Tod Kelly vs. Al Schiarato [4], 135.
Les Schultz vs. Tom Habel [4], 147.
Charley Peterson vs. James High [wrestling].

Frank Sigilio, 1933 Golden Gloves boxer, who is undefeated as a professional, will make his first appearance in a windup against Harry Booker at Cicero. The match is set for six rounds at 135 pounds. Other encounters:

Phil Ross and Jack Moran [6], 165.
Johnny Pacek and Nelson Berard [4], heavyweights.
Frank Keevil and Carl Scalise [4], 136.
Neil Donald and Ruby Allen [wrestling].

Sigilio turned professional last May 12 after being eliminated in the Golden Gloves tournament by Eddie Ward, who also has not been beaten since turning pro, although Booker held him to a draw Nov. 13. Sigilio scored his twelfth triumph in a row by knocking out Frank Keevil in two rounds at the Chicago Stadium Dec. 29 on the King Levinsky-Don McCorkindale card.

Supporting bouts to the eight rounder between Young Geno, La Salle, Ill., featherweight, and Jackie Sharkey, Minneapolis, at Midway arena Monday were arranged yesterday by Johnny Coulon. Geno Salvatore, La Salle lightweight, boxes Art Mitchell in the five round semi-windup. The others:

Tod Kelly vs. Ed Smith [4], 135.
Sam Adams vs. Tom Habel [4], 150.
Curtis Mills vs. Chuck Roberts [4], 148.
George Mack vs. John Mason [wrestling].

Young Stuhley, Kewanee, Ill., middleweight, yesterday was substituted for Solly Dukelsky against Johnny Phagan in the eight round main event Monday at Marigold Gardens. Dukelsky asked to be excused because of an injury to his eye. Jackie Ausborn, Birmingham, Ala., welterweight, who has scored three knockouts at Marigold in recent weeks, is matched with Mickey McLaughlin for five rounds.

Frank Battaglia vs. Kid Leonard [10], 165.

Pick Champs in South Bend Golden Gloves

What's Doing

GOLDEN GLOVES bouts scheduled for tonight follow:

Eau Claire Leader semi-finals.
Dubuque Telegraph-Herald semi-finals.
Grand Rapids Press quarter-finals.

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—South Bend will be represented at the Tournament of Champions in Chicago, Feb. 26, with the strongest team ever developed in the News-Times Golden Gloves tourneys. The eight champions, decided after three nights of furious fighting that started with a field of 74 contestants, are:

Flyweight—Harold Wilhelm, who beat Howard Heintzelman.
Featherweight—Harold Hall, who defeated Joe Gnott.
Lightweight—Johnny Barbara, who won over Tommy Pallatin.
Middlweight—Charles Clements, who beat Duane Thornton.
Light heavyweight—Julius Coussens, who stopped Frank Kovatch [2].

Wilhelm Clever Boxer.

The bantamweight titleholder, Ray Harris, 1933 quarter-finalist in Chicago, will be back again stronger than ever. He is a southpaw.

Joseph Deroo, winner of the welterweight division, will be a newcomer to Chicago Golden Gloves, but he holds the finalist position on the Fort Wayne, Ind., World's Fair boxing team.

Clements A Veteran.

Charles Clements, middleweight champion, is a four year veteran in local Golden Gloven competition, but this is the first time that he has ever won his division title.

The light heavyweights in the championship tourney in Chicago will have to watch the South Bend champion this year—Julius Coussens, winner of the 1932-'33 middleweight title. Coussens, although fighting 15 pounds heavier than last year, crashed through all competition in the light heavyweight ranks here and shows vast improvement.

Froschauer May Be Lost to Illinois

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Indiana's basketball team, which pulled one of the big surprises of the Big Ten season by its decisive upset of Iowa, will come to the Illinois floor Saturday night.

The Hoosiers are tied with the Illini and Iowa for third place. They have lost to Purdue and Ohio State, but have victories over Ohio and Michigan, in addition to Iowa.

Frank Froschauer, Illinois' scoring ace, is struggling with an academic deficiency, the first he has suffered in his undergraduate career. Unless Froschauer is able to remove it, Coach Ruby will be obliged to rebuild his team, using either Jake Kamm or Harold Benham in Froschauer's forward position.

Kamm appeared against Bradley Tuesday night, but his basket eye was poor, which makes it possible that Benham, sophomore from Manteno, may receive the call. There is also a chance that Coke Mills will get a chance. Big Chin Kamm is a possible starter at guard instead of Howie Braun.

TWO FOR SPARTANS?

East Lansing, Mich., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—A chance to score a double victory over the University of Michigan in a single season awaits the Michigan State basketball team here next Saturday night when the Wolverines invade Demonstration Hall. If the Spartans attain their goal it will be the first time in the history of modern athletic relations between the schools.

OHIO ON 2 GAME TRIP

Columbus, O., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Ted Rosequist, center and guard, rejoined the Ohio State basketball team today. Barring further injury, he will play against Marquette at Milwaukee Saturday and Wisconsin at Madison Monday.

Rosequist has been out with a broken bone in his left hand since the Indiana game here Jan. 15. His return is expected to result in the benching of Jack [Red] Wilson, who was promoted to a starting position when the big Clevelander was injured.

The game at Madison will be the final Big Ten road game of the season for Ohio State. Michigan, Chicago, and Wisconsin remain to be played at home. The Buckeyes conclude their conference season Feb. 24.

CLARK JOINS DE KALB

De Kalb, Ill., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—John Clark of Waukegan, letterman of the De Kalb Teachers' basketball team last year who has been incapacitated this season, joined the team today on the eve of the Macomb Teachers game tomorrow night. Clark is a center or forward.

Ten men will make the trip to Macomb, Coach George Evans said today. They are Capt. Ben Westlake, Bruce Smith, Joseph Jepsen, and Reino Nori, forwards; Lester Johnson and John Clark, centers, and Leonard Skoglund, Elzie Cooper, Rupert Miller, and Jack Mustapha, guards.

BABY RUTH SIX WINS, 4-2, FROM BLUE RIBBONS

The Baby Ruths defeated the Blue Ribbons, 4 to 3, in an Amateur Hocky league game last night at the Coliseum.

A crowd of 2,500 turned out for the contest, which wound up in a brilliant battle, as the Blue Ribbons almost caught the Baby Ruths in the final minutes of play. The Ribbons scored three goals in the last ten minutes.

The Ruths will meet the Sarnia sextet, runners-up in the Ontario Hocky association, in their next game at the Coliseum Sunday afternoon.

LOYOLA QUINTET TO PLAY THREE GAMES ON ROAD

Loyola university's basketball team takes to the road this week-end to play three games in four days. The Ramblers meet St. Louis university at St. Louis tomorrow, St. Ambrose college at Davenport, Ia., on Monday, and Columbia college at Dubuque, Ia., on Tuesday.

Coach Leonard Sachs found yesterday that Hal Mots, center and leading scorer, would be able to play on the trip. Mots was unable to appear against Michigan State college last Saturday because of an infection that threatened to keep him out of the lineup for a month.

Eddie Angsten, former Loyola academy star, made his first start with the Loyola varsity against Michigan State. The 5 foot 6 inch sophomore counted three baskets and appears to have clinched a regular place in the starting lineup.

DE PAUL PLAYS TOMORROW

De Paul university's undefeated team was given no time to relax after its victorious two night stand in Missouri. The players were immediately put to work preparing for their battle Saturday night with Western State at the De Paul gym.

HIT-RUN DRIVER GETS 6 MONTHS; AUTO KILLS BOY

Slides to Death on Sled; Year's Toll Is 147.

Christ Friedman, 31 years old, 2673 Burling street, was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction and fined $200 yesterday by Judge N. J. Bonelli on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident.

Testimony developed that Friedman drove his automobile into a parked car in front of the home of Miss Lillian Maedel, 23 year sold, 2500 Burling street, as she was stepping into the car. Friedman failed to stop, it was said, but was captured after a chase by Otis Heinrich, 1622 Burling street, whose automobile he had struck. Miss Maedel's face was disfigured in the crash.

Harry Schultz, 9 year sold, 2335 New street, Blue Island, was killed yesterday when, coasting down hill on his sled, he slid under the wheels of an automobile driven by Jerome Brenner, 24, of 13812 South Division street, Blue Island, a CWA worker. The accident occurred near the boy's home and was witnessed by several playmates.

This death and three others increased the Cook county motor toll for the year to 147. The other victims:

Peter Erickson, 56 years old. Died in the county hospital of injuries suffered Jan. 27 when he struck by a hit and run car in front of 1111 Addison street.

Samuel Feldenstein, 67 years old, 4745 Ingleside avenue. Injured Jan. 4 at 48th street and Cottage Grove avenue and died yesterday in the Chicago Memorial hospital.

John Bogacz, 52 years old, 2046 Coulter street. Died in the county hospital. He was injured Wednesday at 22d place and Damen avenue by a truck driven by Foster Graham of Rockton, Ill.

A man believed to be James Hanley, 65 years old, of Chicago, was impaled on a wooden guard rail and killed yesterday when his car skidded on a snow covered road near Dwight, Ill. A timber pierced his chest, pinning him to the rear seat of his automobile.

Louis Glandor, 30 years old, a farmer, was killed last night in a motor truck accident in Rockland road, three miles east of Libertyville. Glandor was moving his belongings from Lake Forest to a new house and the accident, caused by locked brakes, occurred near this new home. Police said the truck belongs to former Ald. James B. Waller, for whom Glandor worked.

LABOR LEADERS ATTEND RITES FOR GEORGE PERKINS

Funeral services for George W. Perkins, 78 years old, one of pioneer organizers of the American Federation of Labor, were held yesterday at the Fair Oak Presbyterian church of Oak Park. The Rev. John Hayes Creighton officiated. Mr. Perkins died at his home Monday night.

Mr. Perkins at the time of his death was president of the union label trades' department of the American Federation of Labor and a member of the executive board of the Union Labor Life Insurance company. He was a close associate of the late Samuel Gompers throughout Gompers' long career as head of the American Federation of Labor.

Mr. Perkins was active for over fifty years in the labor movement and for 35 years was president of the Cigarmakers' International union.

Matthew Woll and James Wilson, both vice presidents of the A. F. of L., attended the funeral.

John Fitzpatrick, E. N. Nockels Andy Myrup, Harry Scheck, I. M. Ornburn, and Henry Koch, all prominent in union labor activities, were the pallbearers.

WIDOW OF LATE F. M. WOOLWORTH IS DEAD IN N. Y.

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Mrs. F. M. Woolworth died today in her Park avenue apartment. She was sixty.

She was the widow of Fred M. Woolworth, a cousin of F. W. Woolworth, founder of the chain of five and ten cent stores.

In 1909 Fred Woolworth went to England and established the Woolworth stores there. After his death there many years ago, Mrs. Woolworth returned to the United States.

EDWIN MORGAN'S WIFE DIES AT 36 IN NEW YORK CITY

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Mrs Elizabeth Emmet Morgan, wife of Edwin Denison Morgan, died today in St. Luke's hospital. She was 36 years old.

In addition to her husband, who is a son of the late Edwin Denison Morgan Sr., the noted yachtsman, she is survived by two young sons, Edwin Denison Morgan III. and Temple Emmet Morgan.

Mrs. Morgan was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Temple Emmet, and was a descendant of the first John Jacob Astor.

Broker, Held in Contempt, Freed for Court Fighting

Harry Davis, 3318 Sheridan road, an insurance broker, was released yesterday when he appeared before Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort to answer a charge of contempt of court, an outgrowth of the appearance of his wife, Leah, to oppose a motion of her first husband, Harold Manasse, for a reduction in the $70 a month support money he had been paying her for his son, Harold Jr. In court Manasse previously said he believed that all of the money was not being used for the boy and Judge Desort reduced the support order to $40 a month. Davis then struck Manasse in the corridor outside the courtroom and was seized by bailiffs.

OPPOSE MOVING STATION WJJD INTO CHICAGO

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Five of Chicago's biggest stations banded together today to protest against the federal radio commission's recent decision authorizing Station WJJD to remove its main studios from Mooseheart, Ill., to Chicago. In separate petitions the protestants asked the commission to set aside its ruling of Jan. 16, and requested that public hearing be held on the application.

The commission's decision, rendered without formal hearing, the petitioners held, was contrary to repeated expressions by that agency that there is an excess of radio facilities in the Chicago area. Heretofore, it was pointed out, the commission has denied applications for increased facilities in Chicago on the ground that it is already over quota in broadcasting outlets.

The protesting stations also contended that by adding WJJD to the Chicago roster, their own rights are prejudiced and their opportunities for continued license renewals jeopardized. The decision was held to be contrary to the interests of the listening public of Illinois. A hearing now is regarded as automatic, since under the commission's regulations, protests may be filed within twenty days against actions rendered without prior hearing.

The stations which filed protests are W-G-N of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE; WMAQ and WENR, operated by the National Broadcasting company; WLS, of the Prairie Farmer, and WCFL of the Chicago Federation of Labor. WJJD is operated by Ralph Atlass, operator of WIND, Gary, Ind.

NOTED CHICAGO WOMAN HOTEL EXECUTIVE DIES

Mrs. Gertrude Loys Hoffman, 42 years old, director of women's activities at the Palmer house, died yesterday at St. Joseph's hospital following an operation for gallstones. She was the second executive of the hotel to pass away within twenty-four hours, the manager, Hendrick V. Hansen, having succumbed to agranulocytosis late Wednesday night.

MRS. GERTRUDE HOFFMAN.

Mrs. Hoffman was one of the most prominent business women in Chicago, and was known widely throughout the country in her own field. She was the wife of Robert Hoffman, landscape artist now stationed at Indianapolis. Before her marriage she was Gertrude Loys Peterson of a socially prominent family in New Orleans. Before taking the post at the Palmer house she had been identified with the Association of Commerce at New Orleans, the Midland club in Chicago and Lawsonia Country club.

Her home was at 538 Brompton place. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

RITES TOMORROW FOR NOTED JUDGE, GEORGE KERSTEN

The funeral of former Judge George Kersten, who died Wednesday, will be held at his home, 3740 North Harding avenue, at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, it was announced yesterday. A requiem mass will be celebrated in St. Clement's church at 10 o'clock and burial will take place in Rosehill cemetery.

Honorary pallbearers include most of the federal, county, and municipal judges and political leaders, including Gov. Horner and Mayor Kelly. The active pallbearers will be Carter H. Harrison, Judge Kickham Scanlan, Judge John A. Sbarbaro, Judge Michael McKinley, A. G. Dicus, John W. Weccard, and Oscar F. Mayer.

In honor of former Judge Kersten, who was a leading Criminal court jurist, the Criminal courts of Cook county will be closed on Saturday.

Judge Kersten, who for 47 years was a member of the Cook county judiciary, served more than 24 years in the Criminal courts. He presided at most of the famous trials held during the first ten years of the century, and the first conviction for kidnaping ever gained in the United States was won in his court in 1906. He retired in 1926.

Mrs. Fannie Brin, 40 Year Englewood Resident, Dies

Mrs. Fannie Brin, a resident of the Englewood district for the last fifty years, died in her home at 6512 South Green street early yesterday. She was the mother of Harry L. Brin, former assistant attorney general of Illinois and former assistant United States district attorney. She is survived by her husband, Louis; her two sons, Harry and Francis, and a daughter, Bernice. Funeral services will be held in the chapel at 936 East 47th street at 12:30 p. m. today. Burial will take place at Rosehill cemetery.

DE PAUW TO GET $750,000 FROM LATE PUBLISHER

Greencastle, Ind., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars for a new science building and nearly half a million dollars for endowment will come to De Pauw university as a result of the sale of the Danville [Ill.] Commercial-News to the Gannett group of newspapers. Announcement of the sale was made here by Roy O. West of Chicago, president of the De Pauw board of trustees, and George T. Buckingham, Chicago, executors of the estate of the late John H. Harrison, wealthy Danville publisher, who died March 2, 1930.

Mr. Harrison, De Pauw alumnus and trustee, named De Pauw residuary legatee in his estate, at one time valued at nearly $2,000,000. Assets of the estate outside the newspaper, were used to pay other bequests. Heirs of late William J. Parrett, business partner of Mr. Harrison, who died only a short time ago, owned one-fifth the stock in this paper. De Pauw's share will amount to about $750,000.

Construction of the new building, which will be known as Harrison hall, is scheduled to begin early next year. It will be a duplicate of Asbury hall, newest building on the campus, and form the second building of new quadrangle planned for West campus. Old West college will be razed at once and Middle college will follow to make way for the new science hall.

M'CORMICK SONS IN U. S. TO ATTEND FATHER'S RITES

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Leander and Edward McCormick, sons of L. Hamilton McCormick, who died last Friday at his winter home in Miami, arrived on the Bremen today.

When they learned of their father's illness they embarked at Southampton. They will proceed immediately to Miami where the funeral is to be held.

Leander McCormick, whose home in Hampshire, England, was destroyed by a fire recently in which two lives were lost when the McCormicks and their guests attempted to escape from the structure, said he has leased a smaller house near the scene of the fire.

PRESIDENT ASKS DRASTIC STOCK CONTROL TODAY

Special Message to Be Sent Congress.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—President Roosevelt will send to congress tomorrow a message recommending early enactment of legislation for the federal control and regulation of stock exchanges. Immediately after the message is read identical bills will be introduced in the senate and house carrying the regulatory provisions which bear the President's approval.

These provisions, which, it is said, are as drastic as any proposed to congress in years, were agreed upon at a White House conference yesterday between the President, Senator Fletcher, chairman of the senate banking and currency committee; Secretary Roper, Commissioner Landis of the federal trade commission, Representative Rayburn of Texas, chairman of the house committee on interstate commerce and Ferdinand Pecora, who is counsel to the senate committee.

Commodities Not Included.

The bill will not include regulation of commodity exchanges, and this phase of the problem, Senator Fletcher said tonight, will be taken care of in another bill being drafted under the supervision of Commissioner Landis. This bill, which is said to be largely directed at the activities of the New York and New Orleans Cotton exchanges and the Chicago Board of Trade, is expected to be ready for committee action in the next few days. As a matter of fact, it was said tonight that there is a remote chance it may be introduced some time tomorrow afternoon.

It was the program of the committees in charge of exchange legislation to postpone action on commodity exchanges possibly until the first session of the 74th congress, which meets in January, 1935. The President, however, took a different view.

Is Bulky Document.

The stock exchange regulation bill, the completed draft of which Senator Fletcher and Mr. Pecora are going over tonight, is said to be a rather bulky document.

Both Senator Fletcher and Mr. Pecora declined to discuss its provisions tonight, explaining that they preferred to withhold publication until after the President's message is read in congress tomorrow. It is understood generally that the bill places pools in the criminal class, provides rigid control of publicity under the direction of the federal trade commission, regulates marginal trading, and will require, in the discretion of the federal trade commission, periodic statements by corporations whose stocks are listed on exchanges. The provision dealing with marginal trading was unofficially described as "flexible" in nature.

Power to Trade Commission.

The bill for regulating commodity exchanges will also designate the federal trade commission as the enforcing agency. No details of this legislation have been disclosed. The talk, however, is that trading in futures will be one of the major details handled in the legislation. It will also take care of pools on commodity exchanges, according to talk in usually well informed quarters.

The President's message, it was said tonight, will be brief. He completed it this afternoon and Senator Fletcher said he expected it to be presented to congress at noon tomorrow. Senator Fletcher was in conference with Senator Robinson of Arkansas tonight, arranging the senate schedule, so that the message can be read before the senate takes up the contempt charges involving William P. MacCracken and various other persons identified with the aviation industry.

Market Survey Reported.

The Twentieth Century Fund to survey the securities markets today gave Roosevelt an outline of its recommendations, many of which endorsed provisions in the bill to be introduced tomorrow. The report gave the chief evils of the business as follows:

1. Excessively large volume of speculation which has often dominated the markets.

2. Outright manipulation of prices by pools and other operators which interfere with a free market.

3. Inadequate and frequently misleading and inaccurate information on the earnings and operations of corporations whose securities are widely held and traded.

4. Complete lack of any measure of public control of either organized security exchanges or the unorganized 'over the counter' markets through which these evils might be curbed.

See Shift to London.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's proposed measures to control stock exchanges would have a far reaching effect if put into operation, according to authoritative opinion today in financial circles.

One result might be to reëstablish London as a big market for American shares, as it was in pre-war days, and much business now done in New York would be shifted to London to evade the restrictions, said one dealer who has had 40 years' experience in the American market here.

Leyburn Hits Back at Detroit Banker Critics

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Alfred P. Leyburn, chief national bank examiner, told the senate banking committee today that the First National Bank of Detroit was insolvent to the extent of $4,000,000 when the Michigan banking holiday was declared.

The examiner prefaced a deluge of criticism of the bank's policies and leadership with the remark that the condition of the bank with respect to loans "wasn't rotten—it was putrid."

Leyburn assailed the leadership of Wilson W. Mills, the president at the time the bank closed, asserting Mills had raised his own salary from $40,000 to $50,000 a year in January, 1933, shortly before the bank holiday.

"He enjoyed the distinction of being the only person in the United States to do that," Leyburn said.

"Borrowed to Pay Dividend."

The examiner told the committee Mills had contended the bank was 80 per cent liquid at the time discussions about reopening were under way, and added that "he had to borrow money to pay off the first 5 per cent dividend."

Proceeding rapidly, the committee made known its intention of concluding the Detroit inquiry tomorrow when the story of the holiday and the events immediately leading up to it will be told.

The committee summoned A. A. Ballantyne, undersecretary of the treasury in the Hoover administration, who participated in the discussion on the night of Feb. 13, the date of the holiday proclamation issued by Gov. William A. Comstock. Two others who will be asked about this phase of the investigation are Eugene W. Stevens, federal reserve agent at Chicago, and F. G. Awalt, acting controler of the currency in the latter part of the Hoover administration.

Transfer Due to "Politics."

Leyburn told the committee he was transferred from the Seventh federal reserve district at Chicago to the Fourth district at Cleveland because of "politics." He said his transfer was requested of the acting controler of the currency by the "junior senator from Michigan" and Senator Van Nuys of Indiana. He said Van Nuys "had just been elected and probably had listened to some of the fairy tales that were going around."

Mark Wilson testified he resigned as vice president of the Detroit Bankers' company because directors withheld the authority he needed.

The testimony was similar to that given recently by Ballantyne, who said that was one of the reasons he stepped out as president.

"I was known as a Ballantyne man," Wilson said. "I still am. I have the highest respect in the world for Mr. Ballantyne."

"So there's politics in a bank just as there is in public office?" asked Senator Couzens [Rep., Mich.].

"There's lots of politics," the witness said.

FIRST BIG LOAN UNDER NEW ACT TO BE SOLD SOON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 8.—The first large corporate financing since the federal securities act went into effect last summer took its initial step today when the American Water Works and Electric company filed with the federal trade commission in Washington a registration statement and prospectus covering a proposed issue of $15,000,000 of ten-year 5 per cent convertible collateral trust bonds. Proceeds of the issue will be applied to the retirement of $12,569,200 of 5 per cent collateral trust bonds maturing on April 1.

The new bonds will be convertible into common stock on the basis of $20 a share up to and including March 1, 1936; at the rate of $30 a share during the succeeding two years, $40 a share during the next two years; $50 a share from March 1, 1940, to March 1, 1942, and $75 a share during the last two years of the ten-year period.

The bonds are to be offered through W. C. Langley & Co., at a price not yet determined, but at not less than the principal amount. Holders of the maturing 5s will be given the privilege of tendering them in payment for the new bonds, in making allotments the bankers will give preference to holders of the maturing bonds who subscribe before 3 o'clock on the second day following the date of the first official advertisment of the new bonds.

STOCKS RALLY AFTER DIP AND FINISH HIGHER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 8.—Speculation for the rise was resumed on the stock exchange in the late dealings today after a reaction had run its course in the forenoon. Leading issues recovered 1 to as much as 3 points from their early lows and the final table showed net gains of from a fraction to a point or more throughout the list.

The rally lacked snap, however, the bulls being inclined to be cautious pending disclosures of the stock exchange regulation measures at Washington and the resumption of the Wall street inquiry. News that a senate committee had approved an investigation into light and power rates throughout the nation was a handicap to the utilities.

Business News Good.

Elsewhere the day's news favored the constructive side of the market, including, as it did, a better turn to the French situation and a moderate run of domestic industrial news of a favorable character, such as dividend announcements and reports of quickening trade in various directions.

Volume fell to around 3,200,000 shares, which compares with yesterday's total of 4,500,000.

Silver mining shares were especially prominent in the afternoon upturn, buying here being influenced by reports of government action on the metal. U. S. Smelting shot up for a net gain of nearly 6 points to a new high. American Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, and other issues of the group were active and strong. Gold stocks failed to share in the move, however, Homestake receding fractionally and Alaska Juneau and McIntyre just about holding their own.

Old Line Leaders Strong.

Prime industrial shares met with good demand under the leadership of American Can, which rose more than 2 points above its previous close. Westinghouse, U. S. Steel, and General Electric recovered from a fraction to about a point of their Wednesday losses. Du Pont was up nearly two.

Liquor shares came forward in the last half hour of trading with U. S. Industrial Alcohol setting the pace. National Distillers were active and improved fractionally.

Except for Chrysler, the motor shares stood their ground well in the forenoon selling and were able to move ahead without much difficulty when the turn came.

In the last ten minutes or so of trading the mail order shares came in for a fling with Montgomery Ward as the favorite. The issue erased an early minus sign with a gain of more than a point.

2 MORE RESERVE BANKS REDUCE RATES TO 3 PCT.

Announcement was made yesterday that the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City has reduced its rediscount rate to 3 per cent, effective today, and that the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond has reduced its rate from 3½ to 3 per cent. The action yesterday makes a total of seven reserve banks that have reduced their rediscount rates since Feb. 1.

The Richmond bank established its 2½ per cent rate on Jan. 25, 1932. The reduction at that time was ½ of 1 per cent. The other banks which reduced their rates since Feb. 1, are the New York, Cleveland, Boston, St. Louis, and Dallas.

Directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago are scheduled to meet today, but there has been no indication of their attitude with respect to a reduction. The rate here of 2½ per cent is higher than that obtaining in New York, Cleveland, and Boston, but is equal to or lower than the rates of the other banks. The New York rate is 1½ per cent.

A. & P. JANUARY SALES RISE 4.68% ABOVE YEAR AGO

Sales of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company for the four weeks ended Jan. 27 totaled $59,922,780, compared with $57,242,421 in the corresponding period in 1933, an increase of $2,680,359, or 4.68 per cent.

January sales totaled 356,514 tons against 371,438 in January, 1933. This is a decrease of 14,924 tons, or 4.02 per cent.

J. C. Penney company's January sales totaled $12,445,239, an increase of 43.2 per cent from the 1933 period.

U. S. OUTPUT OF MEAT LARGEST IN SEVEN YEARS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—(AP)—The bureau of agricultural economics today reported that meat production under federal inspection in 1933 was the largest in seven years.

The total of 13 billion 945 million pounds of dressed weight was more than a billion pounds greater than in 1932 and nearly 600 million pounds more than the average for the last five years. Of the total production last year 747 million pounds of meat and lard were exported and 287 million pounds went into storage.

The total apparent consumption of 12 billion 984 million pounds was 5.2 per cent more than in 1932 and 3.7 per cent more than the average of the last five years. The per capita consumption of federally inspected meats and lard was 103.4 pounds last year, compared with 98.9 pounds in 1932.

Ill. Central Joins Tribune Export Drive

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

A promise of full coöperation with the business of American manufacturers and other concerns overseas came from the Illinois Central system yesterday.

T. E. HARRIS. [Rayhuff-Richter Photo.]

T. E. Harris, manager of the foreign traffic department of the railway, offered to American exporters and importers the privilege of using the road's facilities abroad in making new business contacts and in getting information.

"The executives of this system have long been interested in foreign trade," Mr. Harris said. "L. A. Downs, president of the road, is very much interested in this country's foreign business, as were his predecessors. Consequently, we on the Illinois Central have been very much gratified that THE TRIBUNE has put its weight behind the movement to increase the sale of American products abroad.

Office Maintained in London.

"This railroad has had an office in London since 1905, which has been in charge of promotional activity throughout Europe on behalf of American business. Naturally, the Illinois Central has been particularly interested in promoting the business of the Mississippi valley, which it serves, and in this connection has played an important part in the development of New Orleans as a port. The eastern ports have had business fall into their laps, but we have had to fight for ours.

"Our London office is under the charge of W. H. Chisholm, European traffic manager. His organization covers every large European city. He travels on the continent constantly and is well informed. He will be glad to answer inquiries from American business men and if he doesn't have information available in his office he will pass the inquiries on to his agents.

Another Office in Havana.

"Regarding Latin-American trade, this road has had an office in Havana for about forty years and we are making studies as to how we can extend our promotional activities generally throughout the nations of South America. We feel that South America offers an especially attractive field for American manufacturers."

Mr. Harris said that the Chicago office of the Illinois Central will receive inquiries with respect to foreign business. Regarding European trade, business men may either write to his office here or to Mr. Chisholm's office in London, the address of which is Lloyd's building, Leadenhall street, E. C. 3.

Week's Heavy Construction Higher than 1934 Average

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—This week's total of engineering construction is $28,937,000, of which $22,814,000 is for public projects, says Engineering News-Record. The volume is slightly above the average week to date for 1934.

SIXTH WEEK OF RISING COMMODITY PRICES SHOWN BY U. S. INDEX

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—Wholesale commodity prices last week rose six-tenths of 1 per cent over the previous week, due to a further strengthening of market prices of farm products and foods, the bureau of labor statistics announced today.

It was the sixth consecutive weekly rise in wholesale prices and placed the index number at 72.8 per cent of the 1926 average of 100, as compared with 72.4 per cent for the week ending Jan. 27. The general level registered an advance of 1½ per cent over the high point reached during last year, when the index stood at 71.7 for the week of Nov. 18.

Present prices are 21½ per cent above the corresponding week of a year ago, when the general index stood at 60. As compared with the low point of 1933 in the week ended March 4, when the index was 59.6, the current index is up by slightly more than 22 per cent and places the general level 23½ per cent under the average for 1929, with the index number registered 95.3.

Eight of the 10 major groups of items covered by the bureau showed an increase, with only two groups, fuel, and lighting and chemicals, recording fractional declines.

FORCED COTTON CONTROL WINS ROOSEVELT O. K.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—President Roosevelt today assured Senator John H. Bankhead and Representative William B. Bankhead, Democrats of Alabama, of his support for their bill providing compulsory control over the production of cotton this year. The legislation, now before the agricultural committees of the two houses of congress, places a quota limit of production on each farm and penalizes overproduction through a heavy tax at the gin.

Senator Bankhead said the maximum production for this year under the terms of his bill would be limited to 9,000,000 bales as compared with an output last year of 13,000,000 bales even though a program of plowing under one-fourth of the cotton acreage was instituted. Last year's production did not reduce the carryover at all, as it now amounts to 11,500,000 bales, he said.

The senator said the senate agriculture committee had already favorably reported the bill and that he is now preparing a report to the senate on the measure. Hearings will be held before the house committee on agriculture shortly.

BANK CLEARINGS RISE 12.3 PER CENT ABOVE YEAR AGO

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Dun and Bradstreet reports further improvement in bank clearings of principal cities during the week ended Feb. 7. The total was $5,268,536,000, an increase of 12.3 per cent over the $4,723,637,000 in the same week last year.

New York City clearings amounted to $3,869,098,000 contrasted with $3,419,769,000 a year ago, an increase of 13.1 per cent.

In no week since last July have clearings been as high as the amount reported this week, the agency stated. Clearings last summer were swollen by the unusually active trading in securities markets.

Motor Output Rises; Plants Still Behind

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 8.—January automobile production in the United States and Canada totaled approximately 155,000 cars and trucks, an increase of 73 per cent over December and 16 per cent over January, 1932, the National Automobile chamber of commerce reported today. The figures do not include production of the Ford Motor company.

"The factories are still behind with their orders," Alfred Reeves, vice president of the chamber, stated. "According to reports that we have received, more than 100,000 men, many of whom have had little gainful employment in three years, have been recalled by motor factories, thus bringing total employment of the industry well above the 300,000 mark.

Raise Forecasts On Sales.

"With the National Automobile shows accounting for increases in paid attendance over last year of 63 per cent for New York and 21 per cent for Chicago, the best since 1928 despite adverse weather conditions, and with other shows throughout the country encountering equally convincing evidence of the public's interest in the new offerings, manufacturers are finding it necessary to advance their earlier estimates of 1934 market requirements."

December automobile and truck production amounted to 37,307 units; January, 1933, totaled 132,402 units, and in January, 1932, production was 123,075 units, the chamber reported.

General Motors Reports Sales.

The General Motors corporation today reported that sales of its cars and trucks to consumers in the United States during January totaled 23,438 units, against 11,951 in December and 50,653 in January, 1933.

The decrease from a year ago, said a statement issued by the company, "does not reflect the current extent of consumer demand for automobiles," and added: "As a result of the unavoidable delay in getting into production of the corporation's 1934 models, dealers' stocks of cars continue to be insufficient to supply the current demand for new models."

Sales to dealers in the United States and Canada last month totaled 46,190 units, against 11,191 in December and 72,274 a year ago. Total sales to dealers in the United States and Canada, plus overseas shipments, were 62,506, against 21,295 in December and 82,117 in January of last year.

Du Pont, British Concern Join Argentine Interests

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 8.—(AP)—The Imperial Chemical Industries of London and the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours company of Delaware today announced the formation of an Argentine joint stock company, with 15 million pesos capital (approximately $4,500,000), to unify their existing concerns in Argentina, deal in imports, or engage in local manufacturing.

Reserve Sets Gold Stocks at 7 Billions

(Statistics on page 28, column 7.)

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 8.—Several important changes in federal reserve statistics were disclosed in the weekly reports of the reserve system published today. All of these changes showed up in the summary of changes in reserve bank credit and related items.

Monetary gold stocks of the country were reported at $7,036,000,000, giving effect to the revaluation of gold at $35 an ounce. This compared with $4,333,000,000 monetary gold stock reported a week ago, but the current total was officially reported as a rise of $3,001,000,000 over the previous week. The discrepancy was due to the deduction from the officially reported gold stocks of the total of United States gold coin in circulation.

Gold Coin an "X" Quantity.

Circulation of gold coins was reported at $287,000,000 on Jan. 31, last, but the item has long been regarded as an "X" quantity, due to the fact that much of the gold coin paid out in years past and included in the figures must have been lost, sent abroad where it may never be retrieved, converted into industrial uses or destroyed. The existence of this "X" quantity in the officially reported monetary gold stocks has been a subject of discussion for some time.

Because gold coin no longer constitutes a part of the legal currency of the country the item has also been deducted from the officially reported total of money in circulation. The total volume of circulation is reported this week as $5,317,000,000, compared with $5,590,000,000 a week ago. Although there was a decline of $273,000,000 in the reported figures, the official statement shows the week's change as a rise of $25,000,000, thus ignoring the effect of eliminating gold coin from the circulation statistics.

Treasury Cash Rises.

Another change arising out of the revaluation of the dollar is a rise during the week of $2,853,000,000 in treasury cash and deposits with the Federal Reserve banks. This advance, which reflects the treasury's "profits" from gold revaluation, lifted the item to $3,449,000,000.

Other changes were chiefly of a routine character. The system showed a decline of $15,000,000 in total reserves, reflecting a drop in "other cash." Member bank borrowings dropped $10,000,000 to $73,327,000, a low record since the earliest days of the system. Reserve bank holdings of bills bought in the open market dropped $14,000,000 and holdings of United States government securities declined $2,000,000, washing out a temporary rise of that amount a week ago.

Of the week's rise in circulation, $20,000,000 was supplied by increased issuance of federal reserve notes. Federal Reserve bank notes fell $1,000,000 however.

Loans to brokers and dealers held by reporting New York City member banks totaled $896,000,000 during the week ended Feb. 7, an increase of $8,000,000.

DOLLAR'S VALUE IN THREE CHIEF FOREIGN MONEYS

The following table shows the value of the United States dollar in the principal capitals of Europe at the close of exchange trading yesterday, both in terms of the dollar and of foreign units:

IN LONDON—One pound sterling was equal to $5.00¼; one dollar was equal (approximately) to 4 shillings.

IN PARIS—One franc was worth $0.0641; one dollar was worth 15 francs 57 centimes.

IN BERLIN—One mark was worth $0.3906; one dollar was worth 2.56 marks.

FRANCE OPENS GOLD DEFENSE; DOLLAR DROPS

Paris Lifts Discount Rate to 3 Per Cent.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 8.—The American dollar today lost ground against the principal foreign currencies, including the British pound and the French franc. Primarily the change was due to France's first move in the defense of its gold stock, an increase from 2½ to 3 per cent in the rediscount rate by the Bank of France. Measured in francs, the dollar was worth 60.84 cents today as compared with 61.74 yesterday, and is now approximately 1¼ cents above the new gold parity of 59.6 cents.

The franc gained 9½ points on the day, closing at 6.44 cents. The advance cut its discount against its new par in New York gold from 4.2 per cent to 2.8 per cent.

The pound sterling rose to $5.01¾, up 2¾ cents over last night's final price. Other currencies also scored abrupt gains against the dollar with gains ranging from 1-10 to ¾ of a cent.

Bear Speculators Hit.

Bear speculators in the franc were hit hard by the overnight changes in the French situation. Cover operations at the resumption of trading here were augmented as the session progressed.

The Bank of France's announcement of the increase in its rediscount rate, interpreted in Wall street as an attempt to check the outflow of gold, took on added significance following the cut by the New York Reserve bank, which was seen as a gesture that the country was not seeking to corner the world gold supply.

Whether the higher French rate will be effective in keeping gold at home was a matter of speculation. Such charges have rarely been effective when confidence is seriously impaired.

While no further withdrawals of gold from the Bank of France were made today by American banks, French banks continued to ship gold to London for sale in the open market. There it was purchased by the American and other banks for consignment here.

An increased demand for the metal at London boosted the world price three pence a fine ounce to 136 shillings 9 pence, equivalent to $34.30, with the pound at $5.01¾. At this figure £1,590,000 of bar gold was sold, reportedly for shipment to the United States.

First Gold Arrives.

Meanwhile gold purchased abroad began to arrive at New York. About $13,000,000 worth of gold in bars arrived today on the North German Lloyd liner Bremen. The metal, which was bought for the treasury, was hurried to the vessel's strong room at Southampton by motor truck, special train, and airplane—the first shipment to scurry out of Europe since the United States abandoned the gold standard.

The Cunarder Berengaria is due tomorrow with another gold shipment, valued at $25,000,000.

The treasury paid $35 an ounce for the gold. It was bought in the London free gold market by banks and resold to the United States treasury at the set price, high enough to take care of shipping charges and insurance and yield a small profit.

Reports from Le Havre said that the President Harding had sailed for New York today with something more than $11,000,000 in gold aboard consigned to the Federal Reserve bank of New York.

New York, Feb. 8.—Following early trading irregularity the listed bond marked rallied in the later trading and closed generally higher on the day. Foreign loans showed the best average strength with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE average of ten leading issues reaching the highest level since the compilation was started in 1922. Many domestic corporation issues gained a point or more, and United States government long term bonds finished generally higher, up 10-32ds to down 4-32ds point.

The volume of trading, which has been diminishing gradually during the last few days, was $19,291,000. Domestic corporation bonds accounted for nearly $15,000,000.

French Liens Rally Sharply.

The sharp recovery in French government and municipal bonds was the feature of the foreign group. The government 7½s and 7s were up 7¼ and 6½ points, respectively, while the municipal loans recovered 2 to 6¾ points, reflecting the calmer political situation in Paris. Dutch East Indies bonds staged a sizable rally, jumping 3½ to 6½ points. Of the other so-called gold payments issues, Swiss government 5½s recovered 3¼ points.

German loans showed minor irregularities in comparatively quiet dealings. Italian government 7s held unchanged, and most of the Scandinavian loans were firm. Latin-American issues were irregular, with Argentine and Chilean loans among the most active.

Rail Issues Advance.

In the domestic group, railroad bonds showed the best strength, with industrials and utilities next in the order named. The heaviest traded issue was the American Water Works and Electric 5s, due on April 1, 1934, with a resultant rise of 6½ points for the day on the company's announcement of its projected financing with a stock conversion privilege.

Curb bonds generally followed the trend of issues on the big board.

Guaranteed Deposits.

Investors' Guide: As I understand it, deposits up to $2,500 in national banks are insured by the government—also those in some state banks. If one of these banks fail the government at once pays deposits up to $2,500. What then?—M. L. F.

Answer: Deposits in national banks and those in state banks that are members of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation are not guaranteed by the government. They are guaranteed by the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation.

The federal government has purchased a substantial portion of the guaranty corporation's stock, and the member banks also have purchased stock in it in proportion to their deposits.

Should a member bank become unable to pay off its deposits the corporation would assume control of the bank, taking charge of its assets and assuming its liabilities.

The stock purchased by the member banks is assessable. In the event the assets of the corporation were insufficient to pay off the liabilities assumed, should the corporation be called upon to pay off the obligations of insolvent member banks, the solvent banks would be called upon to make good the deficiency.

Under the present temporary plan these assessments are limited to one-half of 1 per cent of each bank's deposits. This plan expires July 1 and will then be replaced by the permanent plan under which there is no limit on assessments. There has been some agitation to change the law to include a limit on possible assessments.

Continental Roll and Steel.

Investors' Guide: Will you please give me your opinion of Continental Roll and Steel Foundry bonds?—N. S.

Answer: Dearth of purchases by railroads and steel mills is reflected in the heavy losses sustained by Continental Roll and Steel Foundry company during the last two years. Profit and loss deficit of $80,000 at the close of 1931 increased to $1,497,000 by June 30, 1933. On the latter date cash was $391,000, notes payable $211,000, and sinking fund requirement payable $249,000. Current assets were $1,327,000, and current liabilities $687,000. The $3,325,000 first 6s, due 1940, are more a speculation than an investment.

Chicago and Alton Stock.

Investors' Guide: Would you oblige me with any information you have or may be able to secure in reference to the common and preferred stocks of Chicago and Alton railroad?—J. E. P.

Answer: The properties of Chicago and Alton railroad were sold at receivership sale to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company on Dec. 11, 1930. Since there was nothing left for stockholders after payments on claims of bondholders and other creditors, the stock, in our opinion, is worthless.

ROOSEVELT PUTS SUGAR PROGRAM UP TO CONGRESS

Sets Quotas for Domestic Growers, Imports.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—(AP)—President Roosevelt put his own sugar program before congress today in a special message which asked that the commodity be given preferred treatment under the farm act and that the secretary of agriculture divide among producing areas the amount they might furnish for domestic consumption.

The quotas, of prime importance to the producing interests which wrangled over the question most of last summer, aggregate 6,452,000 short tons. Preliminary figures for the areas supplying the United States were: United States beet producers, 1,450,000 tons; Louisiana and Florida, 260,000; Hawaii, 935,000; Puerto Rico, 821,000; Philippine islands, 1,037,000; Cuba, 1,944,000; Virgin islands, 5,000.

President Roosevelt also foreshadowed a reduction in the present tariff on Cuban sugar and a still further tariff slash in a new commercial treaty to be negotiated.

Proposes Processing Tax.

Rejecting for the present suggestions that the product be placed on the free list, Mr. Roosevelt said the inclusion of sugar cane and sugar beets in the farm act would enable a processing tax to be levied on sugar.

"It will then be possible," he said, "to collect a processing tax on sugar, the proceeds of which will be used to compensate farmers for holding their production to the quota level. A tax of less than one-half cent per pound would provide sufficient funds.

"Consumers need not and should not bear this tax. It is already within the executive power to reduce the sugar tariff by an amount equal to the tax. In order to make certain that American consumers shall not bear an increased price due to this tax, congress should provide that the rate of the processing tax shall in no event exceed the amount by which the tariff on sugar is reduced below the present rate of import duty."

Must Restrict Planting.

In return for the benefit payments, estimated at $18,000,000 or more, the domestic growers probably will agree not to expand their acreage above the average plantings for the last three years, officials said.

The machinery to limit the amount of sugar marketed in the United States to around 6,500,000 tons would be given the secretary of agriculture through the power to "license refiners, importers, and handlers to buy and sell sugar from the various producing areas only in the proportion which recent marketings of such areas bear to total United States consumption."

"The average marketings of the last three years," the President's message said, "provide on the whole an equitable base, but the base period should be flexible enough to allow slight adjustments as between certain producing areas."

Domestic Crop Worth $60,000,000.

Mr. Roosevelt said that the annual gross value of the sugar crop to domestic growers was approximately $60,000,000.

"Those who believe in the free importation of sugar," he said, "say that the 2 cents a pound tariff is levied mostly to protect this $60,000,000 crop and that it costs our consuming public every year more than 200 million dollars to afford this protection.

"I do not at this time recommend placing sugar on the free list. I feel that we ought first to try out a system of quotas with the threefold object of keeping down the price of sugar to consumers, of providing for the retention of beet and cane farming within our continental limits, and also to provide against further expansion of this necessarily expensive industry."

REPUBLIC STEEL REDUCES ITS 1933 LOSS TO $4,049,259

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Republic Steel corporation and subsidiaries report for 1933 net loss of $4,049,259, compared with net loss of $11,261,194 in 1932.

For the quarter ended Dec. 31 the company had a net loss of $1,268,472, against net profit of $148,239, equivalent to 24 cents a share of 6 per cent preferred stock, in the preceding quarter and net loss of $2,620,721 in the December quarter in 1932.

AAA PROPOSALS ON MARKET PACT BEFORE PACKERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—A marketing agreement for the packing industry has been tentatively approved by the agricultural adjustment administration, it was learned today, and is now in Chicago for consideration and possible acceptance by the packers.

The pact was drafted by officials of the agricultural administration in cooperation with a special packers' committee headed by Thomas E. Wilson, president of the Wilson Packing company of Chicago. It is understood to represent the views of the AAA regarding the provisions of any acceptable agreement with the packing industry and at the same time to be satisfactory in most respects to the packers' committee which worked with farm administration officials in drafting it.

Up to Packer Institute.

The packers' committee, according to reports, was not empowered to enter into any final agreement with the AAA, and for that reason has returned to Chicago to lay the proposed pact before the Institute of American Meat Packers.

The tentative packers' code, it was learned, provides for the creation of a joint committee on which the packers, the live stock producers, and the AAA would be represented. This committee, which would correspond generally to the code authorities set up under the NRA, would supervise the policies to be followed by the industry.

While the pact makes no attempt to fix the prices of live stock, it was reported that the joint committee created under its provisions would have power to work out a system of retail meat prices which would insure the payment of mutually agreeable prices to producers.

Right to Examine Books.

In the hotly controverted matter of government access to the books and accounts of packing concerns, it was reported, the tentative pact represents something of a defeat for the packers. Into the proposed agreement, it was learned, the AAA has written its standard books and records section empowering the secretary of agriculture to send federal accountants into the accounts of any packer to determine his profits and other financial details.

The packers' committee was said to have opposed this section vigorously, but to have come finally to the belief that the industry might just as well bow to the inevitable. Urging them into acceptance was the powerful live stock industry, which is anxious to see a packers' marketing agreement completed.

COTTON CROSSES 12c LEVEL; ADVANCES OVER $1.25 BALE

Cotton markets were active and erratic yesterday, with liberal price swings and an advance to new high levels. Spot cotton in New York was up 20 points to more than $1 per bale to a 12.45 cent basis. In New Orleans the top was 12.25 cents, a jump of 25 points. Galveston moved up 25 points to 12.15 cents, and Houston also reached the same level, although the gain was only 20 points.

General speculative buying was heavy at times and price fluctuations were sharp. Foreigners, especially the English trade, was well represented. Liverpool closed 2 to 3 points net lower.

At the finish Chicago was up 17 to 24 points on futures, New York 17 to 22 points, and New Orleans 24 to 28 points. Prices follow:

LARD PRICES ADVANCE AS DEMAND INCREASES

Interest in the lard trade is steadily increasing with an enlarged demand. Higher prices for hogs and the prospects of reduced supplies of cottonseed oil have brought more buying power coming into the market. Offerings are readily absorbed at better prices with net gains of 7½ to 12½ cents on futures.

Cash lard was in better demand and 12½ cents higher at $6.07½ for regular, with loose up 5 cents at $5.42½ and leaf unchanged at $5.50.

Speculative trade in bellies was light and prices unchanged. Cash bellies advanced 22½ cents, reaching $7.50. Cash trade in cured meats was good. Fresh pork loins were taken more readily at 11 to 15 cents. Prices:

U. S. AUTHORITIES REPORT RECORD SHORTAGE OF RYE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—Citing statistics to show that there is an unprecedented shortage of American grown rye, federal authorities today appeared unwilling to do anything to stop imports of foreign rye which have been flooding this country since last summer.

Increased demand for rye, growing out of the legalization of liquor, has met the smallest American rye crop since 1900 or before, department of agriculture experts said in explaining the need for allowing foreign imports to continue in competition with American raised grain.

Similar views were entertained at the federal tariff commission offices, where a report on the rye import situation has lain dormant since Dec. 1 despite the fact that President Roosevelt ordered it made at the end of October.

8,000,000 Bushels Arrive.

Meanwhile almost eight million bushels of alien rye has poured into the country, most of it coming from Canada through Chicago. Recently, however, Poland has been the largest exporter, sending its grain in through Atlantic seaboard ports.

L. A. Wilson, head of the foreign division of the bureau of agricultural economics, today, however, gave figures to show that there is a shortage of at least 15 million bushels of rye which must be made up from imports. He declared that the domestic crop, the shortest in decades, yielded only 21 million bushels, whereas the annual American consumption is about 36 million bushels.

Return of legal liquor, according to Mr. Wilson, has increased the need for imports by withdrawing domestic rye from milling channels into distilleries and breweries. Hence, he says, foreign grain is necessary to meet the normal demand for rye flour.

Similar views were expressed by O. A. Juve, head of the agricultural division of the tariff commission, who started the investigation of rye imports last October. Although the final hearing on the inquiry was held Dec. 1 and all of the field investigating at home and abroad completed by the end of November, no final report has been drafted for President Roosevelt.

Believes Imports Necessary.

Mr. Juve would give no indication of the report's probable recommendations, but indicated that he, like Mr. Wilson, felt that imports were necessary in view of the short domestic crop.

The rye imports, in bushels, for each month since July, as given by the department of agriculture, are: July, 371,000; August, 664,000; September, 746,000; October, 2,662,000; November, 2,402,000; December, 1,159,000.

Some of the Polish grain is believed to have come out of the Polish government's rye pool which it bought in an effort to stabilize internal rye prices, but there is no evidence that the Poles have dumped their grain here at low prices, since rye prices have not varied extraordinarily, according to the department of agriculture.

BUTTER AND EGG FUTURES ADVANCE; POTATOES SAG

Butter and egg futures moved forward on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, butter gaining ½ cent and eggs, ⅛@⅜ cents. April and October eggs touched new highs. March potatoes closed 5 cents lower.

Butter opened unchanged to ⅛ cent lower but an advance of 1 cent in the cash market resulted in next sales showing an advance of ½ cent. The futures continued forward, but later reacted from the best figures.

October eggs moved up actively early, although receipts continued to shrink, although supplies have been reduced to the lowest points in recent years. Sales: butter, 36 cars; eggs, 33 cars; potatoes, 1 car. Prices:

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP)—COTTONSEED OIL—Bleachable was firm on covering and good trade buying of July and September, promoted by the firmness of cotton, lard, and hors and the late rally in grain and firmness of crude oil. Final prices were 3 to 10 points net higher. Sales, 97 contracts, including 26 exchanges. Bleachable spot, nominal: March 5.07c, May 5.28c, July 5.45c, September 5.55c.

GRAINS RECOVER EARLY DECLINES, CLOSE HIGHER

Rally in Sympathy with Stocks and Cotton.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Scattered liquidation yesterday caused a decline in grains to new low levels for several weeks, but the selling movement quickly ran its course and a rally followed in sympathy with stocks and cotton and on short covering.

Wheat closed at the top for net gains of ¼ to ½ cent. May sold at 91⅛ to 91¾ cents and July at 89¾ to 90 cents.

Corn gained ⅛ to ⅜ cent, May at 52⅛ to 52¼ cents. Oats were ⅜ to ½ cent higher, May at 37⅜ to 37¾ cents. Rye advanced ½ to ¾ cent, May at 61⅜ cents. Barley was up ⅜ cent at 51¾ cents for May.

Good rains were reported in parts of the dry sections of Texas and Oklahoma, but only a few points in Kansas received precipitation. The change in weather conditions in the southwest was responsible for much of the early selling of futures.

Grains Relatively Low.

Grain markets recently show a pronounced tendency to lag as compared with both stocks and cotton. The latter closed more than $1 a bale higher yesterday and at a new high for the season. From the low point in October to the high point of the last week wheat has advanced 22½ cents, or about 30 per cent. During the same period both stocks and cotton have appreciated about 36 per cent. Comparisons of recent fluctuations in wheat, cotton, and stocks [stocks based on the Dow Jones industrial average] follow:

	Wheat.	Cotton.	May— Stock average.
High, July, 1933	1.28¾	12.50c	110.53
Low, October, 1933	71⅛	9.02c	82.20
High, 1934	93⅝	12.27c	111.93

Old Crop Supply Liberal.

Wheat traders are confronted on one hand by the prospect of a relatively small winter crop and on the other by a liberal holding of old crop grain, although the latter is materially below that of the previous two years. According to an estimate of the department of agriculture there were 305,000,000 bushels of wheat in the United States on Jan. 1, 1934, available for export or for carryover into the new crop. This compared with 400,000,000 bushels a year ago and 437,000,000 bushels on Jan. 1, 1932, when it was the largest on record. The estimated world total surplus, exclusive of Europe, is 907,000,000 bushels, against 1,082,000,000 bushels in 1933 and 1,067,000,00 bushels in 1932.

Winnipeg wheat held within relatively narrow limits and closed unchanged to ⅛ cent lower. Liverpool dropped ¼ to ⅛ cent for the day.

Rye developed independent strength on fair commission house and local buying. Local handlers reported 15,000 bushels of cash rye sold for shipment.

SILVER FUTURES

Silver futures in New York were on the upgrade yesterday, with profit taking bringing about a reaction from the best figures, although net gains for the day were 0.05 to 0.20c. There was talk on the silver exchange that the government might raise its buying price for domestic metal for currency backing. Foreign bar silver was steady at 44¼c and new domestic unchanged at 64¼c. Sales of futures aggregated 5,275,000 ounces. February closed at 44.85c, March 44.92c, May 45.45@45.46c, July 45.80c, September 46.30c, October 46.57c, and December 47.11c.

DENATURED ALCOHOL—39c. WHITE LEAD—100 lbs, $11.00.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Coffee was higher today on trade and European support probably induced by firmness in the spot coffee market in Brazil. Sellins was for other trade and local account.

Santos opened 4 to 8 points higher, and closed 12 to 16 points higher. Sales, 29,000 bags. No. 7 opened 9 to 13 points higher and closed 18 to 20 points higher. Sales, 5,000 bags. Rio prices follow:

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Printed percales were advanced ⅛c a yard by corporation printers, and job printers withdrew prices preceding an upward revision that will vary from ⅛c to ⅜c a yard today. Cotton goods were generally firm, with shipments large. Rayon prices were firm and unchanged. Silks sold in moderate volume, with unfinished cloths firm. The demand for low priced worsted and woolen dress fabrics continued active. Burlap shipments from Calcutta in January were ten million yards less than a year ago and four million yards less than in December to North American ports.

RAW SILK.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Raw silk futures closed steady, unchanged to 1c lower; sales, 840 bales. March, $1.48; May, $1.49b; July, $1.50. Open market quotations (sixty day basis), Shanghai steam filature, 78 per cent seriplane, 20-22s, $1.55. Canton double extra "A," 14-16s, $1.25.
